Pro-Guido Forces Win Control Of Buenos Aires In Hot Battle

India Troops, Red Chinese Clash Again

Shots Traded In Skirmishing On Tibet Frontier

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Skirmishing between Indian and Chinese Communist troops continued Saturday along India's northeastern frontier with Tibet.

An Indian spokesman said that "There has been an intermittent exchange of fire since Friday morning" near the juncture of India and Tibet and the Himalayan kingdom of Bhutan.

THROW GRENADES

A Red China broadcast said Indian troops provoked a new clash Friday night after Indian and Chinese had fought a sharp skirmish Thursday.

The broadcast said the Indians "fired more than 400 bullets, threw two hand grenades and two shells," compelling the Chinese to fire back. It said "continued armed attack" by the Indians shows that the situation "is tending toward further aggravation."

Neither side mentioned any casualties since Thursday, when the Indians reported three Indians wounded and the Chinese, one Chinese officer killed and one soldier wounded.

The clash followed a military buildup by both sides in the two-mile-high area near a village known as Dhola, Tsedong or Chedong. India says the village is inside the Indian border while the Chinese claim it is in Tibet. The scene is 900 miles east of disputed Ladakh, another frontier trouble spot.

In that area, Peiping radio has accused Indian troops of menacing Chinese forces near Pancong Lake. There have been at least four reported clashes in Ladakh in the last two months.

The Indian spokesman said that at Pangong Lake the Chinese tried to interfere with Indian communication lines but later withdrew.

There was no sign of a break in the diplomatic deadlock over the border dispute.

The Chinese have proposed talks, beginning Oct. 15, in Peiping and shifting later to New Delhi, to settle the location of the Himalayan border between India and Tibet. India has agreed to send a delegation to Peiping on that date to discuss Chinese withdrawal from 12,000 disputed square miles in Ladakh as a preliminary to border negotiations.

The Chinese have refused to withdraw as a condition of the negotiations.

With the two governments talking at cross purposes, and each refusing a meeting on the other's terms, observers here were skeptical that any kind of talks will be held in Peiping on Oct. 15.

Defense Chief Says Crisis Is Worst In Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scattered House opposition to President Kennedy's request for authority to call up reservists was fading Saturday in the wake of official testimony that the world crisis, including Cuba, is the worst since Korea.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara so characterized it in testimony made available to House members in preparation for House debate on the reserve issue Monday.

McNamara also said the administration was considering some buildup in the regular armed forces but that even if extra regulars were available now standby authority still would be needed to call up ready reserves.

Senate-passed legislation under which the President could muster as many as 150,000 reservists during the coming adjournment of Congress was made the first order of House business for Monday.

Another Mild Day Expected

It warmed up slightly Saturday but still hasn't gotten back to the hot state yet. And today's outlook calls for a continuation of fall.

The forecast today calls for clear to partly cloudy skies today with mild temperatures. The high is expected to be between 84 and 88 degrees.

Saturday's top was 89 degrees with the low recorded at 54. Tonight's low is expected to range from 54 to 58 degrees.

OLE MISS OFFICIALS

Second Contempt Hearing Monday

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Saturday ordered three top University of Mississippi officials to appear at a contempt hearing here—along with the state college board—in the James H. Meredith desegregation case.

The appeals court acted after the Justice Department and attorneys for the 29-year-old Negro filed separate petitions asking that the three officials also be made parties to the hearing—ordered after Meredith was denied admission to the all-white school.

The board's contempt hearing—set for Monday at 11 a.m. (CST) in New Orleans—had been set before the acquittal of the three officials late Friday in federal court in Meridian, Miss.

U. S. Dist. Judge Sidney Mize held that the state college board—officially, the Board of Trustees Institutions of Higher Learning—had sole power to enforce the court's order directing Meredith's admission to the university.

Ordered to appear at a second contempt hearing are: Chancellor John D. Williams, Liberal Arts Dean Arthur B. Lewis, and registrar Robert B. Ellis.

Appellate judges John Minor Wisdom, John R. Brown, and Griffin B. Bell signed the order. It directs the board and the school officials to show cause why they should not be held in civil contempt for their failure to comply with the court's previous ruling ordering Meredith's admission.

Meredith, whose attempt to enter the 114-year-old university was personally blocked by Gov. Ross Barnett Thursday, has dropped out of sight.

Texas Court Set For Estes Trial

TYLER, Tex. (AP) — Billie Sol Estes, whose name has become a household word since the FBI arrested him six months ago, is due to go on trial Monday before Dist. Judge Otis T. Dunagan on state charges of theft, swindling and embezzlement.

Unless there is further delay, it will be the first in a series of trials awaiting the bankrupt West Texas promoter on indictments returned by four grand juries.

Federal agents put Estes, 37, in jail March 29, setting off widespread investigations of his multi-million-dollar dealings in liquid fertilizer, grain storage, cotton grown under transferred acreage allotments and assorted other enterprises.

FREE ON BOND

He is free under bonds totaling $140,000.

Congressional probers are waiting to question him. They have agreed, at the request of state authorities, to await the outcome of his impending trial — provided there is no extended delay.

Three Killed In State Barge Blast

Victims Sought In River

LAKE CHARLES (Special) — Three men were killed Saturday morning when a barge exploded at Carlyss near here.

The victims were cleaning the empty barge at the Cal - Cam shipyards, about 20 miles from here on the Calcasieu River.

Authorities were investigating the cause of the blast Saturday night but it was believed caused by a spark which ignited fumes from mineral spirits.

IDENTIFIED

The dead men were identified as Saul J. Delcambre, 35, West Lake; Billy Joe Smith, 26, Sulphur, and Wallace A. Kinney, 22, of Carlyss.

The Sulphur fire department received a call at about 9:15 a.m. Saturday from Mrs. Walter Bennings, wife of the president of Calship, Inc., a dockyard at Carlyss.

The Sulphur department dispatched its mercy unit to the scene of the blast and the unit extinguished several small fires around the barge.

The barge itself was not afire. But the wooden foundation of an 8000 gallon gas tank nearby was on fire as well as a pickup truck and several spotty grass fires.

Sources Saturday night said only one compartment on the barge exploded but that a second compartment still contained some gas.

Search operations for bodies of two of the victims were curtailed Saturday night because of the danger of further explosions. Only the body of one was found. Others were only tentatively identified from wallets and other items of clothing found at the scene.

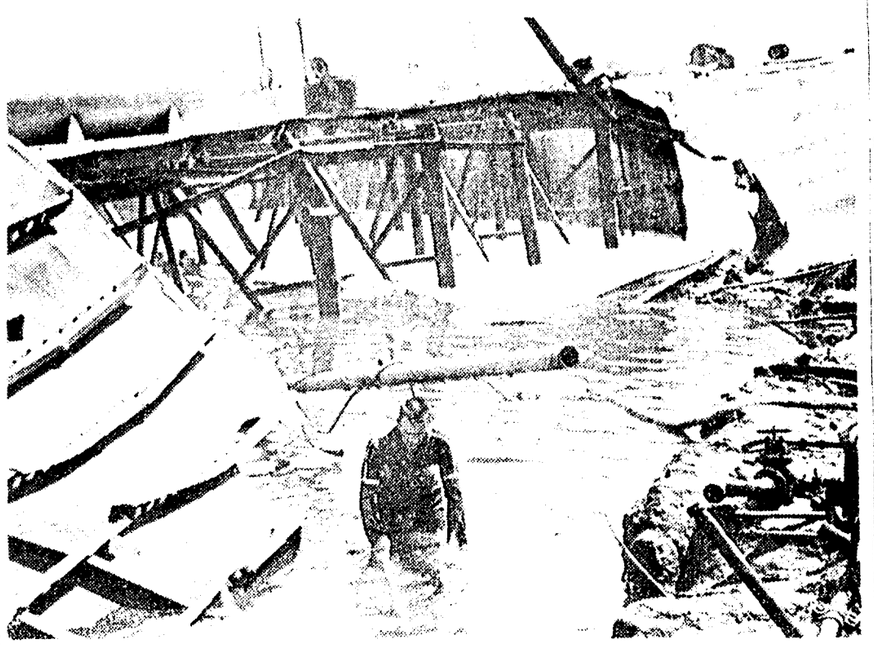

Torn and burned clothing was found 150 yards from the scene and large pieces of steel from the barge were hurled some 400 yards.

There were no eye witnesses to the blast but a tugboat captain in the ship channel nearby said he saw pieces of metal fly into the air.

The search for the other bodies was cancelled Saturday night after fumes were seen rising from a hatch on the barge. An expert barge inspector was called to the scene from Beaumont, Tex., and he declared the area unsafe for work. The hatch was closed and the Calcasieu Parish sheriff's department said the search would be resumed this morning at daybreak.

Other equipment sent to the blast besides the Sulphur fire department truck were units from the Continental Refinery which pumped foam into the barge; trucks from Chennault Air Force

Tanks, Jets Drive Rivals From Capital

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Military forces supporting President Jose Maria Guido hit Buenos Aires with lightning air and ground attacks Saturday and wrested control of the capital. The president proclaimed a victory for forces that rebelled against military control of the government.

His announcement came only hours after tanks routed anti-Guido troops from the heart of the city and air force jets bombed others camped in a city park.

CLAIM CONTROL

The announcement said troops favoring a return to constitutional government and early elections were in control throughout the nation. The president said military operations had ended.

One of the leaders of the anti-Guido forces were reported under arrest, Gen. Bernardino Labayru, army chief of staff, was being held by grenadiers in Buenos Aires. The other, Gen. Juan Carlos Lorio, army commander-in-chief, was reported to have fled.

Guido's terse announcement said:

"Military operations in the federal capital and greater Buenos Aires as well as in the major part of the nation have terminated. The troops that dominate the situation obey the government and have established necessary contacts with security forces to achieve maintenance of order.

"We ask and recommend (that the public take) the greatest prudence in an effort to avoid unfortunate incidents that might provoke new and lamentable consequences at a time when the military situation has been overcome."

Anti-Guido forces surrendered after Argentine air force jets strafed and bombed their positions in a city park. Other troops detreated in the face of a tank assault by pro-Guido forces on

SECOND DETONATOR FOUND

Small Bomb Explodes In St. Peter's Basilica

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A small incendiary bomb exploded harmlessly Saturday in St. Peter's Basilica, less than three weeks before the Roman Catholic ecumenical council opens in the largest Christian church in the world.

Vatican security guards shortly afterwards found a second detonator in the basilica, but no explosives were attached to it.

The guards said the first device, a bottle filled with fluid, was found by a workman. They said the workman accidentally knocked the bottle over and it exploded "with a puff of smoke."

SECOND BLAST

It was the second device to explode in St. Peter's in slightly more than two months. No one was injured either time and damage was negligible.

Prior to the report by security guards, the Vatican press office said two paper-wrapped parcels containing inflammable or explosive material had been found.

A special commission was appointed to investigate the incident.

Pope John XXIII expressed shock, and Vatican sources said the incident might indicate a possible intimidation campaign against the Ecumenical Council of the Roman Catholic Church opening here Oct. 11. It will be the largest Roman Catholic Church gathering in modern times.

Thompson Named To New Post

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Llewellyn E. Thompson, former ambassador to the Soviet Union, was selected Saturday by President Kennedy to be an ambassador at large, with responsibilities largely in the field of Soviet affairs.

In his new capacity, Thompson will be available to both the secretary of state and the President for special assignments, White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said.

Thompson's duties also will include those previously handled by Charles E. Bohlen as a special State Department adviser on Russian affairs. Bohlen now is ambassador to France.

Thompson, 58, a career Foreign Service officer, put in a longer tour of duty in Moscow than any other U.S. ambassador. He was there from 1957 until his resignation earlier this year.

Nudists Reveal Bare Facts On Cold Summer

LONDON (AP) — On the eve of their annual meeting, Britain's nudists revealed some facts Saturday on the shivering summer of 1962.

"I can't remember a worse summer for nudists," said Frank Mitchell, vice chairman of the Federation of British Sun Clubs. "It's really been tough."

An interesting sidelight, he said, is that "somehow women sunbathers seem to stand the cold better than the men. We don't know why this is, but it's true."

Some places in Britain have had the coldest summer in 50 years. For the first time since 1931, Londons' official August temperature failed to reach the 80's.

Dr. Charles Mackaskie, proprietor of a private recreation ground for nudists at St Albans, said:

It's been pretty chilly, but the hardier ones get out even when it's 60 degrees.

Senator Soaper Says

The office grouch thinks living will be bearable about 1980, since the magazines say that, by then, everybody else will be living in California.

Daytime television has done more than wonder drugs to drive influenza sufferers back to work.

There is some suspicion that the Russian agricultural experts in Cuba may be pushing a 4-H program — howitzers, hand grenades, helicopters and hydrogen bombs.

PASSMAN ON FOREIGN AID

Mail Approves Solon

WASHINGTON (Special)—Rep. Otto E. Passman, Louisiana's fifth district congressman, has developed a reputation as probably the nation's outstanding critic of foreign aid.

And, in the past few weeks he has drawn favorable grassroots reaction to his stand against foreign aid.

Bulging sacks of mail coming to the congressman's Washington office reflect wide national support for reduction in foreign aid spending, an aide said.

"Of some 19,000 letters received in recent weeks from throughout the nation," Passman said, "less than 100 have been critical of my views on the subject."

A member of Passman's staff said that according to actual count, only eight letters were critical of Passman's foreign aid stand. "Mr. Passman would not permit the use of the exact figure because he thought it too fantastic for the people to believe," according to an aide.

Passman said that "less than 10" critical letters have been received from his home district. The aide said the actual figure was three — two from Bastrop and one from Monroe.

Passman is obviously pleased with the favorable response that he has gotten as a result of his slashing attacks on foreign aid. "I am convinced that the American people are fed up with these wasteful programs," Passman says.

Members of Passman's staff report that many letters from over the nation brings checks intended to help finance Passman's re-election.

"We always return contributions to the sender," the Passman aide said.

"Mr. Passman always insists that we return the money with an explanation that he cannot accept payment for doing his duty," the aide said.

The record reveals that for eight consecutive years Passman's 12-man House Foreign Aid Appropriations sub-committee has failed to amend the chairman's proposed reductions.

Likewise, he has always been supported when the measure goes to the full 50-member House appropriations committee.

And, for eight years on the floor of the House Passman's foreign aid slash has been amended only once.

Why has the Louisiana Congressman enjoyed such support from his colleagues?

One member of Congress puts it this way:

"Mr. Passman always knows his bill. He's studied it from every angle and knows what he's talking about when he submits it.

"He is one of the most diligent workers in Congress and he's a great detail man."

It is generally conceded in the

OWNS TRAIN FOR DAY

Rail Commuter's Dream Comes True

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Mountford took his family and a group of neighbors on a little outing Saturday—by special train.

It was a rail commuter's dream come true, though never during his 25 years as a rail commuter did Mountford ever dream such a dream.

Saturday morning the train waited for him. In fact, it couldn't move without him.

It was his very own, given him for the day by the Long Island Rail Road free of charge. The Long Island, which hauls more commuters than any other railroad in the country, lately has been given to doing almost anything to make them happy.

Six weeks ago Mountford was chosen for the top prize when the railroad's electronic computer selected—in an operation too complicated for anybody but an electronic brain to understand — a number of regular rail patrons to receive various gifts.

Mountford was told that the special train, consisting of a dining car, parlor-lounge and old style open end observation car, would be his for any day he chose for a 200-mile round trip to the Montauk resort area at the eastern tip of Long Island.

He also was told that he could choose 25 other persons to accompany him, that the railroad would provide all food and beverages and serve them in style, and that there would be golf, fishing, swimming and other activities during a stopover at Montauk.

Mountford quickly named his immediate family and some other relatives, but spent six weeks trying to fill out the remainder of the party with friends and neighbors without making others enemies for life.

Two Men Die, Four Missing In Hotel Fire

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — Two men died and four persons were missing Saturday in a fire that raged for more than six hours in the 74-year-old Golden Eagle hotel.

Four others were hospitalized. Three were in critical condition with broken bones suffered in jumps.

Firemen found the body of Ed Debon, 66, Eureka truck distributor, near the third floor fire escape. A second man, unidentified, was found burned to death on the second floor.

A checkup showed that 51 of the 100 rooms in the brick-walled hotel had been occupied Friday night.

Herman Olson, of Blue Lake, broke his legs jumping from the third floor. Robert Cook, of San Francisco, broke his back jumping. Mrs. Lottie Haley, 30, a resident of the hotel, broke her hip.

Firemen believe there were 54 persons in the hotel when the fire broke out at 6 a.m. Six hours later the fire had been brought under control.

The Golden Eagle, built in 1838, is a landmark in northern California.

"Of some 19,000 letters received in recent weeks from throughout the nation," Passman said, "less than 100 have been critical of my views on the subject."

A member of Passman's staff said that according to actual count, only eight letters were critical of Passman's foreign aid stand. "Mr. Passman would not permit the use of the exact figure because he thought it too fantastic for the people to believe," according to an aide.

Passman said that "less than 10" critical letters have been received from his home district. The aide said the actual figure was three — two from Bastrop and one from Monroe.

Passman is obviously pleased with the favorable response that he has gotten as a result of his slashing attacks on foreign aid. "I am convinced that the American people are fed up with these wasteful programs," Passman says.

Members of Passman's staff report that many letters from over the nation brings checks intended to help finance Passman's re-election.

"We always return contributions to the sender," the Passman aide said.

"Mr. Passman always insists that we return the money with an explanation that he cannot accept payment for doing his duty," the aide said.

The record reveals that for eight consecutive years Passman's 12-man House Foreign Aid Appropriations sub - committee has failed to amend the chairman's proposed reductions.

Likewise, he has always been supported when the measure goes to the full 50-member House appropriations committee.

And, for eight years on the floor of the House Passman's foreign aid slash has been amended only once.

Why has the Louisiana Congressman enjoyed such support from his colleagues?

One member of Congress puts it this way:

"Mr. Passman always knows his bill. He's studied it from every angle and knows what he's talking about when he submits it.

"He is one of the most diligent workers in Congress and he's a great detail man."

It is generally conceded in the

OWNS TRAIN FOR DAY

Rail Commuter's Dream Comes True

NEW YORK (AP) — John Mountford took his family and a group of neighbors on a little outing Saturday—by special train.

It was a rail commuter's dream come true, though never during his 25 years as a rail commuter did Mountford ever dream such a dream.

Saturday morning the train waited for him. In fact, it couldn't move without him.

It was his very own, given him for the day by the Long Island Rail Road free of charge. The Long Island, which hauls more commuters than any other railroad in the country, lately has been given to doing almost anything to make them happy.

Six weeks ago Mountford was chosen for the top prize when the railroad's electronic computer selected—in an operation too complicated for anybody but an electronic brain to understand — a number of regular rail patrons to receive various gifts.

Mountford was told that the special train, consisting of a dining car, parlor-lounge and old style open end observation car, would be his for any day he chose for a 200-mile round trip to the Montauk resort area at the eastern tip of Long Island.

He also was told that he could choose 25 other persons to accompany him, that the railroad would provide all food and beverages and serve them in style, and that there would be golf, fishing, swimming and other activities during a stopover at Montauk.

Mountford quickly named his immediate family and some other relatives, but spent six weeks trying to fill out the remainder of the party with friends and neighbors without making others enemies for life.

Tanks, Jets Drive Rivals From Capital

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Military forces supporting President Jose Maria Guido hit Buenos Aires with lightning air and ground attacks Saturday and wrested control of the capital. The president proclaimed a victory for forces that rebelled against military control of the government.

His announcement came only hours after tanks routed anti-Guido troops from the heart of the city and air force jets bombed others camped in a city park.

CLAIM CONTROL

The announcement said troops favoring a return to constitutional government and early elections were in control throughout the nation. The president said military operations had ended.

One of the leaders of the anti-Guido forces were reported under arrest, Gen. Bernardino Labayru, army chief of staff, was being held by grenadiers in Buenos Aires. The other, Gen. Juan Carlos Lorio, army commander-in-chief, was reported to have fled.

Guido's terse announcement said:

"Military operations in the federal capital and greater Buenos Aires as well as in the major part of the nation have terminated. The troops that dominate the situation obey the government and have established necessary contacts with security forces to achieve maintenance of order.

"We ask and recommend (that the public take) the greatest prudence in an effort to avoid unfortunate incidents that might provoke new and lamentable consequences at a time when the military situation has been overcome."

Anti-Guido forces surrendered after Argentine air force jets straffed and bombed their positions in a city park. Other troops detreated in the face of a tank assault by pro-Guido forces on

Two Men Die, Four Missing In Hotel Fire

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — Two men died and four persons were missing Saturday in a fire that raged for more than six hours in the 74-year-old Golden Eagle hotel.

Four others were hospitalized. Three were in critical condition with broken bones suffered in jumps.

Firemen found the body of Ed Debon, 66, Eureka truck distributor, near the third floor fire escape. A second man, unidentified, was found burned to death on the second floor.

A checkup showed that 51 of the 100 rooms in the brick-walled hotel had been occupied Friday night.

Herman Olson, of Blue Lake, broke his legs jumping from the third floor. Robert Cook, of San Francisco, broke his back jumping. Mrs. Lottie Haley, 80, a resident of the hotel, broke her hip.

Firemen believe there were 54 persons in the hotel when the fire broke out at 6 a.m. Six hours later the fire had been brought under control.

The Golden Eagle, built in 1888, is a landmark in northern California.

Advertising Group Names New Officers

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Members of the Tenth District, Advertising Federation of America, Saturday elected Tom McHale of Dallas as governor and unanimously adopted a resolution rapping the national organization for "an increasing concentration of power."

Other officers named were Bob Wimberley of Little Rock, first lieutenant governor; B. J. Feesenmeyer of Ft. Worth, second lieutenant governor; and Ira DeJernett of Dallas, secretary-treasurer.

Saturday marked the end of the three - day meet here of the Advertising Organization which is composed of clubs from Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, and Oklahoma.

Speakers during the three - day meet included Gov. Jimmy H. Davis, A. C. Nielsen, Jr., head of the Chicago Marketing Research specialist that created the Nielsen Rating System in television, and George W. Head, Chairman of the board of AFA and advertising and sales manager of the National Cash Register Co., Dayton, O.

The resolution adopted at the meeting Saturday charges that "certain injustices have been done to the entire AFA membership in the bypassing of the board of directors and matters of great importance."

McHale termed the resolution a "grass - root revolt to get more democratic representation for ad clubs, not only in the Tenth District, but throughout the United States.

In the resolution the Tenth District members recommended a study of the entire administrative machinery of the AFA and requested assurance that the association will be protested from the encroachment of centralized power."

If the assurance is not received by Dec. 31, 1962, the resolution stated, the Tenth District board of directors will be compeled to recommend that the member clubs seperately and individually re - evaluate the desirability of continuing association with AFA.

Hospital Aides Training Class Now Underway

A training class for junior hospital aides began at the Red Cross chapter Saturday morning.

Upon completion of the training, high school boys and girls will be assigned to help in local hospitals after school and during weekend.

This summer 33 high school youngsters averaged over 900 volunteer hours a month as aides in St. Francis and Conway Hospitals. They worked on the floors, doing social services for patients, but as they gain experience staff members recommend them for jobs in different departments.

Aides who gave more than 100 hours during the summer are: Laura Bernhardt, Pam Conner, India Dowdle, Reneel Potter, Bryan Smith, Jalene Sykes and Barbara Keene.

Adult sponsors for the training class are Mrs. James L. Padgett and Mrs. Bolling Jones. Hospital liason representatives are Mrs. Adele Brossett, St. Francis, and Mrs. Audrey Duchesne, Conway.

Quiet Saturday Is Enjoyed By Local Officers

Twin City law enforcement agencies enjoyed a relatively quiet Saturday, with most action centered around theft investigations in Monroe.

Monroe officers were also investigating the malicious vandalism done to some clothing in a downtown women's clothing store. The incident was reported by the owner of Field's, Morris Blumenthal. He told officers that someone had ripped up several dresses hanging on his racks, and cut the toes out of a pair of shoes.

Monroe police also investigated the burglary of the Zion Hill Baptist Church at 1001 Breard St. Officials at the Negro church said someone entered the building through a side door and pried open the soft drink machine. It was not determined whether anything had been taken.

They also received a report that the money box had been removed from a cigarette machine located on the outside of the College 66 Service Station on DeSiard Road. The incident was reported Saturday morning by the station manager, Bobby Brooks.

In other action, Monroe officers investigated an accident on the Sterlington Road that left drivers of both vehicles injured.

Fred M. Hill Sr., 65, of No. Six Deborah Dr., was rushed to St. Francis hospital by Hixson ambulance after a collision on the Sterlington Road. He was being X-rayed for possible chest injuries.

According to investigating officers, Hill, driving north on Sterlington Road, attempted to make a left turn in front of Rayford V. Haygood, 21, of route four, Venable Rd., Monroe. Haygood was driving south on Sterlington Road. He was takn to a private physician for examination. No charges had been filed by police in the accident Saturday night.

Hospital officials, meanwhile, were also x-raying one of the Northeast State College football players who was injured in the game Saturday night.

Pete Vincent, a quarterback, may have sustained a fractured left ankle but officials did not know for certain until x-rays had been studied.

Ghana Regime Declares State Of Emergency

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — President Kwame Nkrumah's government declared a state of emergency in Accra Saturday and sent squads of armed police on house-to-house searches for political terrorists.

The government acted after the third bombing incident since Aug. 1. Five persons were killed and 42 wounded Thursday in a torch-light procession on the eve of Nkrumah's 53rd birthday.

Soldiers with tommy guns, armored carriers, light tanks and other battle gear took up guard duty around the broadcasting building and the approaches to Nkrumah's Flagstaff House residence.

All processions were banned and certain areas were closed off to the public. A curfew was imposed.

COMPROMISE MOVE

Passman Favors Latest Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (Special) — Rep. Otto Passman, a frequent critic of past farm legislation, Saturday endorsed the new House-Senate 1962 farm bill compromise.

Passman said the measure, approved by the House Thursday and due for Senate action this week, will result in "saving of tens of millions of dollars for our taxpayers and also permit the market to operate more freely."

A defeate of the bill, he said, "would have been playing loose and reckless with our agricultural economy."

The bill extends present feed grain land retirement bonuses through 1963 and also continues a voluntary acreage cutback program for wheat farmers. The compromise measure also includes controversial direct payments for feed grain producers who cooperate with the program.

"This is a completely voluntary program," Passman stated. "Participation is a matter for decision on the part of the farmer, who can either stay in the program or get out of it, as he chooses."

The new bill, Passman said, should reduce government involvement in the grain market and cut farm program costs about $40,000,000 a year, as well as assuring a stable supply of grain for cash export."

Drilling Hearings Scheduled Here

Six applications affecting oil and gas drilling operations in the Twin City area will be heard by State Conservation Commissioner James H. Gill in a two-day series of public hearings in Monroe Tuesday and Wednesday.

Hearings are scheduled to begin each day at 9 a.m. on the roof of the Frances Hotel. Involved are the Monroe Gas Field in three instances, the Calhoun Field, the Downsville Field and the Locust Ridge Field in Tensas Parish.

Applicants seeking changes or revisions in drilling regulations in those areas include the Humble Oil and Humble Gas Transmission Companies, the Louisiana Gas Production Company and Armand F. Rabun, all concerned with the Monroe Field.

The Phillips Petroleum Company, the Chesley Pruet Drilling Company and the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Company seek hearings in the Locust Ridge, the Downsville and the Calhoun Fields, respectively.

The Downsville Field is in Union Parish.

Duncan S. Cook, manager of the Monroe Oil & Gas District of the minerals division of the commission, comprising 14 surrounding northeast Louisiana Parishes, will attend the sessions.

Gill will close each day's program with an outline of new rules of procedure in conducting future hearings, all of which become effective October 1.

The rules call for prior conferences between opposing parties "in an attempt to iron out differences," and a pre-hearing with the Commissioner 10 days in advance of a public hearing.

"It is felt that the growth of the oil and gas industry and the increasing volume of work facing the Department of Conservation make it necessary for new rules of procedure governing applications for hearings," explained Gill in a recent release.

DEATHS

Harold Ashton

WINNSBORO (Special) — Funeral services for Harold Ashton, 55, of Baskin, will be held in the Friendship Baptist Church here today at 2 p.m., Rev. Bob Nobles and Rev. Jimmy Sheppard officiating.

Interment will follow in the Friendship Cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home of Winnsboro.

Mr. Ashton died in a Monroe hospital early Thursday morning after a lengthy illness.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Luna Ashton, Baskin; four sons, Harold Ashton, Jr., stationed in France with the U.S. Army, Bobby Earl Ashton and Alvin Lee Ashton, both with the U.S. Air Force, and Melvin Roy Ashton, Baskin; a daughter, Mrs. Minnie Mae Robinson, Baskin; his father, A. C. Ashton, Winnsboro; a brother, Horace Melvin Ashton, Bastrop; and two sisters, Mrs. Irene McIntyre, Bastrop and Mrs. Hazel Harris, Sturgis, Mich.

C. W. Pittman

HARRISONBURG (Special) — Funeral services for Charley W. Pittman, 76, will be held today at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist Church here with interment following in the Catahoula Church Cemetery, near Interprise, under the direction of Young's Funeral Home of Ferriday.

Mr. Pittman succumbed Saturday afternoon in the Pittman Clinic at Jonesville after a long illness.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elsie Pittman, Harrisonburg; two sons, Cuny Pittman, Harrisonburg, and Ernest Pittman, Clarks; two daughters, Mrs. H. C. Belk, Clarks, and Mrs. Malcomb Lang, Harrisonburg; one sister, Mrs. Earl Sandifer, Mangham; 10 grandchildren; and one great - grandchild.

Pallbearers will be Winky Pittman, Mickey Lang, Donnie Lang, and Arthur Ray Lang, Darel Myers, and Charley Gene Belk.

Stenographers Like Dictation By Bosses Best

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) —Local stenographers don't like offices where dictating machines have replaced dictating bosses.

Speaking to the city's health services committee, Councillor Anthony Bresler said Friday:

"Offices using these machines are losing hundreds of typists because the girls don't see a man during working hours."

He went on:

"There's not the same encouragement from a machine as there is from the executive who puts his arm occasionally around the typist's shoulders — in a fatherly way, of course."

Bresler was speaking against buying dictating machines.

The committee voted to buy them.

DEATH TOLL DECLINES

TO BEGIN MONDAY

Solicitations Slated For Givers Drive

Monday morning, some 500 Monroe firms will begin their solicitation for the 1963 United Givers Fund campaign, as the large business division of the drive officially kicks off.

Workers under division chairman Johnny Sherrouse received their assignments and kits of materials at training meetings this past week. Some have been calling on firm managers to set up the employee campaigns. Firms are being urged to actually begin solicitations on Monday.

The West Monroe and Sterlington campaigns among large businesses will follow in a few days.

Volunteers in Group Solicitation I division will be contacting large businesses in the Monroe area. This year for the first time, the firm gift, the executive gift and the employee gifts will be solicited by the same worker. Previously, this had been handled by two or three persons.

Sherrouse announced that this year all three types of contributions would be grouped together for one solicitation. "We expect that this will be well received by firm heads, as they will be called on only once for the three types of gifts," Mr. Sherrouse said. "This is in line with the United Givers Fund principle of combining 13 campaigns into one."

Sherrouse pointed out that the pilot campaigns now being conducted in six Monroe firms would be of valuable assistance to the rest of the campaign organization in analyzing the position of the drive and the merits of materials and solicitation procedures. The results of the pilot campaigns, he indicated, will be announced within a few days, as soon as the campaigns are completed in the firms.

Firms that are conducting pilot campaigns in advance of the regulars solicitation are Ford, Bacon and Davis, KNOE, Louisiana Machinery, News - Star — World, Selig Manufacturing and Southern Bell Telephone. These campaigns are being held as "pace-setters," the results of which will serve as examples for the rest of the parish, Sherrouse explained.

Group Solicitation I division workers will be contacting all Monroe firms with 10 or more employees. The small business solicitation gets under way on Oct. 9.

Campaign sections beginning work tomorrow and the types of firms they will be contacting are industrial section, Fred Petty, chairman, industrial, manufacturing, communications; business section, Allen Givens, chairman, department stores, mercantile shops, grocers, food distributors, automotive firms; commercial section, J. C. Loftin, H. K. Touchstone, co-chairmen, finance, insurance, service establishments, transportation; government section, Fred Fudickar, Jr., city, parish, state and federal employees, and construction trades, George Phillips, contractors, subcontractors, building suppliers, and business agents of unions.

This year, hourly employees are being urged to consider a fair share gift of one hour's pay per month to the 13 UGF agencies. For salaried and professional persons, campaign leaders point out, this formula works out to 6-10th of one per cent.

EXPECT REFUGEE FLOOD

U.S. Officials Show Concern Soviet May Go Too Far On Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has committed Soviet prestige to the defense of communism in Cuba so heavily that U.S. officials are becoming concerned over the grave danger of a serious miscalculation on his part.

The apprehension is similar to that felt among leaders of the Kennedy administration about Khrushchev's estimate of U.S. intentions in West Berlin.

The risk of war, as measured by Washington officials, rests to a great extent on Khrushchev's judgment of how the United States will react to future threats and challenges.

In New York next week, Secretary of State Dean Rusk is expected to try to impress on cold war foes and allies alike that the United States is deeply upset, angry, even outraged about the buildup of Communist power backed by Soviet arms in Cuba.

Public reaction, Rusk is expected to tell other foreign ministers, must be considered as a major factor in this situation along with basic U.S. security.

The United States is trying hard to get its Allies to desist from supplying ships for Red shipments to Cuba. It scored its first significant advance in this direction Friday when West Germany announced it would take steps to limit such employment of German-owned vessels.

Rusk will lunch with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on Tuesday. They may meet again before Rusk's return here around next weekend for the Oct. 2-3 conference on Cuba of the Organization of American States.

Some U.S. officials hope Rusk and Gromyko may be able to give a new boost to some aspect of disarmament negotiations.

WILLIAM M. Temple has announced the opening of the Temple of Beauty Salon in the Twin City Shopping Center. For the past fifteen years the Temples operated a salon in Washington, D.C., where their clientele included the daughter of Vice President Barkley, the wives of four of the astronauts, and other widely known people. Temple is a former resident of Rayville.

Troops Move Against Foes Of Ben Bella

ALGIERS (UPI)—Troop trains rolled in from western Algeria Saturday with reinforcements for Algerian army forces engaged in a massive "rat hunt" for guerrilla opposition to strongman Ahmed Ben Bella around Algiers.

Even as the military sweep through the surrounding Mitidja plain was kicked off, new charges of "dictatorship" were fired at Ben Bella and his political bureau. The accusations made in leaflets distributed here charged the political bureau was preparing the road to a "police state" with support from abroad.

The political bureau Friday ordered regular Algerian troops to clean out all anti-Ben Bellist forces in a 25-mile arc around Algiers. The bureau described the action as a "rat hunt" for remnants of the dissident Willaya (military district) 4 who it charged were looting, killing and kidnaping in the region.

Army Chief of Staff Col. Houari Boumedienne assumed personal command of the operations and warned all necessary measures will be taken to carry out the political bureau's orders.

Ben Bella apparently hoped to have a 25-mile area east, west and south of Algiers cleared of dissidents before the country's first National Assembly meets for the first time Tuesday. The assembly, elected Thursday, is to write the constitution and form the first government for independent Algeria.

The candidates for the assembly were hand-picked by the political bureau and are predominately pro-Ben Bella, making his choice as premier almost a foregone conclusion.

The guerrilla clean-up, which Boumedienne himself dubbed "operation Sanitation," began with the arrests of several soldiers of Willaya 4—the military district which included Algiers and whose commanders tried to challenge Ben Bella's authority.

Boumedienne told newsmen in Boufarik where he set up his command post that he would use "all means—no matter what—to restore order" in the area around Algiers.

He said the operation was a "police action" rather than a military campaign and tried to minimize it.

U.S. Officials Show Concern Soviet May Go Too Far On Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has committed Soviet prestige to the defense of communism in Cuba so heavily that U.S. officials are becoming concerned over the grave danger of a serious miscalculation on his part.

The apprehension is similar to that felt among leaders of the Kennedy administration about Khrushchev's estimate of U.S. intentions in West Berlin.

The risk of war, as measured by Washington officials, rests to a great extent on Khrushchev's judgment of how the United States will react to future threats and challenges.

In New York next week, Secretary of State Dean Rusk is expected to try to impress on cold war foes and allies alike that the United States is deeply upset, angry, even outraged about the buildup of Communist power backed by Soviet arms in Cuba.

Public reaction, Rusk is expected to tell other foreign ministers, must be considered as a major factor in this situation along with basic U.S. security.

The United States is trying hard to get its Allies to desist from supplying ships for Red shipments to Cuba. It scored its first significant advance in this direction Friday when West Germany announced it would take steps to limit such employment of German-owned vessels.

Rusk will lunch with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on Tuesday. They may meet again before Rusk's return here around next weekend for the Oct. 2-3 conference on Cuba of the Organization of American States.

Some U.S. officials hope Rusk and Gromyko may be able to give a new boost to some aspect of disarmament negotiations.

WILLIAM M. Temple has announced the opening of the Temple of Beauty Salon in the Twin City Shopping Center. Troops Move Against Foes Of Ben Bella

ALGIERS (UPI)—Troop trains rolled in from western Algeria Saturday with reinforcements for Algerian army forces engaged in a massive "rat hunt" for guerrilla opposition to strongman Ahmed Ben Bella around Algiers.

Even as the military sweep through the surrounding Mitidja plain was kicked off, new charges of "dictatorship" were fired at Ben Bella and his political bureau. The accusations made in leaflets distributed here charged the political bureau was preparing the road to a "police state" with support from abroad.

Stock Mart Dawdles In Past Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Lacking any incentive to advance, the stock market last week dawdled for a few days and then fell sharply, posting the worst weekly loss in about two months.

The background of business and economic news continued mixed and the first three sessions of the week reflected this in stock action. On the last couple of days, however, a worsening downtrend got started as impatient traders began to unload. The movement snowballed into a steep decline, a decline3 have gone in the past couple of months.

The list came down from a fairly high level in the trading range which has confined it for several weeks, so there was nothing particularly momentous about the sell-off.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 14.06 to 591.78. This left it far above its 1962 closing low of 535.76 reached June 26.

The heaviest selling was generated Friday, when the Dow industrial broke through the psychologically important 600 level — a line which the average has crossed several times to the upside or downside since the end of June.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 3.7 to 219.9 — its most severely weekly drop since the week ended July 21 when the average fell 4.4.

Volume grew heavier on the decline, always a bearish sign. Total turnover for the week was 17,597,670 shares, compared with 14,634,055 the previous week. It was the biggest for any week since the one ended Aug. 25 when 20,493,652 shares changed hand.

The week started with the market nudging dully to the upside Monday with some of the "growth" stocks and space age issues getting a fairly big play from traders. This mild rally continued for a good part of Tuesday but gains faded and by the end of that day prices were mixed.

Nervousness among some of the trading favorite was apparent Wednesday when the market as a whole edged off irregularly with little or no change in the popular stock market averages.

By Thursday the list was in a definite though moderate decline for much of the session. At the very end, however, there was a rush to unload. Tickers ran late as price weakened considerably in the closing minutes.

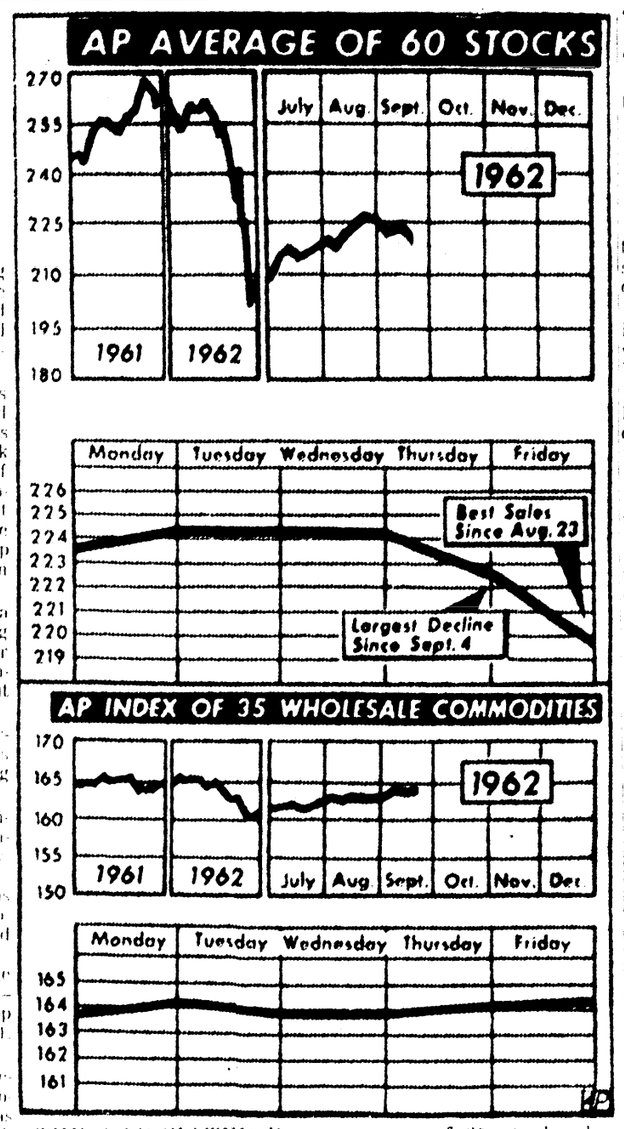

The market was upset by two gusts of selling Friday, which brought the sharpest overall market loss since July 18.

From the technical standpoint, a moderate drop in the short interest on the New York Stock Exchange occasioned some selling by traders. This is the total of shares borrowed to effect short sales. Stock to replace the borrowed shares must be acquired in the future, so a decline in the short interest removes some of the "cushion" beneath the market.

The bond markets failed to make appreciable headway in either direction.

A five-week rise of corporates traded on the New York Stock Exchange came to a halt with the Associated Press average of 60 issues registering extremely small changes on both plus and minus sides. Over-all prices remained at about their highest level since June.

U.S. government bonds traded over the counter also were narrowly mixed. Almost half the list of issues remained unchanged from the previous week's close.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks declined sharply this week, closing 219.9 from 223.6 a week earlier. Led by food and livestock, the commodity index advanced this week to 164.3 from 163.8 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Domestic Business Takes A Back Seat

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — International aspects of business overshadowed domestic developments during the week.

Interest centered on tariff legislation and a discussion of the world's monetary problems in Washington.

The Senate passed President Kennedy's trade bill which he called "a bold new instrument" for opening new markets for American industry and creating a link with the European Common Market.

Success of the bill was considered Kennedy's greatest legislative victory. While minor differences in Senate and House versions had to be reconciled, there was little doubt that they would get together easily.

The legislation provides:

—Authority for the President to cut tariffs by 50 per cent.

—Authority for the President to negotiate elimination of duties on certain items. The United States and the Common Market account for 80 per cent of the world trade in these categories.

—Government relief to industries and workers hurt by foreign competition.

—Authority for the President to raise tariffs or impose quotas against a nation or group of nations putting unreasonable restrictions on U.S. products.

The fiscal discussions took place at a meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, in which representatives of 82 nations participated.

Kennedy told the delegates that, "Speculation against the dollar is losing its allure." He added that no extreme or restrictive measures are needed to cope with remaining problems.

The President urged other prosperous free nations to undertake more of the burden of financing underdeveloped countries, and said the United States should not bear it alone.

Meanwhile, some good news on the U.S. balance of payments situation came from the Commerce Department. It reported the deficit in the second quarter was $220 million, compared with $430 million in the first quarter and a quarterly average of more than $600 million last year.

On the domestic front, new economic reports were balanced between good and bad.

The Census Bureau said new private housing starts in August were at an annual rate of 1,521,000, a gain of five per cent from the July rate and up 15 per cent from a year earlier. Housing starts are watched carefully by economists as an indication of future demand for building materials, furnishings and appliances.

New orders received by durable goods manufacturing plants in August fell three per cent from July, the Commerce Department reported. Factory sales totaling $16.3 billion were unchanged from July.

Consumers will be paying higher prices for some things next year. Brown Shoe Co. said it will raise prices about one per cent on its spring line because of higher material costs. J. P. Stevens & Co. raised prices of worsted wool fabrics an average of 7½ cents a yard and said the boost probably would be reflected in 1963 fall men's suits.

Automobile production soared again during the week with an estimated 141,000 passenger cars coming off assembly lines, compared with 116,505 the previous week. The carmakers are entering the 1963 model year with sales moving at a brisk pace and inventories of 1962 models lower than a year ago.

Steel output during the week attained the highest rate since mid-May. Production of 1,682,000 tons was up 2.5 per cent from the previous Labor Day week. However, industry sources expressed doubt if September production would be up much, if any, from August because of slow orders.

Briefly around the business scene: Westinghouse Electric Corp. was awarded a $33-million contract for work on nuclear-powered submarines... Electricity sales next year are expected to reach 817 billion kilowatt hours, up 4.5 per cent from this year... Corning Glass Works says it has developed a chemical method of making extra-tough glass.

Ike Assails 'Debt Piling' By Kennedy

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower charged Saturday that "uncontrolled spending" by the Kennedy administration is piling up debts that will burden three generations of Americans.

Eisenhower, now 71, noted that President Kennedy had cautioned in a talk at Harrisburg, Pa., several days ago against returning to "stagnation and inaction" under Republican rule.

He defended his own administration as a progressive one, and said the only progress made under Kennedy has been "toward uncontrolled spending and toward regimentation."

Said the former president: "The budget gets worse and worse." He added that living costs are "our children and grandchildren will be paying debts we are now creating."

The average American, he said, now works 2½ hours each day "just to meet his tax bill."

He said when he was president, a $7.5-billion tax cut was instituted, inflation was checked, 10 million more people were placed under old-age insurance, and the space program was conceived.

"This hardly looks like stagnation," he snapped.

Here to boost the candidacies of Southern Republicans, Eisenhower spoke from the State House steps in downtown Columbia to a crowd that police estimated as 3,000. Rain fell until shortly before the former chief executive mounted the specially erected platform.

Eisenhower conferred with GOP candidates from South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida before his brief talk. He left immediately after his speech for Pinehurst, N.C., where he was met by North Carolina GOP leaders.

After a luncheon during which the former president spoke briefly, he watched the last 18 holes of the National Amateur Golf Tournament.

Eisenhower repeated much of his Columbia talk during his luncheon speech. However, he asserted that the nation's effort to put a man on the moon should be given a lower priority.

"Let's find out what is good on earth first," Eisenhower told the crowd of about 425 as he again spoke out against huge federal spending.

Eisenhower added, "Of course we should stay first in space." Then he said in its space effort "the United States has nothing to apologize for."

Memorial Funds Scholarship Is Scheduled

RUSTON (Special) — Announcement has been made here that Elmer E. Stroud, Jr., a graduate of Woodlawn High School in Shreveport, is the Louisiana Tech recipient of the John H. Laughlin Memorial Fund Scholarship.

Stroud is a freshman at Tech, majoring in social studies and education.

The scholarship amounts to the interest from a fund of $3,408.42 contributed by Tech alumni and others in tribute to the memory of John H. Laughlin, who was principal of the Werner Park Elementary School in Shreveport and a Tech graduate of 1946.

Laughlin was one of four naval air reservists who died when their anti - submarine plane fell into the Gulf of Mexico on Jan. 19, 1958.

The scholarship is subject to renewal. First to receive the award was Edward H. Ayres of Jonesboro.

When the son of the deceased, John H. Laughlin, Jr., enters college, the principal of the fund will go to him.

Rainach Urges Davis To Show Barnett Support

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Former State Sen. William Rainach of Louisiana said Saturday Gov. Jimmie Davis should "come to Mississippi now" and show the Kennedy administration Louisiana supports Gov. Ross Barnett.

Rainach, a Louisiana segregationist leader and unsuccessful candidate for governor, reportedly met with Barnett in an hour-long meeting.

Rainach said a "victory now at the University of Mississippi could be the turning point at which the whole sorry federal attack against the South is rolled back."

"Even though Governor Davis did not carry out his campaign promise to go to jail if necessary to preserve segregated schools in Louisiana," Rainach said, "he at least can come to Mississippi now —and by his presence let the Kennedy administration know that Louisiana stands solidly behind a governor who will go to jail to protect his people."

Barnett has been battling to keep the federal government from sending Negro James H. Meredith into the all-white University of Mississippi.

Passman Star Of News Show

Congressman Otto E. Passman and his critical views of foreign aid will be the subject of a special CBS-TV news report from Washington today at 10:30, central time.

Passman will be interviewed by CBS news specialist David Schoenbrun. The program will originate in Washington and will be carried by channel 8 in Monroe.

A CBS news and camera crew was in Monroe during the past week securing background information on Passman. Excerpts from the Monroe interviews were reported scheduled in the special report.

Oak Grove Man Named PAR Staffer

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Appointment of James Kelly Nix of Oak Grove as a research assistant for the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) was announced Saturday by Edward J. Steimel, executive director.

Nix is a native of Oak Grove, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Nix. After graduation from Oak Grove High School, he spent three years in the U. S. Army, with 31 months of service in Germany.

He completed his undergraduate work at Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe, and then recently received his master's degree from Louisiana State University in the field of government.

While doing his graduate work at LSU, Nix received a J. Kimbrough Owen Fellowship awarded by PAR and LSU.

Nix and his wife, the former Miss Jo Ann McCurdy of Lake Providence, and their daughter now reside in Baton Rouge.

INSTITUTE OPENS

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Walworth Barbour unveiled a bust Friday of Rep. Sol Bloom at the new Negev Institute for training youth instructors. The auditorium of the institute was named for the long-time chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee who died in 1949.

BY U.S. OFFICIALS

Penalties Urged For Secrecy Abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department should penalize personnel who use secrecy labels to hide from the public information that has no bearing on national security, the House Commerce Committee recommended Saturday.

The committee, adopting a report of its subcommittee on government information, also said the White House should put into effect an appeal mechanism to adjudicate alleged abuses of the security classification system.

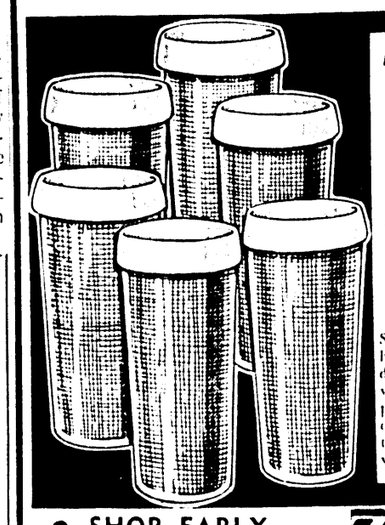

The study showed that Lee C. White, assistant special counsel to the President, has been designated as the individual in the White House to handle complaints about misuse of security labels under presidential orders.

But White told the subcommittee he has received no formal complaints so far. The report commented:

"The system was apparently enjoying the same desuetude it experienced in the previous administration."

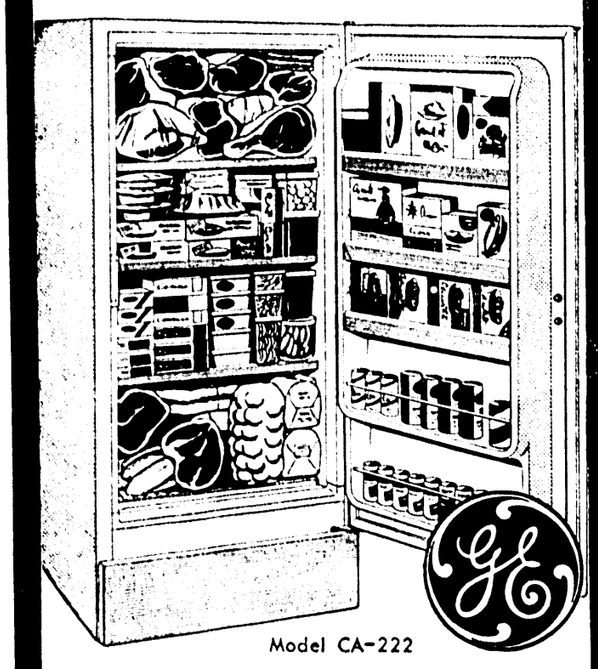

As to providing penalties for misuse of Pentagon security regulations, the report cited a slogan of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara: "When in doubt, underclassify."

He defended his own administration as a progressive one, and said the only progress made under Kennedy has been "toward uncontrolled spending and toward regimentation."

Said the former president: "The budget gets worse and worse." He added that living costs are "our children and grandchildren will be paying debts we are now creating."

The average American, he said, now works 2½ hours each day "just to meet his tax bill."

He said when he was president, a $7.5-billion tax cut was instituted, inflation was checked, 10 million more people were placed under old-age insurance, and the space program was conceived.

"This hardly looks like stagnation," he snapped.

Here to boost the candidacies of Southern Republicans, Eisenhower spoke from the State House steps in downtown Columbia to a crowd that police estimated as 8,000. Rain fell until shortly before the former chief executive mounted the specially erected platform.

Eisenhower conferred with GOP candidates from South Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida before his brief talk. He left immediately after his speech for Pinehurst, N.C., where he was met by North Carolina GOP leaders.

After a luncheon during which the former president spoke briefly, he watched the last 18 holes of the National Amateur Golf Tournament.

Eisenhower repeated much of his Columbia talk during his luncheon speech. However, he asserted that the nation's effort to put a man on the moon should be given a lower priority.

"Let's find out what is good on earth first," Eisenhower told the crowd of about 425 as he again spoke out against huge federal spending.

Eisenhower added, "Of course we should stay first in space." Then he said in its space effort "the United States has nothing to apologize for."

Memorial Funds Scholarship Is Scheduled

RUSTON (Special) — Announcement has been made here that Elmer E. Stroud, Jr., a graduate of Woodlawn High School in Shreveport, is the Louisiana Tech recipient of the John H. Laughlin Memorial Fund Scholarship.

Stroud is a freshman at Tech, majoring in social studies and education.

The scholarship amounts to the interest from a fund of $3,408.42 contributed by Tech alumni and others in tribute to the memory of John H. Laughlin, who was principal of the Werner Park Elementary School in Shreveport and a Tech graduate of 1946.

Laughlin was one of four naval air reservists who died when their anti - submarine plane fell into the Gulf of Mexico on Jan. 19, 1958.

The scholarship is subject to renewal. First to receive the award was Edward H. Ayres of Jonesboro.

When the son of the deceased, John H. Laughlin, Jr., enters college, the principal of the fund will go to him.

Rainach Urges Davis To Show Barnett Support

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Former State Sen. William Rainach of Louisiana said Saturday Gov. Jimmie Davis should "come to Mississippi now" and show the Kennedy administration Louisiana supports Gov. Ross Barnett.

Rainach, a Louisiana segregationist leader and unsuccessful candidate for governor, reportedly met with Barnett in an hour-long meeting.

Rainach said a "victory now at the University of Mississippi could be the turning point at which the whole sorry federal attack against the South is rolled back."

"Even though Governor Davis did not carry out his campaign promise to go to jail if necessary to preserve segregated schools in Louisiana," Rainach said, "he at least can come to Mississippi now—and by his presence let the Kennedy administration know that Louisiana stands solidly behind a governor who will go to jail to protect his people."

Barnett has been battling to keep the federal government from sending Negro James H. Meredith into the all-white University of Mississippi.

Passman Star Of News Show

Congressman Otto E. Passman and his critical views of foreign aid will be the subject of a special CBS-TV news report from Washington today at 10:30, central time.

Passman will be interviewed by CBS news specialist David Schoenbrun. The program will originate in Washington and will be carried by channel 8 in Monroe.

A CBS news and camera crew was in Monroe during the past week securing background information on Passman. Excerpts from the Monroe interviews were reported scheduled in the special report.

Oak Grove Man Named PAR Staffer

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Appointment of James Kelly Nix of Oak Grove as a research assistant for the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) was announced Saturday by Edward J. Steimel, executive director.

Nix is a native of Oak Grove, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Nix. After graduation from Oak Grove High School, he spent three years in the U. S. Army, with 31 months of service in Germany.

He completed his undergraduate work at Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe, and then recently received his master's degree from Louisiana State University in the field of government.

While doing his graduate work at LSU, Nix received a J. Kimbrough Owen Fellowship awarded by PAR and LSU.

Nix and his wife, the former Miss Jo Ann McCurdy of Lake Providence, and their daughter now reside in Baton Rouge.

INSTITUTE OPENS

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Walworth Barbour unveiled a bust Friday of Rep. Sol Bloom at the new Negev Institute for training youth instructors. The auditorium of the institute was named for the longtime chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee who died in 1949.

BY U.S. OFFICIALS

Penalties Urged For Secrecy Abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department should penalize personnel who use secrecy labels to hide from the public information that has no bearing on national security, the House Commeece Committee recommended Saturday.

The committee, adopting a report of its subcommittee on government information, also said the White House should put into effect an appeal mechanism to adjudicate alleged abuses of the security classification system.

The study showed that Lee C. White, assistant special counsel to the President, has been designated as the individual in the White House to handle complaints about misuse of security labels under presidential orders.

But White told the subcommittee he has received no formal complaints so far. The report commented:

"The system was apparently enjoying the same desuetude it experienced in the previous administration."

As to providing penalties for misuse of Pentagon security regulations, the report cited a slogan of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara: "When in doubt, underclassify."

14 Houses Scheduled In Home Parade

Fourteen houses representing a variety of structural designs and materials are being readied for the annual Parade of Homes opening in the Twin Cities on the weekend of Sept. 29-30.

Parade of Homes committee chairman, Wallace Reitzell, said Saturday that the event will coincide with National Home Week.

The show opening on the last Saturday and Sunday in September, will hold its finale on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 6-7. The homes will be open for public inspection during the hours of 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. on the days scheduled.

The show is under sponsorship of the Northeast Louisiana Association of Homebuilders, of which W. E. "Red" Gross is president.

Reitzell said that the show will feature homes ranging from moderate prices up to $35,000. He added that "they will feature the newest in home building developments and features."

In keeping with past response to the event, officials said that a large turnout of visitors is expected during the two weekends.

Plan books showing all of the homes in the parade will be available to visitors at the show.

Representatives of builders will be present at all of the display houses to answer questions of visitors.

Curtain Call

Pending announcement of the entire cast of "The Solid Gold Cadillac," now in rehearsal at Strauss Playhouse, it is good news that Jo Brian will play the leading role of Mrs. Laura Partridge. Made famous on Broadway by Josephine Hull, this long and demanding part gives Jo full scope for her theatrical talent.

In earlier appearances on our stage, she scored as the dowager empress in "Anastasia," as the feminine lead in "Janus," and as Mrs. Van Daan in "The Diary of Anne Frank." Jo, of course, is the wife of George Brian, so her interest in theatre comes naturally.

Seen at rehearsals during the early part of last week were Betty Bandy, Joanne Lay, Nancy and Beryl Franklin, Ruth and Larry Shipman, Mrs. C. H. McHenry, Mrs. L. H. Carter, Norman Jones, Dorothy Gentry, Dick Grider, Jim Nuckels, Dewayne May, Bob Pearson, Jan Evans, Susan Odom, Janice Hattaway, Bill Blythe and Charles DePoe. We also welcomed Harold Evans of the Tacoma Little Theatre.

TOTAL CLIMBING

The patron total is now hovering around the 150 mark, not far from last season's 158 which, needless to say, we would like to surpass it. Every year at this time some last minute patron memberships come in and it will help assure listing in the program if they are reported without delay to Mrs. Carter at FAirfax 3-8509.

The program is now being laid out preparatory to going to press. For the third successive year, Olin's packaging division has donated the special opaque lightweight paper for which we are indeed grateful.

We have a plea from H. H. "Grandpa" Nobes. He asks that people to whom he sent membership application blanks return them to him soon in the stamped envelopes which he provided for this purpose.

Returns from the mailing of the brochure are beginning to arrive. The annual membership campaign would be made much easier if everybody who wants to join Little Theatre would sit down and mail his check right away to Box 866 and help us avoid the rush that we will otherwise experience just before the first play opens.

HELPERS

To complete the list of those who worked so hard to address and mail the brochure, we must add the names of Winkie Ashcraft, Mary Eason, Mary Ellison, Bess Foster, Robbie Kennon, Velma and Russ Kettenring, Mrs. Ted Landry, Rosalind Liebreich, Mary Marchaneaux, Hilda McDonald, Kitty Oliver, Vicki Porter and Claude Russell.

Helping to man the Little Theatre jeep on the Northeast campus last Wednesday and Thursday were Janice Hattaway, Gail Sawyer, Bettie Gibbs, Ruth Shipman and Judy Evans. A number of student memberships were signed on the spot as a preliminary to the solicitation being conducted by various faculty members interested in Little Theatre. The nominal membership fee and low admission charges for students should make Strauss Playhouse a popular medium of entertainment for the high school and college crowd in our area.

Mrs. Lillie Harrington, a former treasurer of the Monroe Little Theatre, attended the leading music festivals in the course of a European tour this summer.

And that new noise in the skies over Monroe is a Bell helicopter just acquired by life patron B. W. Biedenharn who is having the time of his life piloting the craft hither and yon. If we just had a heliport at Strauss Playhouse, it would make it so much easier for Betty and Bernard to get to our plays from their farm.

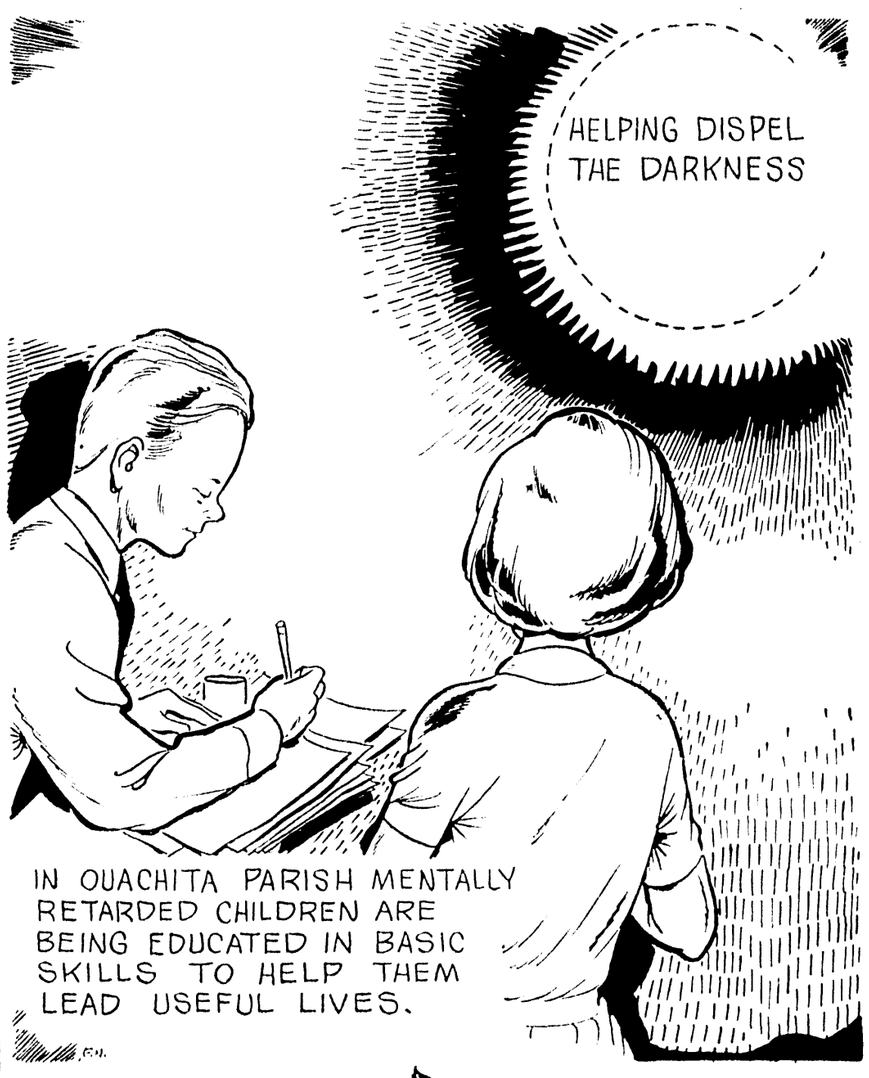

Remember, secure your 1962-63 membership in Little Theatre right away.

Realtors Set For Meeting In Shreveport

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Shreveport will host an estimated 500 realtors October 4-6 when the Louisiana Realtors Association holds its annual convention at the Captain Shreve Hotel.

R. M. Gochenour, president of the Monroe - West Monroe Real Estate Board, said a large delegation will attend the convention from his Association.

Heading the list of speakers at the meeting will be Arthur P. Wilcox, of Boston, Mass., president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Wilcox became a director of NAREB in 1951 and has been active in a variety of executive offices since that time. He has been a member of the Realtors Washington Committee, the governmental relations arm of the Association since 1951.

He is also a prominent Boston banker and civic leader.

Other speakers on the convention agenda include Frances H. Mazurk of Chicago, president of the Women's Council of NAREB; Charles L. Lapp, Ph. D., professor of marketing at Washington University in St. Louis; John C. Williamson of Washington, D.C., director of the Department of Governmental Relations of NAREB and secretary - council of RWC; E. T. Compere, Jr., of Abilene, Tex., president of the Texas Real Estate Association and Bob Murphey of Nacogdoches, Tex., attorney and counselor.

The convention begins Thursday Oct. 4. First day events include a golf tournament at the Shreveport Country Club, women's governing council and general business sessions and a board of directors meeting.

On Friday, Oct. 5, morning sessions will include breakfast, six separate panel discussions and a general session keynoted by Dr. Lapp. Friday afternoon's sessions will include addresses by Murphey and Williamson, several panel discussions and election of officers.

The Oct. 6 schedule includes a general session which will include the installation of new officers.

Wilcos will be the featured attraction at the final session, a noon luncheon.

The convention committee, all of Shreveport, includes Darrel V. Willet, state president; Louise Quarles, executive secretary; Frank W. Grigsby, general convention chairman; Vy Roberts, program printing and publicity; Bertha M. Sweeney, entertainment; Taylor G. Smith, reception and arrangements; Helen B. Marak, displays; Charles T. Hall, registrations and reservations; O. L. Jordan, general advisory; Gertrude Weyman, women's activities; Tom Dupree, golf tournament; and J. Wesley Dowling, treasurer.

Need For Space Defenses Cited

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert warned yesterday of "possible threats to our security" from space levels at which the Soviet Union operates.

He suggested that the X15 and X20 rocket planes may lead to craft which could combat such a threat. Another possibility, he said, "might be the permanently manned orbital space station designed for military purposes."

The possible threat, Zuckert told the Air Force Association convention, is in the "near orbital stage of space." This area, in which most present-day satellites whirl, is within 100 miles or so of the earth's surface.

Zuckert said the recent Soviet feat of placing two spacecraft in close orbits "seemed to indicate the need" for development of such weapons.

"The X15 rocket plane already has reached an altitude of almost 60 miles in flight from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. Eventually it may go as high as 75 miles or even 100 miles with modification.

"The X20 Dyna-Soar is scheduled to begin manned flights into 100-mile-high orbit in 1965, boosted from Cape Canaveral, Fla., by a Titan III rocket now under development.

Zuckert said both the Air Force and the secretary of defense recognize the need for a standardized workhorse launch vehicle.

"That is why the Titan III project was recently approved and we are giving it our wholehearted support," he said. "It will cost the American taxpayer about a billion dollars to develop this vehicle. The Titan III represents an important step forward in focusing, rather than spreading, our efforts."

Plans for the Titan III call for a booster of more than 2½ million pounds of thrust. The vehicle would consist of a liquid fuel Titan II intercontinental missile with two solid fuel rockets of one million pounds each strapped on each side.

While the Titan III may be used to launch other vehicles, it is being studied as a booster for the X20. It is designed to be able to blast the 10 to 15,000-pound X20 and its single occupant into one or more orbits of approximately 100 miles altitude.

Israeli Says Missile Race Hits Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel's finance minister said Saturday night "the missile race has entered the Middle East" and Israel must be prepared to defend itself "no matter what the cost."

In a speech prepared for a dinner session of the three-day National Planning Conference of the Israel Bond Organization, Finance Minister Levi Eshkol warned of a threat from the United Arab Republic.

"When Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser stands by Egyptian rocket launchers and boasts they are trained in our direction, we dare not mistake this for an idle propaganda boast," he said.

"Let no one mistake our purpose," Eshkol told some 500 members of the conference, "We are determined to avoid war, but not at the cost of national suicide."

The conference, which is making plans for the fall Israel bond sale drive, heard Eshkol outline a four-fold challenge facing Israel — including the stream of new mass immigration to the tiny Jewish state, its own continuing needs to develop its resources, including the Negev Desert, and the problems it faces from the European Common Market.

Soviet Planes Fly Often Over Japan

TOKYO (UPI)—The Soviet Union, which charged this week that an American U2 plane flew over Soviet-held Sakhalin Island, makes an average of three reconnaissance flights a week over Japan from the same island, Japanese defense sources said.

Japan probably has its territory violated by Russian flights more than any other nation. The flights have become so frequent that the air corridors along the Japanese Pacific coast are called "Mig Alley" by the weary Japanese air self-defense force pilots who are sent up to check on the flights day after day.

The sources said the Sakhalin-based flights were increased last May and Japanese bases have been on an around the clock standby alert since then.

There have never been actual interceptions reported, because the Russians are believed to fly at altitudes the Japanese planes cannot reach.

The reconnaissance flights, the sources say, are flown by Soviet Mig 21 planes, which have a maximum altitude of 60,000 feet (about 1,000 feet less than the U2). The Japanese are flying U.S.-built F36D jet fighters, with a maximum altitude of 53,000 feet.

The sources say the flights are usually picked up first by the U.S.-built Japanese radar station at remote Wakkani on the northern tip of Hokkaido. Hakkaido, the northernmost of the main Japanese Islands, is separated from southern Sakhalin by the 50-mile wide Soya Strait.

The sources say the flights invariably follow a set pattern—swinging down along Japan's east coast past Tokyo and Yokohama and then back up along an alternate route further out over the Pacific.

All the major Japanese and three of the four U.S. Air Force support and operational bases in Japan lie along the route.

Officially, the U.S. Air Force won't say to what extent it is involved in monitoring the flights but sources say the U.S. is becomingly increasingly concerned over the flights.

There has been speculation the planes are on mapping missions of Japanese and U.S. bases and key industrial centers for information needed for guiding Soviet missiles known to be based on Sakhalin.

The Soviets have never had an occasion to either deny or acknowledge the flights simply because the Japanese government has never brought the issue into the open. No protests have been filed.

Judge Grants Continuance In Partin Hearing

BATON ROUGE (AP) — U.S. Dist. Judge E. Gordon West granted attorneys a continuance when business manager Ed G. Partin of the teamsters Local No. 5 here failed to appear for a court hearing.

The union official was scheduled for a hearing for alleged violation of the federal labor management reporting and disclosure act.

The judge warned Ossie Brown, Partin's counsel, "I am giving you fair warning. When I set a date for a hearing, I expect Mr. Partin to be here."

Brown had been expected to submit a number of motions seeking dismissal of the indictment, a bill of particulars, and other steps, and a transfer of the case to another court — probably in New Orleans.

Partin faces 13 counts of embezzlement and 13 counts of falsification of union records.

Boone Ends TV Gun Play This Season

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Richard Boone is turning in his holster, sidearms, horse and business cards this year as he retires from the travelling gunman business.

As "Paladin," sophisticated, talkative hero of "Have Gun Will Travel," Boone has ridden and fought his way over thousands of television's western miles during the past six years.

Now he's quitting the route, having killed scores of fictional foes on video, and made more than a million real dollars doing it.

There have been 226 episodes of "Have Gun" filmed since the show went on the air five years ago. Boone has appeared in all but two segments.

Winds Up Show

He has two more shows under production which will wind up the series' sixth and final season which ends next spring.

"CBS has the right to make five more episodes," Boone said. "That's fine. If they want to I'll be happy to."

Boone starred in the "Medic" series before getting the role as a travelling avenger and protector of innocent on "Have Gun," a show he calls "the biggest thing in my career so far."

There is a difference between Boone's adventures and those of other western stars — a difference in characterization, locale and plot situations. The show has humor, tragedy, adventure and situations which require logic and intelligence rather than a gun.

"I think it differed in that the central character was more mature and sophisticated than most western heroes," Boone explained. "It gave the writers a chance to come up with something they liked.

"The show was never made on the basis of what 'the people' liked. It was made on the basis of our own taste and what we thought was good. It seems to me the cliches come into a show when somebody sets out to do a show 'the people will love.'"

Boone is working on plans for another television show, an anthology series. He's also discussing shows with all three television networks and producers of movies and plays.

But if nothing comes along right away, Boone has nothing to worry about. He has a contract with CBS which calls for him to be paid $1.3 million for his services and ownership rights of "Have Gun," the money to be paid over a 30 year period.

"Every January 10 it goes 'bang' like you hit the jackpot," he said of his payment plan. "It goes for 20 years."

GETS EDUCATION

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Charley Bayley, 80, credits television with helping him get an education. "I got so sick of the programs, that one night I shut the thing down, left my house, signed up at a night school," he said. That was five years ago and how he holds certificates of proficiency in English, French, mathematics and Latin.

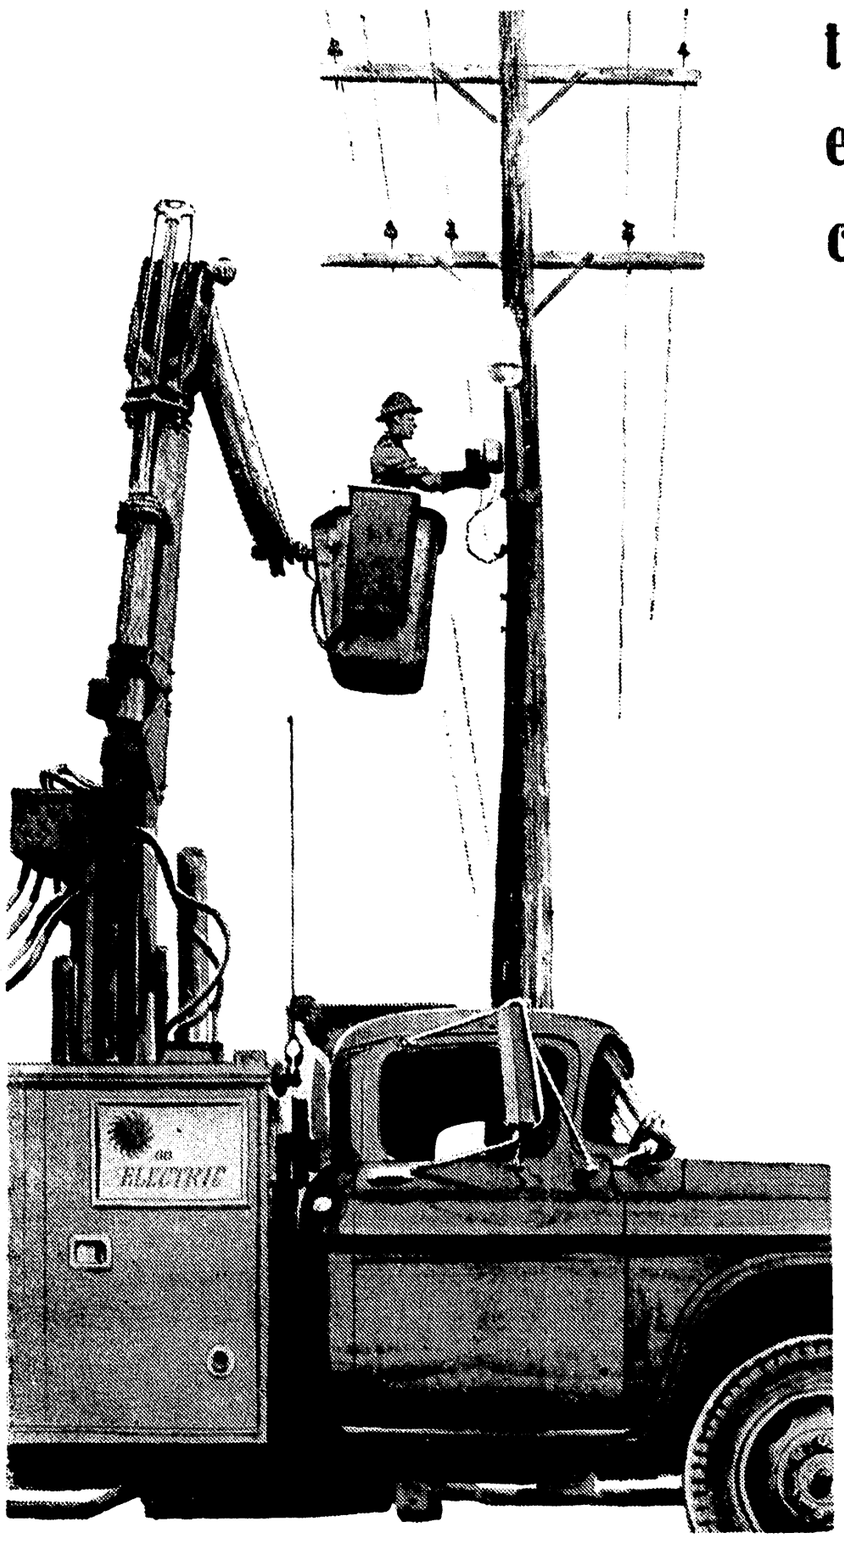

Boone is undoutedly one of the highest paid, and honest, gunmen in history.

Pioneers in rural electrification
the investor-owned electric light and power companies of Louisiana

Back in 1916, rural electrification was born in Louisiana when an investor-owned electric company built power lines to serve farms in Caddo and Bossier parishes. Today, practically all Louisiana farms have electricity. And Louisiana's investor-owned electric companies serve rural customers in all 64 parishes.
Rural electrification brings better living to Louisiana's farms and greater prosperity to everyone. Electricity helps farmers produce and earn more. And city merchants and businessmen benefit because rural electrification enables rural families to become better customers.
The investor-owned electric companies are proud of their part in bringing rural electrification to Louisiana. They continue to build ahead to assure modern electric service for their rural customers in the future.

THIRD IN A ROW

District Drilling Activity Up

Drilling in the Monroe Oil & Gas District pushed to new highs for the third successive time last week, as Manager Duncan S. Cook reported a new total of 18 completions over the 14 - parish area.

Four of the finals were in Ouachita Parish, all in the Monroe Field, as were five wells in Morehouse Parish and four more in Union. All were drilled to relatively shallow levels, around 2000 ft., for gas. Catahoula Parish reported four completions, and Concordia, one.

Drilling showed no sign of a fall abatement as reports showed a total of 32 new locations —two of them in the Monroe Field again of Ouachita Parish. Catahoula and Concordia Parishes listed seven each.

Of a total of 29 rigs listed as actively drilling or testing, three were to be found in Ouachita Parish, one each in the Calhoun, Cheniere and Monroe Fields. Seven were in Tensas Parish.

There was one recompletion during the week, that in the Baskinton Field of Franklin Parish—Murphy - Sun's Paul Zachry No. 1 in section 22-16-8E.

Boost In Domestic Plant Capacity Seen Over Years

By MAX B. SKELTO N

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Domestic oil refiners, despite problems of oversupply, are expected to boost plant capacities sharply the next 12 years.

An annual survey made by Petroleum Refiner Magazine indicates the nation's oil refining capacity will jump from 10,500,000 barrels a day to 1,500,000 by 1975. barrels a day to 16,500,000 by 1975.

Editors of the publication acknowledge such expansions may seem a bit out of line with current trends.

They explain the situation this way:

"While the current ratio of crude runs to stills to total capacity does not seem to indicate a need for increased capacity, the industry must keep three to four years ahead in its planning to provide for future demand."

An even sharper growth is expected in other free world areas.

Total capacity in western hemisphere areas outside the United States is forecast to jump from 1961's 4,300,000 barrels a day to 9,000,000 by 1975.

Western Europe is expected to boost its capacity from 4,600,000 to 10,200,000 barrels daily.

Other free world eastern hemishere areas, excluding Western Europe, are expected to boost their combined capacity from 3,000,000 to 6,600,000 barrels daily.

The magazine estimates free world expansion projects planned by the hydrocarbon processing industry for 1963 will cost $4,080,000,000, compared to $3,900,000,000 this year.

These proposed expenditures include petrochemical and gas processing projects as well as oil refining.

Domestic oil refiners plan to spend $540,000,000, but other free world areas plan to spend $1,050,000,000.

"For the past 10 years, countries outside the U.S. have been adding refining capacity at about twice the rate of U.S. growth, the magazine's special report said.

"Recent U.S. refining expenditures have gone mostly toward increasing the efficiency and output of present units and into product improvement."

Market competition, the report said, is making the refiner push his product to higher standard of quality.

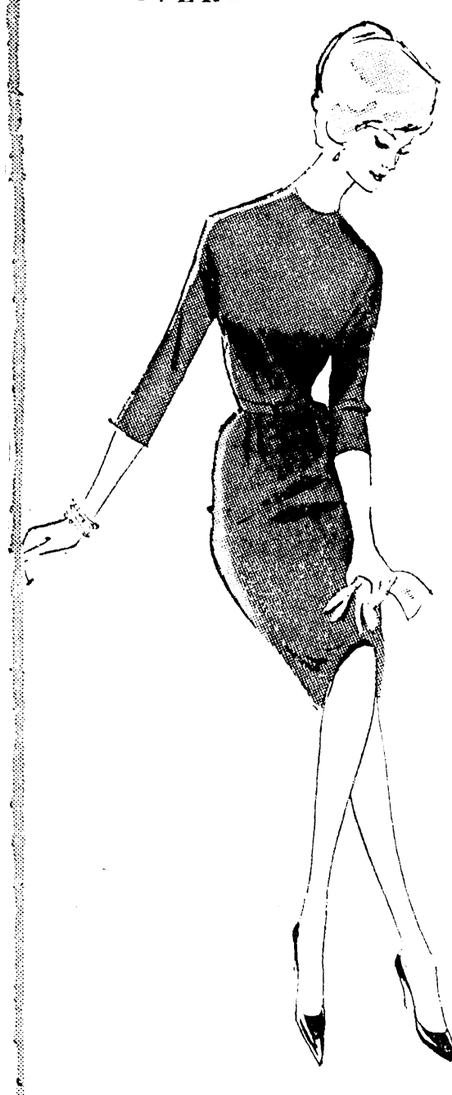

"Cleanliness and octane sensitivity are the big factors," the report said. "During the next five years, premium gasoline octane rating will rise about one octane, but regular gasoline will rise about two and a half octanes. This will mean a further upgrading of existing processes."

An expenditure of $1,180,000,000 is indicated next year for U.S. petrochemical plant expansions. Other areas are expected to spend $1,000,000,000.

Projects boosting capacities of is for oil and petrochemical companies to expand to reach the ultimate consumer through more finished products.

THIRD IN A ROW

District Drilling Activity Up

Drilling in the Monroe Oil & Gas District pushed to new highs for the third successive time last week, as Manager Duncan S. Cook reported a new total of 18 completions over the 14 - parish area.

Four of the finals were in Ouachita Parish, all in the Monroe Field, as were five wells in Morehouse Parish and four more in Union. All were drilled to relatively shallow levels, around 2000 ft., for gas. Catahoula Parish reported four completions, and Concordia, one.

Drilling showed no sign of a fall abatement as reports showed a total of 32 new locations —two of them in the Monroe Field again of Ouachita Parish. Catahoula and Concordia Parishes listed seven each.

Of a total of 29 rigs listed as actively drilling or testing, three were to be found in Ouachita Parish, one each in the Calhoun, Cheniere and Monroe Fields. Seven were in Tensas Parish.

There was one recompletion during the week, that in the Baskinton Field of Franklin Parish—Murphy - Sun's Paul Zachry No. 1 in section 22-16-8E.

Cook's report for the week read as follows:

Boost In Domestic Plant Capacity Seen Over Years

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Domestic oil refiners, despite problems of oversupply, are expected to boost plant capacities sharply the next 12 years.

An annual survey made by Petroleum Refiner Magazine indicates the nation's oil refining capacity will jump from 10,500,000 barrels a day to 1,500,000 by 1975. barrels a day to 16,500,000 by 1975.

Editors of the publication acknowledge such expansions may seem a bit out of line with current trends.

They explain the situation this way:

"While the current ratio of crude runs to stills to total capacity does not seem to indicate a need for increased capacity, the industry must keep three to four years ahead in its planning to provide for future demand."

An even sharper growth is expected in other free world areas.

Total capacity in western hemisphere areas outside the United States is forecast to jump from 19$1's 4,300,000 barrels a day to 9,000,000 by 1975.

Western Europe is expected to boost its capacity from 4,600,000 to 10,200,000 barrels daily.

Other free world eastern hemishere areas, excluding Western Europe, are expected to boost their combined capacity from 3,000,000 to 6,600,000 barrels daily.

The magazine estimates free world expansion projects planned by the hydrocarbon processing industry for 1963 will cost $4,080,000,000, compared to $3,900,000,000 this year.

These proposed expenditures include petrochemical and gas processing projects as well as oil refining.

Domestic oil refiners plan to spend $540,000,000, but other free world areas plan to spend $1,050,000,000.

"For the past 10 years, countries outside the U.S. have been adding refining capacity at about twice the rate of U.S. growth, the magazine's special report said.

"Recent U.S. refining expenditures have gone mostly toward increasing the efficiency and output of present units and into product improvement."

Market competition, the report ssid, is making the refiner push his product to higher standard of quality.

"Cleanliness and octane sensitivity are the big factors," the report said. "During the next five years, premium gasoline octane rating will rise about one octane, but regular gasoline will rise about two and a half octanes. This will mean a further upgrading of existing processes."

An expenditure of $1,180,000,000 is indicated next year for U.S. petrochemical plant expansions. Other areas are expected to spend $1,000,000,000.

Projects boosting capacities of is for oil and petrochemical companies to expand to reach the ultimate consumer through more finished products.

Tanks, Jets Drive Rivals From Capital

Constitution Plaza in the heart of the city.

Many casualties were reported in the fighting during the crisp spring afternoon but no one, in the confusion, could estimate them.

Lorio-Labayru forces were reported either surrendering or refusing to fight in the face of overwhelming odds. They held only two positions in the capital by nightfall — one in the War Secretariat Building itself and in Avellandea Park.

The major surrender came after the aerial bombardment of troops in position at the city's sprawling Chacabuco Park.

"We are alone," said the surrendering officer.

Troops holding out in Avellandea Park and the Secretariat did not appear to have the strength to keep the pro-Guido forces under Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania from sweeping up the entire capital.

Maj. Horacio Guglielmone, Liaison officer for the pro-Guido forces, said opposing troops were surrendering throughout the country. Many of them, he said, refused to fight after Guido, who switched sides overnight, got support from the air force and ordered their unconditional surrender.

Ongania launched his rebellion last Tuesday, charging that Guido was a prisoner of military leaders in his cabinet. He also charged they planned to set up a military dictatorship to block elections.

The military leaders had expressed fears elections would boost Peronism and turn Argentina to the left. The military ousted Arturo Frondizi as president in March because of Peronist election victories.

Guido at first denounced Ongania, but switched to his side Friday.

The all-important navy joined up with Lorio-Labayru forces but failed to go into action. A navy spokesman said the navy decision came too late to stop the fast-advancing tank columns from Ongania's crack mechanized cavalry garrison in nearby Campo de Mayo.

Ongania's tanks surrounded the War Secretariat with its last remaining loyalist troops. But they took no immediate action against it.

MAKES ACCUSATION

Garrett Says Dodd Seeks Negro Votes

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Rep. John Garrett, legislative segregation chairman, Saturday night accused President William J. Dodd of the Louisiana Board of education of reaching for the Negro bloc vote in submitting a trade school plan for race mixing.

"He is now running for state superintendent of education," said the Claiborne Parish lawmaker, "and he is vying for the Negro bloc vote—as indicated in his actions in submitting a plan to desegregate trade schols."

Dodd earlier branded Garrett "a deliberate liar" or "an ill-informed nincompoop" for saying Dodd voluntarily had submitted to the federal court here a desegregation plan for six trade schools under federal court orders to admit Negroes.

The education board supervises public school education, nine state colleges and 27 trade schools.

A six-man quorum of the 11-member education board Friday backed Dodd by reaffirming a trade school desegregation resolution brought about by the federal courts when 13 top educators, including Dodd, State Education Supt. Shelby M. Jackson, and the board, were cited for contempt.

The six trade schools were ordered desegregated in 1960. The federal contempt action came when the educators were accused of failure to obey.

Solons Propose Congress Group On Procedures

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Congress struggling to finish a snail-paced election-year session, eight of its members said Saturday that the time has come for Congress "to put its own house in order."

They announced they will introduce Monday in the Senate and the House resolutions to set up a "joint committee on the organization of the Congress for the modernization of congressional procedures."

In a joint statement, the bipartisan group of six senators and two House members said that "the improvement of congressional procedures is an urgent national need."

"Adjournment has come at progressively later dates in recent years," they said. "More and more serious legislative proposals have failed to receive consideration.

"It is increasingly evident to all serious students of Congress that the rules, procedures and customs under which both chambers now operate must be modernized.

Senator Tessier Urges Defeat Of Amendment

BATON ROUGE (AP) — State Sen. George Tessier, the top sponsor of a constitutional amendment which would prevent any person who is a candidate from serving as an election official, said Saturday he would ask for its defeat.

Tessier, of New Orleans, said it had been discovered the proposal, if adopted in the Nov. 6 general election, inadvertently would cripple election machinery.

Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr., already had alerted parish clerks of court, who serve as parish custodians of voting machines, the proposal would have the effect of blocking them from functioning as custodians during elections in which they were candidates.

The attorney general's office has confirmed that the proposal would bar clerks from their election duties in future elections.

Under state law, parish clerks serve as the parish custodians, and the clerks face election every four years.

Tessier said amendments he did not sponsor, made his proposal ambiguous.

fifth district of Louisiana that Passman's personal popularity, as well as that of his stand on most congressional issues, assure the congressman of a lifetime career in Washington if he wants it.

Asked recently if he had any hope of advancing to national prominence in the political arena, Passman answered: "I'm more interested at this time in what I can do in Congress to trim wasteful spending in the best interest of our national solvency and a sound foreign policy."

Several years ago he toyed with the idea of seeking Louisiana's governorship. However, his lack of faith in the political king-makers in the state at the time and his growing influence in Congress kept him from the candidates circle in his home state.

The congressman has said privately that after two more terms in Congress he may not seek re-election, but step down and support a younger man for the post.

However, those who know him best feel that Passman's boundless energy will never permit him to "step down" to a sedate retirement.

ARGENTINA CONFLICT

Guido Switches Sides In Crisis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Argentina's military struggle turned topsy-turvey overnight. What started as a rebellion of one armored garrison has split the armed forces down the middle and engaged them in virtual civil war. President Jose Maria Guido has switched sides.

Six days ago, Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, commander of a crack garrison of mechanized cavalry at Campo de Mayo, outside Buenos Aires, issued a charge that Guido was in effect a parisoner-president, whose decisions were made by army generals in the War Secretariat.

Ongania declared his garrison in rebellion to force early elections and restore the nation to constitutional government.

Ongania charged the generals planned to set up a military dictatorship in Argentina.

In a nutshell, Ongania billed his rebellion as a move to free Guido from military chains.

At first Guido denounced the rebellion and stuck by War Secretary Gen. Jose Cornejo Saravia, army commander-in-chief Gen. Juan Carlos Lorio, and chief of staff Gen. Bernardino Labayru.

But Guido's denunciation was not enough to stop Ongania. Tank columns moved toward Buenos Aires in support of the rebellion.

Saravia and his colleagues—then known as the loyalists—alerted their forces and demanded that Guido issue an order for an all-out attack on Campo de Mayo. Guido refused.

During the feuding between Guido and the War Secretariat, Ongania's rebels gained valuable time to consolidate their forces. They gained the upper hand Friday.

Then Giudo switched from Saravia's loyalists to Ongania's rebels.

Saravia resigned and Guido took command of loyalist forces and ordered them to attack Ongania's troops throughout the country.

The War Secretariat generals oppose early elections as demanded by Ongania.

How come chicken's so cheap?

The price of chicken has DROPPED more than a cent a pound each year since World War II while most everything has gone way up. And any lover of fried chicken will tell you it's better eating than ever. What's responsible for this more-for-the-money miracle in America?

Well, one reason is the fast-growing poultry industry was developed in areas mostly served by rural electric systems. Eager to put electricty to work, to improve efficiency and production, farmers got rid of the traditional old red rooster and his twenty wives. Poultry farming has become a mass-production business.

Today, push-button electricity lets one farm worker tend 30,000 chickens, feed 500 cattle, or milk 50 cows. (And there usually isn't a rooster on the place.)

This sort of efficiency lowers food production costs . . . just part of your stake in rural electrification. Electronic farming is helping double the demands for rural electricity every six years. Already farmers use more power than Chicago, Baltimore, Boston, Detroit and New Orleans combined.

Without REA loans, which are being repaid with interest ahead of schedule (about like FHA and VA home loans), rural electrics could not build heavier lines to supply the growing need for power in rural Louisiana... so important to continued rural development and both town and country progress.

Adequate rural power at reasonable cost helps safeguard the low-price tag on your high standard of living. This is just one of the many reasons why Louisiana's home-owned and managed Electric Cooperatives are good for all our citizens . . . No matter where they live.

Independent, non-profit, Electric Cooperatives are the only way ALL rural people can continue to have electricity at rates ALL can afford.

Just think what that means to Louisiana's economy—to both town and country prosperity!

The military leaders had expressed fears elections would boost Peronism and turn Argentina to the left. The military ousted Arturo Frondizi as president in March because of Peronist election victories.

Guido at first denounced Ongania, but switched to his side Friday.

The all-important navy joined up with Lorio-Labayru forces but failed to go into action. A navy spokesman said the navy decision came too late to stop the fast-advancing tank columns from Ongania's crack mechanized cavalry garrison in nearby Campo de Mayo.

Ongania's tanks surrounded the War Secretariat with its last remaining loyalist troops. But they took no immediate action against it.

MAKES ACCUSATION

Garrett Says Dodd Seeks Negro Votes

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Rep. John Garrett, legislative segregation chairman, Saturday night accused President William J. Dodd of the Louisiana Board of education of reaching for the Negro bloc vote in submitting a trade school plan for race mixing.

"He is now running for state superintendent of education," said the Claiborne Parish lawmaker, "and he is vying for the Negro bloc vote—as indicated in his actions in submitting a plan to desegregate trade schols."

Dodd earlier branded Garrett "a deliberate liar" or "an ill-informed nincompoop" for saying Dodd voluntarliy had submitted to the federal court here a desegregation plan for six trade schools under federal court orders to admit Negroes.

The education board supervises public school education, nine state colleges and 27 trade schools.

A six-man quorum of the 11-member education board Friday backed Dodd by reaffirming a trade school desegregation resolution brought about by the federal courts when 13 top educators, including Dodd, State Education Supt. Shelby M. Jackson, and the board, were cited for contempt.

The six trade schools were ordered desegregated in 1960. The federal contempt action came when the educators were accused of failure to obey.

Solons Propose Congress Group On Procedures

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Congress struggling to finish a snail-paced election-year session, eight of its members said Saturday that the time has come for Congress "to put its own house in order."

They announced they will introduce Monday in the Senate and the House resolutions to set up a "joint committee on the organization of the Congress for the modernization of congressional procedures."

In a joint statement, the bipartisan group of six senators and two House members said that "the improvement of congressional procedures is an urgent national need."

"Adjournment has come at progressively later dates in recent years," they said. "More and more serious legislative proposals have failed to receive consideration.

"It is increasingly evident to all serious students of Congress that the rules, procedures and customs under which both chambers now operate must be modernized.

Senator Tessier Urges Defeat Of Amendment

BATON ROUGE (AP) — State Sen. George Tessier, the top sponsor of a constitutional amendment which would prevent any person who is a candidate from serving as an election official, said Saturday he would ask for its defeat.

Tessier, of New Orleans, said it had been discovered the proposal, if adopted in the Nov. 6 general election, inadvertently would cripple election machinery.

Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr., already had alerted parish clerks of court, who serve as parish custodians of voting machines, the proposal would have the effect of blocking them from functioning as custodians during elections in which they were candidates.

The attorney general's office has confirmed that the proposal would bar clerks from their election duties in future elections.

Under state law, parish clerks serve as the parish custodians, and the clerks face election every four years.

Tessier said amendments he did not sponsor, made his proposal ambiguous.

Joe Barry Mullins was back at his post to direct the well-known Northeast Louisiana State College band for an enjoyable show at the Indian's 1962 season opening football game against Lamar Tech Saturday night after returning from the Rapides Parish pre-school conference.

Mullins served as a consultant at the August conference for junior and senior high school band students. He instructed in brass and percussion teaching methods, woodwind teaching methods, and rehearsal techniques.

Late Saturday the Coast Guard indicated naptha as the apparent cause of the explosion. The Coast Guard said naptha had been carried as previous contents of the barge and the explosion came while the barge was being gas-freed for work.

Also Saturday night, shipping was restored in the area. Previously, because of fire danger, all shipping had been stopped.

fifth district of Louisiana that Passman's personal popularity, as well as that of his stand on most congressional issues, assure the congressman of a lifetime career in Washington if he wants it.

Asked recently if he had any hope of advancing to national prominence in the political arena, Passman answered: "I'm more interested at this time in what I can do in Congress to trim wasteful spending in the best interest of our national solvency and a sound foreign policy."

Several years ago he toyed with the idea of seeking Louisiana's governorship. However, his lack of faith in the political king-makers in the state at the time and his growing influence in Congress kept him from the candidates circle in his home state.

The congressman has said privately that after two more terms in Congress he may not seek re-election, but step down and support a younger man for the post.

However, those who know him best feel that Passman's boundless energy will never permit him to "step down" to a sedate retirement.

ARGENTINA CONFLICT

Guido Switches Sides In Crisis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Argentina's military struggle turned topsy-turvey overnight. What started as a rebellion of one armored garrison has split the armed forces down the middle and engaged them in virtual civil war. President Jose Maria Guido has switched sides.

Six days ago, Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, commander of a crack garrison of mechanized cavalry at Campo de Mayo, outside Buenos Aires, issued a charge that Guido was in effect a parisoner-president, whose decisions were made by army generals in the War Secretariat.

Ongania declared his garrison in rebellion to force early elections and restore the nation to constitutional government.

Ongania charged the generals planned to set up a military dictatorship in Argentina.

In a nutshell, Ongania billed his rebellion as a move to free Guido from military chains.

At first Guido denounced the rebellion and stuck by War Secretary Gen. Jose Cornejo Saravia, army commander-in-chief Gen. Juan Carlos Lorio, and chief of staff Gen. Bernardino Labayru.

But Guido's denunciation was not enough to stop Ongania. Tank columns moved toward Buenos Aires in support of the rebellion.

Saravia and his colleagues—then known as the loyalists—alerted their forces and demanded that Guido issue an order for an all-out attack on Campo de Mayo. Guido refused.

During the feuding between Guido and the War Secretariat, Ongania's rebels gained valuable time to consolidate their forces. They gained the upper hand Friday.

Then Giudo switched from Saravia's loyalists to Ongania's rebels.

Saravia resigned and Guido took command of loyalist forces and ordered them to attack Ongania's troops throughout the country.

The War Secretariat generals oppose early elections as demanded by Ongania.

How come chicken's so cheap?

The price of chicken has DROPPED more than a cent a pound each year since World War II while most everything has gone way up. And any lover of fried chicken will tell you it's better eating than ever. What's responsible for this more-for-the-money miracle in America?

Well, one reason is the fast-growing poultry industry was developed in areas mostly served by rural electric systems. Eager to put electricty to work, to improve efficiency and production, farmers got rid of the traditional old red rooster and his twenty wives. Poultry farming has become a mass-production business.

Today, push-button electricity lets one farm worker tend 30,000 chickens, feed 500 cattle, or milk 50 cows. (And there usually isn't a rooster on the place.)

This sort of efficiency lowers food production costs . . . just part of your stake in rural electrification. Electronic farming is helping double the demands for rural electricity every six years. Already farmers use more power than Chicago, Baltimore, Boston, Detroit and New Orleans combined.

Without REA loans, which are being repaid with interest ahead of schedule (about like FHA and VA home loans), rural electrics could not build heavier lines to supply the growing need for power in rural Louisiana... so important to continued rural development and both town and country progress.

Adequate rural power at reasonable cost helps safeguard the low-price tag on your high standard of living. This is just one of the many reasons why Louisiana's home-owned and managed Electric Cooperatives are good for all our citizens . . . No matter where they live.

Independent, non-profit, Electric Co-operatives are the only way ALL rural people can continue to have electricity at rates ALL can afford.

Just think what that means to Louisiana's economy—to both town and country prosperity!

Plans To Raise Barge Shaping Up

Gas Content Exceeds Use In World War

SINCE THE SUNKEN chlorine barge near Natchez is several feet below the sand in the bed of the river nothing is known of the condition of the tanks and valves. In careful probing for identification Army Engineers tried a steel wool probe in an effort to obtain paint samples for microscopic analysis.

DIVER SURFACES after exploring a section of the chlorine barge buried beneath the sand in the bed of the Mississippi River near Natchez, Miss. One section of the barge is only about 3 feet under the sand. The diver uses a water jet to blow away the sand temporarily as he feels the outline of parts of the barge.

S. Pub- crossbow... vice, contacted at of She... that four tanks 60 poach... water in the Missis- ...er contain more chlorine gu... was used during World ...r I."

In speaking frankly of the potential danger, Richard Bowman, administrative assistant to Dr. R. M. Cotrell of the health service, emphasized that the possibility of the release of gas when the tanks are raised is very remote.

However, he and other officials concerned with the removal of the chlorine hazard noted that it was clearly a prime responsibility to keep the public informed of the slightest danger potential.

A barge carrying the chlorine sank in the river March 23, 1961. The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers will raise the tanks before they begin to corrode.

Meanwhile, Louisiana and Mississippi officials are developing plans to evacuate residents in the danger area in case an accident releases the gas, used as a war gas during World War I.

According to Col. Thomas Burbank, director of the Louisiana Department of Public Safety, the "Corps of Engineers reported they have full confidence that the hazards can be safely removed."

He said a barge and tug to evacuate the southeast portion of the danger area down the Mississippi River in case danger developed has been requested from the Corps of Engineers.

The danger area includes Concordia Parish and parts of Tensas, Catahoula and Avoyles parishes in Louisiana, and Jefferson, Wilkinson and Adams counties in Mississippi.

Fourth Army Headquarters has been requested to furnish Louisiana three helicopters with sound equipment, Burbank said. He said the helicopters will be used to warn sparsely populated areas of the southern part of the danger zone.

Similar plans are underway in Mississippi, including the possibility of evacuating school children and hospital patients before the danger point of the salvage operations begin.

Burbank said plans would begin within a few days to raise the tanks.

Officials said that the public will be kept informed of events from day to day.

Burbank is coordinating Louisiana planning for possible evacu...s with state and federal ag...cies combining resources.

Twenty-four military planes transported 15,200 cots to the American Red Cross at Jackson and Vicksburg Friday, and four vans brought in 2,500 cots and 22,000 blankets to the Red Cross.

More cots and blankets were brought in Saturday to shelter areas.

A suction pump has been used to remove sand from the tanks of chlorine.

Airlift Of Beds Said Completed

ROBINS AIR FORCE BASE Ga. (AP)—Air Force crews completed an emergency airlift o... tons of beds and equipment into Mississippi for use in the event Natchez is forced to evacuate during salvaging of poisonous chlorine from a sunken barge.

Col. James Sweeney of Continental Air Command information service said 280 reserve crewmen moved 190 tons of beds and equipment from Bergstrom AFB in Austin, Tex., to Jackson and Vicksburg, Miss., for use if evacuation of Natchez is necessary.

234 Evacuation Shelters Ready

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Red Cross has prepared 234 shelters for use in that evacuation of Natchez, Miss., area residents becomes necessary during salvaging of liquor chlorine aboard a sunken barge in the Mississippi River.

Red Cross headquarters here, announcing this, said the shelters are being stocked with cots, blankets, and medical supplies. Of the total 84 are in Louisiana, 150 in Mississippi.

Robert C. Edson, national director of Red Cross Disaster Services, said the shelters have been readied by Red Cross volunteers in 8 Louisiana and 18 Mississippi communities.

FARMER REPLIES

Wind's Direction Determines Route

By JACK OWENS

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP)—Cotton ginner M. M. Holland, 40, smiled at the question and answered, "it's according to the way the wind is blowing."

A newsman had asked him what he planned to do if a so-called million - to - one chance accident should release part of a load of chlorine from a sunken barge nearby in the Mississippi River, and turn the fresh air into creeping death clouds.

"If it's blow from the north," Holland said, "I'll probably go north."

He said he would load his family into his auto and get out of the low area, which would be a favored place for any drifting chlorine vapors.

Henry Montgomery, 42, a gin employe, commented "they ought to have had that barge sink somewhere else."

It was early morning in the flat northeast Louisiana cotton and cattle lands. From the levee one could see harvest workers hustling. Across the river, in hilly Mississippi, Natchez sat high on a historic bluff where in earlier days it lorded over the Delta. Fat cattle spotted the hills.

"The barge," became a favorite topic of conversation from Natchez to legendary St. Jo when President John F. Kennedy set off what was become known as Operation Chlorine.

The President, in Washington, ordered the four cylinders of compressed chlorine 75 feet long, 11½ feet in diameter and constructed of 1⅜ inxh thick steel—removed because of the possible hazard to future generations.

The cylinders, on a sunken barge, half covered with sand and gravel on the river bottom, contained 1100 tons of chlorine, a World War I battlefield weapon.

Whether intended or not, it was an ideal chance to test an emergency evacuation alert for residents of Natchez, a city of 23,000, and those in a 30-mile radius of the barge site, 7½ miles south of Natchez.

The federal government slapped a "top priority" label on the barge's removal and Civil Defense preparations for any accident which officials called a very remote possibility.

Archery of the middle ages helped win historic wars.

Every schoolboy knows the story of Bill Tell and Son with crossbow and apple or of Robin of Sherwood and his longbow poachers.

The American Indian fought gun-toting pioneers with his crude bow and arrows. If the same Indian had been able to develop archery equipment to match the present sporting weapon of the white man, he certainly would have made the palefaces' westward trek more difficult.

SIGNIFICANCE

The invention of gunpower was to archery what the automobile was to the horse, but both are very much in evidence today.

The popularity of archery is rising, and probably no where in Louisiana has the sport made such strides as in the Monroe area.

Certainly no one man has contributed so much to the progress of the sport in this particular area as J. M. McBeth of Kiroli Woods (114 Lisa Lane, West Monroe), who is manager of Bayou DeSiard Country Club and appears frequently in the public eye as an official at football and basketball games.

The Tupawek Bowmen, an organization of archers, had its start here a little over two years ago with McBeth elected as president of the first group that took the name of Bayou Bowmen, later changed to Tupawek for registration with the National Field Archery Association when it was learned that a south Louisiana club already had registered the "Bayou" name.

RE-ELECTED

McBeth, reelected nearly two weeks ago for a third term as head of the Tupawek club, is president of the Louisiana Field Archery Association and an archery commissioner of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union.

Designation as "Mr. and Mrs." of modern archery in Louisiana, at least, could well fit McBeth and his wife, Elise.

McBeth has been an archery enthusiast for years, dating back to when he was a high school athlete at Ouachita Parish High, and interest in the sport has become as strong in his wife.

Mrs. McBeth is currently the fifth ranked woman acher in the nation, according to the National Field Archery Association. Taking up competitive archery only in the last two years, Mrs. McBeth already has won several tournaments, the latest the Ben Pearson Open at Pine Bluff, Ark., where two weeks ago she won the "Silver Arrow" trophy for women for the second time and can retire the award if she successfully defends it next year.

LONG PROCESS

Organization of the Tupawek Bowmen has been a long process for McBeth.

For years he tried to interest friends in archery and a club.

"For several years different people would drop by and shoot in my back yard and then drop by the wayside," McBeth recalls.

"About two years ago there seemed to be several shooters ready to stay with it. My yard was beginning to look like a shooting gallery. The time was ripe to organize the Bayou Bowmen. Then we discovered there was another Louisiana club of that name. We then decided to call ourselves the Tupawek Bowmen—because Tupawek Creek runs through our range."

The Tupawek archers have constructed one of the finest field ranges in the south in the woods off Arkansas road along the south fork of Tupawek Creek. Club members did the work themselves, turning woodland of the Haynes estate into a park with a 28-target forest range much in the style of a golf course with "tees" and "holes." The targets, including an "animal course" where archers shoot at actual copies of wild game, range from 20 feet to 80 yards.

SUPERVISION

The original membership of 15 has grown steadily, and, in addition, McBeth has a good junior program going for youths under the age of 14 who get his personal supervision free in "classes" at least once a week.

Louisiana archers regularly receive a bulletin that keeps them informed on items of interest to the sport. McBeth issues the bulletins at his own expense.

The den at the McBeth home is a display room of various bows, arrows, and other archery equipment, while the living room is a showplace for medals and trophies, mostly representing the triumphs of Mrs. McBeth on the tournament trail.

Civic clubs, schools and such seeking to pep up their programs have found the team of J. M. and Elise McBeth capable of putting on indoor or outdoor archery shows that never fail to impress their audiences.

"I can recommend archery to anyone as a recreation outlet, sport, family fun, fellowship, or anything else one may be looking for," McBeth said. "We like to say 'Archery is Fun for Everyone."

MEMBERSHIP

Memberships in the club are open to individuals and family groups, and the organization has attracted members interested in the bowhunter aspects of the sport, men and women who want to use and help support the target range - - - sportsmen who feel that organized support of such a club gives a show of strength that will help promote the state's archery game laws.

Archery has also gone to college.

Northeast Louisiana State gives an hour's credit in health and physical education in classes conducted by Ada Bess Hart, director of H and PE for women at Northeast.

Louisiana Tech was the first of the nation's colleges to grant an archery scholarship although other schools are now following Tech's lead.

The National Collegiate Archery Association was only recently organized with "Blue" Hogg of the Tech physical education department as its first president. Tech also has originated the Deep South Archery Tournament that has been conducted in March the last two years.

DEER HUNTING

Louisiana the last two years permitted legal hunting of deer with bow and arrow ahead of the regular gun season in game management areas only.

This year, for the first time since game laws were imposed on the Louisiana hunter, the bowman will be permitted to hunt in any area where deer will later face a gun season as well.

Section G of the 1962-63 deer hunting schedule covers the special bowhunting season that runs from October 1 through 15:

"The taking of deer of either sex permitted in all areas declared open for deer hunting, including game management areas except the following: Lutcher-Moore, Zemurray, Thistlethwaite, and Soda Lake. Permits required for hunting on game management areas . . .

"Special bow and arrow regulations: Arrows used for hunting deer shall have well sharpened metal broadhead blades not less than seven-eighths inch and not more than one and a half inch in width. The following shall be unlawful:

"1. To have strung bows in any vehicle.

"2. To have in possession any gun while hunting with bow and arrow during the special bow and arrow deer season.

"3. To have in possession, or under control while hunting, any poisoned arrows, arrows with explosive tips, or any bow drawn, held or released by mechanical means.

"4. To hunt deer with a bow having a pull less than 30 pounds."

The bowhunter must own a regular hunting license (costs $2) and a big game hunter license that includes game tags (another $2), plus a permit (if hunting in a game management area) that may be obtained free at district offices of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission at Monroe, Minden, Ferriday, Tioga, DeRidder, Opelousas, and Baton Rouge.

The detailed rules covering hunting with the bow should be studied in planning any hunt. Pamphlets giving detailed outline of the hunting seasons, the deer schedule for all areas, and the game management area regulations are distributed annually by the LWLFC.

The hunter armed with a high powered rifle may come nearer getting his deer each season, but hunting with a bow gives a satisfaction peculiar to the archer.

Blending of the two types of hunting is bringing about that new breed of sportsman, the gun-bow hunter. He was a gun hunter first, but now he's working the bow into his equipment to take advantage of the early hunting offered before the gun season starts. He can still use the bow during the regular gun season if he likes.

A bow is not the toy some may associate it with. Small boys may make their own and enjoy shooting it in play, and some cheap toy-types can be purchased at the Five-and-Ten.

But the weapon of the sportsman is just that, a weapon that must be handled with care.

As a big game weapon, the bow does not deliver the arrow at the velocity of a bullet with a shocking power that can knock down game upon impact. Instead, the surgical steel blades of the hunting arrow are razor sharp, cutting quickly and cleanly. The arrow kills as surely as the gun.

Archers have described such well hit targets that the deer, upon being hit, startled with awareness that something was wrong, but resumed grazing when unable to discover danger as the hunter had frozen in his position at the release of the bowstring. Rapid hemorrhage will cause the deer to lie down and soon faint.

The Archer, it is contended, has to practice more patience than the gun hunter. He must be surer of his shot, like the rifle hunter, although he will never take the long distance shots of the rifleman. He must wait for the closer shots, developing his woodland lore more acutely in order to get his target where he wants it. Louisiana brush country gives the bowhunter good targets at around 25 to 30 yards, some even closer, if he has become smart enough in competing with the wild to evade detection by the deer.

SKILLS DEVELOPED

Even if the bowhunter comes home empty handed, he has probably developed skills that will make him more successful when the gun season starts.

Sporting goods dealers are selling a lot more archery equipment than they used to. Many attribute the stimulated interest here to the fact that Louisiana is giving bowhunters a special season, the organization of the area archers, and the college programs.

"Used to be we would sell a few bows and arrows around Christmas," one merchant said. "Now it's a year around business, and right now, with the hunting season near, it has been picking up."

Conservatives, Liberals

Many people have the wrong idea about what is a "conservative" and what is a "liberal." In fact, the present understanding of these two words may be just about opposite of what they really mean.

This is illustrated in the following quotation from a writer whose column is carried in the Monroe Morning World:

"Nothing is more puzzling than to see an example of reckless, radical, irresponsible driving by a man whose bumper stickers proclaim he is a conservative."

Currently, the word "liberal" means leftist, a socialist, a person who believes in government control of everything. In the same way, a "conservative" is a person who believes in freedom in enterprise, freedom in worship, freedom of speech, with only enough government control and regulation to maintain those freedoms and rights.

Being a "conservative" in the present political meaning, which means freedom from government control, does not mean a man is "a stick in the mud." It does not change his nature and does not mean that he may not be reckless and daring or cautious and careful. Neither does being a "liberal" in the present sense mean that a man is brave and willing to take chances. There are plenty of people both among the present-day "conservatives" and the present-day "liberals" who have daring spirits and plenty who are timid souls.

"Conservative," in its real and broad sense, means opposed to change, while "liberal," in its non-political sense usually means one who is willing to give things away or to put up as much as or more than his share.

Right now the conservatives of the United States are conservative, or opposed to change, because they don't want to throw away the things our liberal ancestors (those seeking a change) decided would be best for a country whose people desired freedom, instead of regulation.

If the socialists were to take over in the United States and wanted to maintain the status quo, while those who love freedom sought to change back to a free democracy, then the people now called conservatives would become liberals and the so-called liberals would become conservatives, since they would be opposed to change.

What it boils down to is that the people now called conservatives want all the freedoms guaranteed under the constitution and those now called liberals want those freedoms abolished and want to place all the people under strict government control. Under those definitions, conservatives can be liberal donors, free spenders and even reckless drivers, in some cases, while the so-called liberals can be tight-wads and scaredy cats or vice versa.

Tax-Revision Bill

Although falling far short of what President Kennedy asked (and in some instances with good reason), the tax-revision bill passed by the house and senate may do some good. Opponents, seeing some bad features, think it will also do some harm.

The bill contains one key provision requested by Kennedy, a one billion dollar yearly tax investment credit aimed at encouraging business to buy new machinery and equipment. It would permit most companies to deduct from their taxes up to seven per cent of what they spend on such modernization. Utility firms would be allowed three per cent. This would not provide anything like the incentive for improvement that would have been given if the firms had been permitted to deduct 25 per cent of the cost from taxes, and that amount would not seem to be unreasonable.

The 59-24 vote in the senate on the measure was bipartisan, with 40 Democrats and 19 Republicans favoring the bill and 14 Democrats and 10 Republicans voting against it.

Senators opposing the measure tied to it such terms as "the tax dodgers' delight," "a shocking monster full of loopholes," "a special interest bill" and "a deficit booster."

One especially objectionable feature of the bill, advocated by President Kennedy, was eliminated. It would have required withholding taxes on dividends and interest. Backers of this feature claimed it would pick up $750 million a year in taxes now evaded or not paid because of ignorance. Opponents of the measure contended it would force upon the firms involved the collection of taxes, in many instances, when no taxes were due, since banks and other interest-paying and dividend-paying concerns would have no way of knowing whether their customers had any other income. The collections would have been made as if each person had already used up all his exemptions from other income, which would have made a minimum collection of about 20 per cent. It was also contended that the institutions would be overloaded with bookkeeping work. To discourage tax-dodging, the senate substituted a provision that corporations and savings institutions must report to the government and to the recipient all dividend and interest income totaling more than $10 a year.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield conceded "this is an imperfect bill which does not satisfy everybody."

One thing we can be thankful for in regard to this bill is that congress threshed it over thoroughly, instead of swallowing the original proposal, hook, line and sinker, and may have come up with a measure about as good as could be expected. There is evidence that congress has accepted the view that administration proposals can stand a lot of inspection.

Thalidomide And Cancer

British and German scientists reportedly are investigating the theory that the now infamous baby-deforming tranquilizer, thalidomide, may be effective against cancer, shriveling diseased cells in the same manner it inhibits the growth of unborn babies' limbs and, reputedly, their internal digestive apparatuses.

Tests have been started on cancerous animals at London's Hammersmith hospital and the Chester Beatty Research Institute.

If, by some chance, a cure for cancer should come out of the shocking thalidomide affair it could become a sort of atonement for the tragedies caused by the drug.

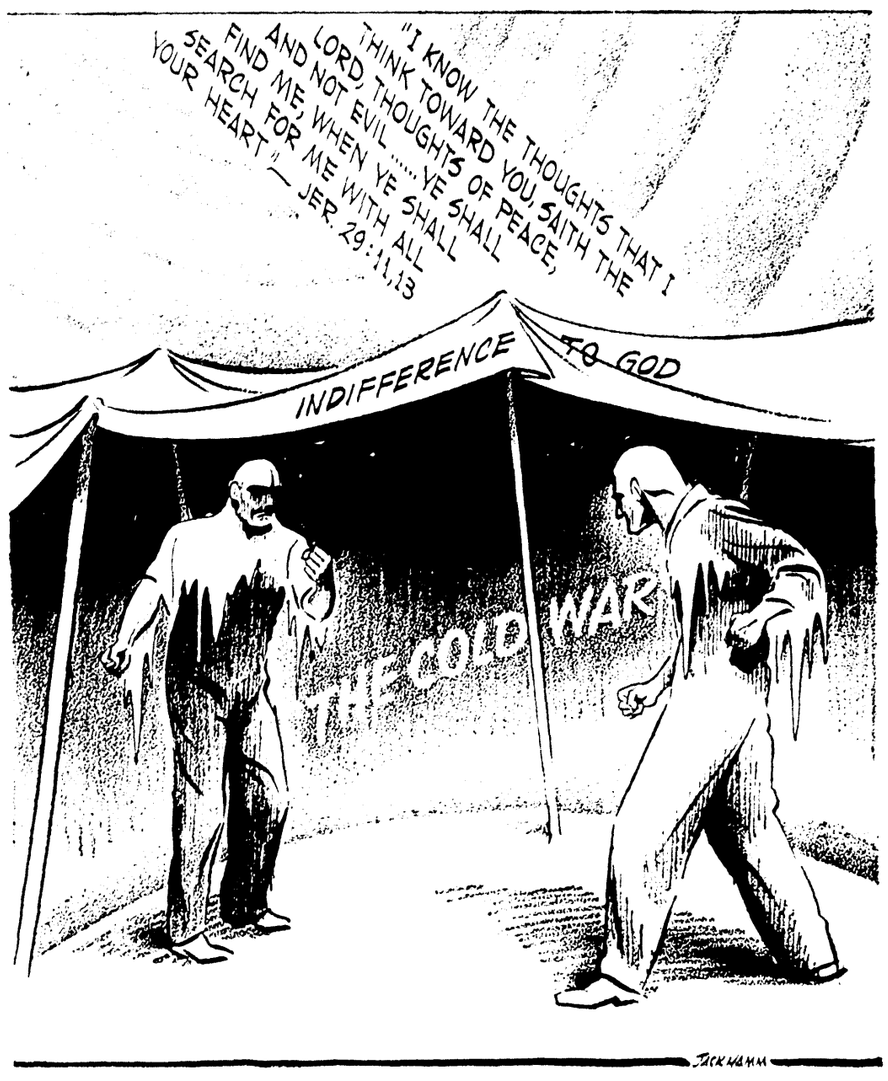

As in thousands of drugs tried for cancer, however, this hope is a hope and nothing more. Some day, from some source, the hope will become a reality.

School Lunch Comment

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I appreciated your article in Tuesday's News-Star regarding the school lunch program, even though I consider it a bit unfair since it seemed to insinuate that all but a few parents in Ouachita Parish are "spongers."

This is the third year we have had a child attending school in Monroe and if the actual cost of school lunches has been mentioned it was done with considerable de-emphasis for I, personally, do not recall this subject being discussed.

Granted, fifteen cents a meal does seem a very small amount, but since I am not familiar with institutional cooking, but am aware of the fact that schools are given reduced prices on many items, that government surpluses are available to them and that the children rarely, if ever, are served any but the least expensive cuts of meat (no matter how deliciously prepared) it has certainly been my impression all along that I was paying in full for my child's meal.

It is neither my desire nor intention that the state should feed my children. I am grateful that they are receiving a good education. I am convinced that hundreds of other parents who expect to pay their own way would agree that this money would be better spent on salaries, additional teachers and-or classrooms necessary to relieve the overcrowded conditions in our schools.

I would suggest that the P.T.A., or the school itself, inform parents of the actual cost of school lunches and request that this sum be paid for each child, instead of stipulating the lesser amount that one can "get by" with.

As a result of your article I am sure many more parents will gladly pay their fair share of the school lunch program. It is to be hoped your researchers will continue to make public other instances involving unnecessary expenditure of local or state funds.

Jackson And Payroll

Tunico, La.

To the Editor:

I was amazed when I read the report of Shelby Jackson's payroll and his juggling operations to milk funds from many sources to make his state general operations budget appear small.

It seems that "our leader" intends to put enough consultants and assistants on the payroll to solve our unemployment problem and get himself elected too.

I have almost grown indifferent to payroll padding and nepotism in state government, especially during this administration. However, I wish these present-day executives would quit their crybaby tactics when they get the spotlight turned on their activities. Why can't they bite and scratch and show some fight like the late Uncle Earl Long showed when he was criticized.

When "our leader", Shelby Jackson the First, claimed that the publishing of his over-ripe payroll was an invasion of privacy, he must have thought he was talking to a group of first graders or a pep meeting of his own office personnel. For even the least informed citizens know that public payrolls are subject to inspection by the public. That it embarrassed him is no reason for its being kept secret.

"Our leader" has consistently followed a policy of keeping the public in the dark about public education in Louisiana. He seems to feel that the schools belong to him, and he will show us what he wants to see and no more.

Perhaps the time has come for P. A. R. or better P. U. B. L. I. C. to investigate the Jackson empire and see if the whole operation is similar to the payroll matter.

Pharmacy Week Set

To The Editor:

Each day approximately 20 million Americans walk through the doors of our country's pharmacies to have prescriptions filled, or to purchase personal items. They are served by a dedicated corps of pharmacists who enjoy an enviable reputation in the health profession for integrity, efficiency and professional competence in the area of human needs and wants. To many, the pharmacist is a trusted friend and advisor.

It is fitting, then, that October 7-13 has been designated National Pharmacy Week to honor these "consultants to 20 million."

Modern pharmacy has undergone a dramatic evolution since World War II — an evolution that has greatly altered the face of the profession. The spectacular advent of new drugs has served to emphasize the importance of the prescription department, while creating an additional burden of responsibility for the pharmacists.

A guardian of our health and welfare, the pharmacists are supremely worthy of the support and confidence the American people have always accorded him.

Foreign Aid Opposed

To the Editor:

In your editorial in the Morning World, "Slushy Foreign Aid," you described the unreasonable unauthorized spending of the people's tax money.

And still the more unreasonable request for more foreign aid and the bond issue for the United Nations.

You also suggest that it is time for the people to tell their congressman what to do so they can tell the administration where to stop.

Since there are many people who will not take the time to write their congressman may I suggest that the business men in the cities and parish have printed copies of a petition against foreign aid and the United Nations bond issue. And that petitions be distributed to place of business for people to sign who are against this reckless spending of their hard-earned money, money that they need for their families,

Since the government has become more like a Roman holiday than serious-minded officials looking to the best interest of the people who elect them and pay their salaries.

I think it is time to remind the president and the state department through the congress that we have had enough, and we will no longer tolerate this reckless spending by electing officials who are for it.

Praises Police

Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

I would like to personally comment Monroe Chief of Police James C. Kelly and his very excellent police department for the excellent work they did in a recent case involving our store.

Late last Monday night a very alert patrol car officer detected that a glass had been broken in a door of Sears on Louisville Avenue. What made it amazing to me is the way he noticed it. In making his rounds, he realized that the light in that particular area where the glass was broken was not reflecting or shining in the manner as it does normally. He checked it and discovered the burglary.

Within a few minutes several other officers were on the scene — although it was midnight or after by this time. They quickly checked the area of the breakin and discovered that the thieves had used an old dirty T-shirt wrapped around a piece of iron to smash in the glass. On the shirt, they found a laundry mark. This they traced out and by early Tuesday, Chief Kelly informed me that they knew who committed the crime and that it would only be a matter of a few hours until they had the culprits under arrest.

This was true as the two were arrested a short time later in Shreveport.

To me, this represents police work at its finest. And, also, I was extremely thankful for the alertness of the police officer who discovered the breakin. The officers don't owe us any special service, but because they constantly check our area of business just as they do all the others, they were able to detect a robbery quickly and just as quickly solve it.

I think we all owe these officers a vote of thanks for the fine job they are doing.

Reds Seize Cuba

Experienced Observers Concede Complete Soviet Control

The complete Soviet control of Cuba, now conceded by every experienced observer who has visited the island, presents the greatest problem the United States has faced since Korea. It can become even more serious and the Communists will do their best to make it so.

To many who are familiar with the Caribbean and South America situations, it seems inevitable that the Communists will have to be driven from Cuba by force. Some say that until action is taken in that direction, the greater the danger to the mainland U. S.

History reveals many instances when this country was urged or pushed to take Cuba from Spain, prior to the eviction of the Spanish in 1898. Two presidents, Franklin Pierce and James Buchanan, tried vainly to obtain approval of a plan to acquire the island from Spain. The last American troops were withdrawn from Cuba in 1909, after a reorganization of its government under U. S. direction while Theodore Roosevelt was president.

Its government has been so continually under the protective arm of the U. S. that the present situation gives reason to rub one's eyes. The Platt amendment, made part of the Cuban constitution in 1901, but repealed under the Good Neighbor policy established the right of the United States to intervene if necessary in the island's affairs. Yet the Castro revolution, the first intimation of Soviet infiltration, and even the later pro-Communist declarations of Castro brought no move to reassert U. S. fights from either of two presidents or the U. S. Congress.

The turning point, the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion on April 17, 1961 for which President Kennedy assumed full blame, may have been one of the most important dates of this century when history is written. It proved to the Communists that any obstacle to their complete domination of Cuba had been removed and they proceeded to envelope it as the first Communist base in the western hemisphere. How long it will require to dislodge this outpost of Soviet Russia — if it is to be removed — can only be guesswork.

The present Kennedy attitude of watchful waiting, which may not prevent the use of Cuba by the Communists to infiltrate other South American nations follows in the pattern of the similar attitudes of this nation in other crises of this century. In each case, the U. S. wound up in war after some critical incident — wars for which it was largely unprepared, and which required long periods of preparation on our part.

In World War I, the United States was taken by surprise when the Germans torpedoed the British liner Lusitania, though they had threatened publicly to do so, on the ground that the ship was carrying munitions for the Allies. That over act made inevitable a declaration of war, for which we were not prepared, and in which our troops did not see front line action for more than a year.

In World War II, the United States was again taken by surprise in the Pearl Harbor raid, of which an alert intelligence service should have had warning through the breaking of the secret Japanese code.

It may be said again that history repeats itself in Cuba in that the Spanish government by its cruel colonial administration in Cuba, brought on an intermittent revolution in the '90s. The U. S. warned the Spaniards against their brutal course, without avail, but that was resolved when the U. S. battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor in February 1898. War was declared within weeks and was won in 100 days. Recent statements from high government sources reflect the idea that a new invasion would succeed in less time than that. Other think this an extension of 1898, rather than of nuclear age thinking.

The President's warning to the Soviets is being praised in most quarters, but those familiar with our military history recall other similar warnings which have fail to deter an aggressor.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

For many months now we have been hearing reports from government foreign policy experts about the widening breach between Soviet Russia and Red China.

These reports have provided many "wishful thinkers" in this country with an excuse to minimize the threat of international communism to the United States and the free world. They provided many proponents of appeasement in the cold war with a comfortable feeling that all we had to do was wait for the breach to deepen and pit freedom's two worse enemies against each other in a mighty power struggle within the communist world.

But this thesis is wearing thin today in the light of rapid-fire developments around the world. For we are now beginning to get a picture of the Communist world acting in impressive concert to bring more and heavier pressure on the West.

First Russia brings pressue on Berlin with a new display of demands and arrogance accompanied by a build-up of communist military strength in East Berlin.

Then Communist China takes over and heats up the situation involving Quemoy and Matsu with a massive military build-up along the coast just opposite these Nationalist-held islands.

Now back to Russia. While keeping things riled up and explosvie in Berlin and South East Asia, she mounts a new pressure campaign in Cuba with a heavy build-up of military supplies, equipment and manpower.

On the propaganda front, too, the Russians and the Red Chinese are conducting a well-coordinated campaign aimed at the West. In this, Russia took the lead in the latest flurry of charges involving U-2 espionage planes. The Soviets unleashed an accusation that the United States had sent a U-2 plane over Sakhalin Island off Siberia in violation of Russian airspace. And just five days later, the Red Chinese announced that they had shot down an American-made U-2 reconnaisance plane operated by Nationalist China.

Thus it goes. First Russia takes the lead; then the Chinese follow suit.

And the United States, which appears to have lost the initiative in all spheres of Cold War operation, reacts and replies to the Communist offensive.

The dangerous thing now is the number of highly-explosive pressure points the Soviets and their Red allies have to play with. They can and will alternate the heat of world tensions to the continued frustration and distraction of the West.

At the present time, the Kennedy administration is convinced that Berlin is the major objective of the communist offensive. It is mapping its plans accordingly.

But we can be sure of one thing: if the time is not propitious to Soviet aims in Berlin, the pressure will be switched to another area very quickly. It may be Laos or Cuba or the Chinese off-shore islands — depending on the communist strategy. The tragic part is that it won't be a place of our choosing; it will be one of theirs.

I suggest that while Russia and Red China may have their differences, they share the goal of world domination for International Communism and are working mightily to that end.

How do you stand, sir?

Double Standard?

Some Assert Kennedy Applies It To Management And Labor

Some members of Congress are criticising news conference statements by President Kennedy on the ground that he applied a double standard to management and labor.

He was questioned about labor disputes—in which "fact-finding" boards had been appointed and had made their recommendations — involving aerospace companies and the Chicago and North Western Railroad.

In the aerospace controversy, Mr. Kennedy asserted that the companies should accept the "fact-finding" board recommendations for a compulsory union shop.

"If there is a strike," he added, "the responsibility would be very clear."

In the railway dispute, the "fact finding" board recommended, among other things, the elimination of costly "feather-bedding" practices of the union.

But, critics pointed out, all that Mr. Kennedy said about this was that he thought it "very important that the parties come to an agreement immediately."

Rep. Hiestand (R-Calif.) told the House that the Kennedy Administration's pressure for a union shop in the aerospace industry means real money to unions. He said:

"For the unions and union-supported politicians the spoils are high. One hundred thousand more men and women paying dues at $5 per month will result in an additional income of $6 million a year. No wonder the fight against individual freedom has been so fierce."

He added that Congress should "investigate the coercive nature of administration policy in the field of labor settlements."

President Kennedy's spending budget for the current fiscal year soared to $93.9 billion when he signed the legislation authorizing him to spend $900 million for pump-priming anti-recession public works projects.

This "political slush fund for the President" —as opponents describe it — boosted Mr. Kennedy's spending program by $6.2 billion over the 1962 fiscal year, and by $12.4 billion over 1961.

The federal deficit for 1961 was $3.9 billion, for 1962 $6.3 billion, and the 1963 deficit is variously estimated at between $5 billion and $16 billion.

Mr. Kennedy's 1963 spending program started at $92.5 billion when he submitted his budget to Congress last January. Later it was elevated to $93 billion — and now to $93.9 billion.

And Mr. Kennedy still is urging Congress to give him stand-by authority to spend an additional $2 billion for public works if unemployment should increase.

One aspect of foreign aid almost completely overlooked in voting taxpayer's money for this purpose is the vast assistance provided by American private enterprise abroad.

To assure consideration of this private aid by Congress, in deciding on federal appropriations for the 1963 fiscal year, the Senate made a study which Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa, the chairman, said disclosed that "American private activities abroad are really of staggering proportions and are of fantastic benefit to the various foreign countries."

Explaining that the estimates are "minimal", Senator Hickenlooper told the Senate that the study disclosed that American assets in foreign countries in 1961 totalled $56 billion and that direct investments of Americans abroad totalled $35 billion.

"In the year 1957, which is the last year for which figures are available in certain categories," the Senator said, "American investments abroad resulted in 3,200,000 jobs for foreigners.

"American investments abroad paid $6,878,000,000 in wages and salaries to foreigners.

"American investments abroad purchased $17 billion worth of materials and services.

"American investors paid $4.5 billion in taxes to foreign governments abroad."

Conservatives, Liberals

Many people have the wrong idea about what is a "conservative" and what is a "liberal." In fact, the present understanding of these two words may be just about opposite of what they really mean.

This is illustrated in the following quotation from a writer whose column is carried in the Monroe Morning World:

"Nothing is more puzzling than to see an example of reckless, radical, irresponsible driving by a man whose bumper stickers proclaim he is a conservative."

Currently, the word "liberal" means leftist, a socialist, a person who believes in government control of everything. In the same way, a "conservative" is a person who believes in freedom in enterprise, freedom in worship, freedom of speech, with only enough government control and regulation to maintain those freedoms and rights.

Being a "conservative" in the present political meaning, which means freedom from government control, does not mean a man is "a stick in the mud." It does not change his nature and does not mean that he may not be reckless and daring or cautious and careful. Neither does being a "liberal" in the present sense mean that a man is brave and willing to take chances. There are plenty of people both among the present-day "conservatives" and the present-day "liberals" who have daring spirits and plenty who are timid souls.

"Conservative," in its real and broad sense, means opposed to change, while "liberal," in its non-political sense usually means one who is willing to give things away or to put up as much as or more than his share.

Right now the conservatives of the United States are conservative, or opposed to change, because they don't want to throw away the things our liberal ancestors (those seeking a change) decided would be best for a country whose people desired freedom, instead of regulation.

If the socialists were to take over in the United States and wanted to maintain the status quo, while those who love freedom sought to change back to a free democracy, then the people now called conservatives would become liberals and the so-called liberals would become conservatives, since they would be opposed to change.

What it boils down to is that the people now called conservatives want all the freedoms guaranteed under the constitution and those now called liberals want those freedoms abolished and want to place all the people under strict government control. Under those definitions, conservatives can be liberal donors, free spenders and even reckless drivers, in some cases, while the so-called liberals can be tight-wads and scaredy cats or vice versa.

Tax-Revision Bill

Although falling far short of what President Kennedy asked (and in some instances with good reason), the tax-revision bill passed by the house and senate may do some good. Opponents, seeing some bad features, think it will also do some harm.

The bill contains one key provision requested by Kennedy, a one billion dollar yearly tax investment credit aimed at encouraging business to buy new machinery and equipment. It would permit most companies to deduct from their taxes up to seven per cent of what they spend on such modernization. Utility firms would be allowed three per cent. This would not provide anything like the incentive for improvement that would have been given if the firms had been permitted to deduct 25 per cent of the cost from taxes, and that amount would not seem to be unreasonable.

The 59-24 vote in the senate on the measure was bipartisan, with 40 Democrats and 19 Republicans favoring the bill and 14 Democrats and 10 Republicans voting against it.

Senators opposing the measure tied to it such terms as "the tax dodgers' delight," "a shocking monster full of loopholes," "a special interest bill" and "a deficit booster."

One especially objectionable feature of the bill, advocated by President Kennedy, was eliminated. It would have required withholding taxes on dividends and interest. Backers of this feature claimed it would pick up $750 million a year in taxes now evaded or not paid because of ignorance. Opponents of the measure contended it would force upon the firms involved the collection of taxes, in many instances, when no taxes were due, since banks and other interest-paying and dividend-paying concerns would have no way of knowing whether their customers had any other income. The collections would have been made as if each person had already used up all his exemptions from other income, which would have made a minimum collection of about 20 per cent. It was also contended that the institutions would be overloaded with bookkeeping work. To discourage tax-dodging, the senate substituted a provision that corporations and savings institutions must report to the government and to the recipient all dividend and interest income totaling more than $10 a year.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield conceded "this is an imperfect bill which does not satisfy everybody."

One thing we can be thankful for in regard to this bill is that congress threshed it over thoroughly, instead of swallowing the original proposal, hook, line and sinker, and may have come up with a measure about as good as could be expected. There is evidence that congress has accepted the view that administration proposals can stand a lot of inspection.

Thalidomide And Cancer

British and German scientists reportedly are investigating the theory that the now infamous baby-deforming tranquilizer, thalidomide, may be effective against cancer, shriveling diseased cells in the same manner it inhibits the growth of unborn babies' limbs and, reputedly, their internal digestive apparatuses.

Tests have been started on cancerous animals at London's Hammersmith hospital and the Chester Beatty Research Institute.

If, by some chance, a cure for cancer should come out of the shocking thalidomide affair it could become a sort of atonement for the tragedies caused by the drug.

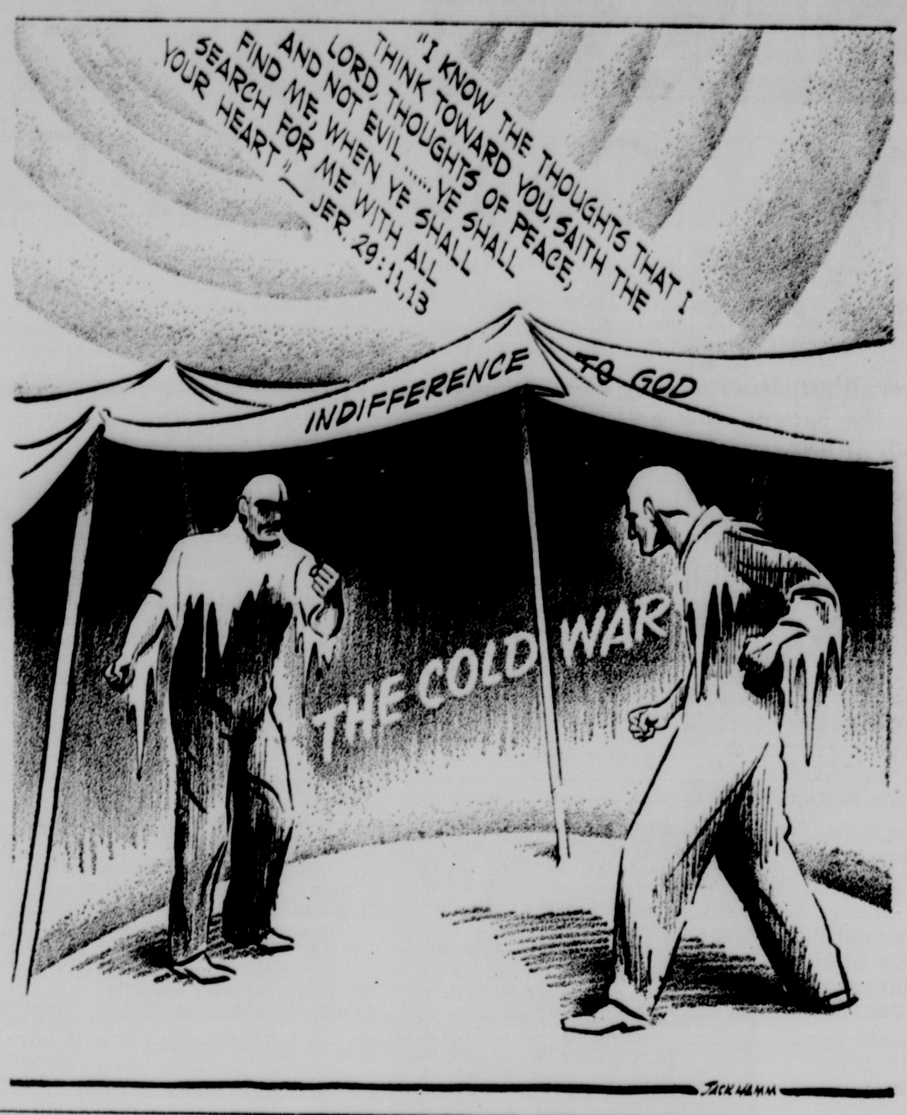

As in thousands of drugs tried for cancer, however, this hope is a hope and nothing more. Some day, from some source, the hope will become a reality.

School Lunch Comment

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I appreciated your article in Tuesday's News-Star regarding the school lunch program, even though I consider it a bit unfair since it seemed to insinuate that all but a few parents in Ouachita Parish are "spongers."

This is the third year we have had a child attending school in Monroe and if the actual cost of school lunches has been mentioned it was done with considerable de-emphasis for I, personally, do not recall this subject being discussed.

Granted, fifteen cents a meal does seem a very small amount, but since I am not familiar with institutional cooking, but am aware of the fact that schools are given reduced prices on many items, that government surpluses are available to them and that the children rarely, if ever, are served any but the least expensive cuts of meat (no matter how deliciously prepared) it has certainly been my impression all along that I was paying in full for my child's meal.

It is neither my desire nor intention that the state should feed my children. I am grateful that they are receiving a good education. I am convinced that hundreds of other parents who expect to pay their own way would agree that this money would be better spent on salaries, additional teachers and-or classrooms necessary to relieve the overcrowded conditions in our schools.

I would suggest that the P.T.A., or the school itself, inform parents of the actual cost of school lunches and request that this sum be paid for each child, instead of stipulating the lesser amount that one can "get by" with.

As a result of your article I am sure many more parents will gladly pay their fair share of the school lunch program. It is to be hoped your researchers will continue to make public other instances involving unnecessary expenditure of local or state funds.

Jackson And Payroll

Tunico, La.

To the Editor:

I was amazed when I read the report of Shelby Jackson's payroll and his juggling operations to milk funds from many sources to make his state general operations budget appear small.

It seems that "our leader" intends to put enough consultants and assistants on the payroll to solve our unemployment problem and get himself elected too.

I have almost grown indifferent to payroll padding and nepotism in state government, especially during this administration. However, I wish these present-day executives would quit their crybaby tactics when they get the spotlight turned on their activities. Why can't they bite and scratch and show some fight like the late Uncle Earl Long showed when he was criticized.

When "our leader", Shelby Jackson the First, claimed that the publishing of his over-ripe payroll was an invasion of privacy, he must have thought he was talking to a group of first graders or a pep meeting of his own office personnel. For even the least informed citizens know that public payrolls are subject to inspection by the public. That it embarrassed him is no reason for its being kept secret.

"Our leader" has consistently followed a policy of keeping the public in the dark about public education in Louisiana. He seems to feel that the schools belong to him, and he will show us what he wants to see and no more.

Perhaps the time has come for P. A. R. or better P. U. B. L. I. C. to investigate the Jackson empire and see if the whole operation is similar to the payroll matter.

Pharmacy Week Set

To The Editor:

Each day approximately 20 million Americans walk through the doors of our country's pharmacies to have prescriptions filled, or to purchase personal items. They are served by a dedicated corps of pharmacists who enjoy an enviable reputation in the health profession for integrity, efficiency and professional competence in the area of human needs and wants. To many, the pharmacist is a trusted friend and advisor.

It is fitting, then, that October 7-13 has been designated National Pharmacy Week to honor these "consultants to 20 million."

Modern pharmacy has undergone a dramatic evolution since World War II — an evolution that has greatly altered the face of the profession. The spectacular advent of new drugs has served to emphasize the importance of the prescription department, while creating an additional burden of responsibility for the pharmacists.

A guardian of our health and welfare, the pharmacists are supremely worthy of the support and confidence the American people have always accorded him.

He added that Congress should "investigate the coercive nature of administration policy in the field of labor settlements."

President Kennedy's spending budget for the current fiscal year soared to $93.9 billion when he signed the legislation authorizing him to spend $900 million for pump-priming anti-recession public works projects.

This "political slush fund for the President" —as opponents describe it — boosted Mr. Kennedy's spending program by $6.2 billion over the 1962 fiscal year, and by $12.4 billion over 1961.

The federal deficit for 1961 was $3.9 billion, for 1962 $6.3 billion, and the 1963 deficit is variously estimated at between $5 billion and $16 billion.

Mr. Kennedy's 1963 spending program started at $92.5 billion when he submitted his budget to Congress last January. Later it was elevated to $93 billion — and now to $93.9 billion.

And Mr. Kennedy still is urging Congress to give him stand-by authority to spend an additional $2 billion for public works if unemployment should increase.

One aspect of foreign aid almost completely overlooked in voting taxpayer's money for this purpose is the vast assistance provided by American private enterprise abroad.

To assure consideration of this private aid by Congress, in deciding on federal appropriations for the 1963 fiscal year, the Senate made a study which Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa, the chairman, said disclosed that "American private activities abroad are really of staggering proportions and are of fantastic benefit to the various foreign countries."

Explaining that the estimates are "minimal", Senator Hickenlooper told the Senate that the study disclosed that American assets in foreign countries in 1961 totalled $56 billion and that direct investments of Americans abroad totalled $35 billion.

"In the year 1957, which is the last year for which figures are available in certain categories," the Senator said, "American investments abroad resulted in 3,200,000 jobs for foreigners.

"American investments abroad paid $6,878,000,000 in wages and salaries to foreigners.

"American investments abroad purchased $17 billion worth of materials and services.

"American investors paid $4.5 billion in taxes to foreign governments abroad."

Yugoslav, Russian Relations Improving

By ENGENE LEVIN

BELGRADE (AP)—Seven years ago a visitor from Moscow stepped off an airplane and abjectly told President Tito:

"We sincerely regret what happened."

Monday Tito goes to Belgrade airport again to receive another visitor from Moscow. His coming, in Yugoslav eyes, amounts to a new Soviet apology.

With each visit—by Nikita Khrushchev in 1955 and now by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev—the pendulum in Soviet-Yugoslav relations was swinging back to friendship from bitter denunciation.

Brezhnev's 10-day visit is not expected to produce major declarations, but the visit itself is significant.

NEW THAW

It underscores a new thaw in relations between Moscow and Belgrade, and possibly a more difficult period in Yugoslav-American ties.

The pendulum made its first swing in 1948, when Tito and Stalin parted ways in an ideological dispute that rocked the Communist world. Yugoslavia was read out of the Kremlin's Cominform and found itself turning to the West for economic and military aid in a fight tor life.

Seven years later, Khrushchev came to Belgrade to mend fences. The de-Stalinization drive paved the way. Tito became the Communist hero who had stood up to Stalin when Khrushchev was bowing.

The Khrushchev-Tito reconciliation was short-lived. The Hungarian revolution split them again. In 1958, observers from Russia and other Kremlin-line countries walked out of the Yugoslav Communist Party Congress and denounced the Yugoslav program as anti-Marxist.

Tito had been to Russia in 1956 after the reconciliation. Klementi Voroshilov, Soviet president, was scheduled to return the visit in May 1958.

Voroshilov's visit was postponed at the last minute.

SPEECH

"Comrade Khrushchev," Tito said in a speech shortly afterward, "attacked Yugoslavia with words that have nothing in common with comradely criticism. He insulted not only the Yugoslav leadership but the Yugoslav people too."

Four years later, and obviously with the blessing of Khrushchev and Tito, Brezhnev picks up the invitation Voroshilov did not use.

Yugoslavs say Tito has not changed, but Khrushchev has. Yugoslav officials always have insisted they wanted good relations on a government-to-government level, with ideological differences between Communist parties shunted aside.

Russia, apparently concerned lest "Titoism" encourage more Hungarian-type uprisings in Eastern Europe, emphasied ideological differences.

Then Foreign Minister Koca Popovic was invited to Moscow last summer. Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko returned the visit this summer. Sources here say the Russians tacitly accepted the Yugoslav view that relations should be improved.

Yugoslavs also say Moscow's differences with Red China and Albania bring the Kremlin closer to Belgrade, which views the Albanians and Chinese as the bitterest enemies of Tito's brand of communism.

Tito, still a Communist, describes Yugoslavia as nonaligned in world polities. Recent pronouncements on disarmament, Berlin and other major issues support Soviet policy, however.

Yugoslavs do not hide their anger over anti-Tito attacks in the U.S. Congress. They fear the European Common Market may damage Yugoslav trade.

This country's economy is sluggish. It loses money in its trade with the West. It makes money in trading with the East, but Yugoslavia cannot use the East's soft currencies to pay hard money bills in the West.

Russia, with satellites to satisfy, has been hesitant to supply capital goods and raw materials to Yugoslavia on acceptable terms. Now Yugoslavs hope the Russians will be more accommodating. The Soviets reportedly have already sold the Yugoslavs arms for the first time since 1948.

There is no sign that Tito has given in one bit in his ideological fight. The draft of Yugoslavia's constitution, published this week, reaffirms the decentralized economic concept that brought the greatest criticism from the centralized-thinking Kremlin.

The feeling here is Tito will move closer to Russia, perhaps visiting Moscow later this year, but will cling to his independence.

Ceylon In Financial Trouble

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—After years of overspending on good living, Ceylon is running out of money. Most of its politicians hesitate to do anything but wait for the crash.

This island nation off India today imports more than it exports. The government spends more than it collects in taxes. Its foreign exchange reserves are almost depleted.

Fear of repercussions from angry voters has prevented the government from carrying out its own calls for austerity. Most opposition politicians also shy away from the unpopular measures that Ceylonese economists and foreign experts say are necessary.

But a moment of truth is approaching.

NO RICE

By December there will not be sufficient foreign exchange to import enough rice, basic item in the Ceylon diet. Despite the lush agricultural productivity and good fishing possibilities of this tropical island, Ceylon imports 43 per cent of its rice needs, 74 per cent of its fish and much of its other food.

The nation has been warned of the December crisis by Felix Dias Bandaranaike, 32, nephew of Prime Minister Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

As finance minister, he proposed to cut rice imports and substitute cheaper wheat for a fourth of the weekly rice ration.

Older politicians in Mrs. Bandaranaike's Cabinet considered a rice cut political suicide. They forced her and Felix Bandaranaike to back down. Felix Bandaranaike resigned from the Finance Ministry.

The budget he had introduced was further distorted by failure to collect a new 7½ per cent sales tax. After two chaotic days this effort to reduce the deficit had to be abandoned.

The politicians now in command are sticking to the shell of the budget. "They are just like Mr. Micawber, hoping something will turn up," said a civil service expert.

"The trouble is," a leading opposition politician said, "we have been supporting a Rolls-Royce welfare state on a bullock cart economy."

In addition to subsidized food, the government provides free education and medical service and subsidized transportation and housing.

These benefits were added atop an economic structure created by the British, who gave Ceylon independence in 1948. They exported tea, rubber and coconuts to pay for necessities.

The exports gave Ceylon one of the highest standards of living in underdeveloped Asia, with a per capita income almost double that of India. In 1961, Ceylon's 10,167,000 people averaged 617 rupees—$129.57—apiece, scarcely higher than the per capita rate in 1948 because a population increase of 2.8 per cent a year has eaten up small economic gains.

The need to improve agriculture and industry has been recognized by successive Ceylonese governments, but little has been accomplished on either. The number of hungry mouths has increased 10 times as fast as rice production.

Industrialization, the key to a soundly balanced economy, would require a cut of luxury imports and also a combination of lower subsidies and higher taxes.

The predominately middle-class United National party that governed until 1956 only talked about industrialization. S.W.R.D. Bandaranaike, who came to power that year with the backing of rural masses, prepared the rough outline of a 10-year development plan. He was assassinated in September 1959. His widow became prime minister in 1960.

Ceylon needs foreign aid but has imperiled it by seizing some assets of U.S. and British oil companies. Private foreign investment has been frightened off by contradictory talk of nationalization and efforts to restrict expatriation of profits. For political reasons of nationalism among Ceylon's Buddhist Sinhalese majority, the talents of the Hindu Tamil minority are being wasted. Racial tension could explode.

Yet Parliament appears unconcerned. The budget debate involved little discussion of the budget and much violent political bickering.

Narcotic Problem Is A Complex One

By BERNARD GAVZER
Associated Press Writer

The new drug was truly miraculous. There was no pain it could not relieve. No matter how deep the suffering, there came sleep.

It was labeled morphine, after Morpheus, a god of sleep in Roman mythology.

The slumber soon was disturbed by a nightmare that has gone on for more than a century.

Morphine and related drugs have a diabolical quality—the more you use the more you need. The body revolts if you try to give it up.

The problems of narcotics addiction are complex and confusing. An attempt to analyze them and possibly point to a program of action will be made this week at the White House Conference on Narcotics, starting Sept. 27.

"The conference cannot be expected to come up with final solutions to the problems which have not been settled by federal, state and local governments," says Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"But it can pinpoint weaknesses of present approaches, indicate new directions which appear hopeful and suggest areas where meaningful research can be conducted."

ADDICTION

Kennedy did not specify the weaknesses nor elaborate on what he labels "misinformation that exists about the extent of drug addiction and abuse."

But there are two widespread misconceptions of the addict. One is the lingering image of a opulent opium den, the addict served by Orientals padding about in a blue haze. The other is of a depraved junkie, who needles himself with heroin and then rapes or murders.

While there may be rare real-life counterparts, both pictures are inaccurate. The opium den smoker is extinct. The image of the hopped up heroin junkie is contrary to fact.

The popular idea that dope leads to sex violence originated during a period when cocaine—a stimulant derived from the South American coca leaf—was more extensively used than it is today. Cocaine produces an immediate sense of exhiliration which is rapidly replaced by anxiety, hallucinations and delusions of a paranoid nature—a highly dangerous period. The reaction to cocaine has been transferred incorrectly to users of all narcotics.

The heroin addict — and that means about all the addicts—finds it difficult to become sexually aroused. The medical evidence is that heroin and other opium-derived drugs—which are depressants—depress the sexual appetite.

"I have never seen an addict rapist," Dr. Eugene F. Carey, a veteran police surgeon with the Chicago police department, reported several years ago. "Any long confirmed narcotic addict has about as much sex ability and desire as a dead cat."

There also is a common notion that narcotics ravages the body, popularized in motion pictures, novels, plays, television shows.

The medical fact is that neither heroin nor any of the opiates causes any permanent changes in the brain or central nervous system, or that it causes any changes except the body's greater tolerance of the drug.

Damage to the body is caused by the desperate addict's complete disregard of food or normal bodily care in his frantic efforts to satisfy his craving for a fix.

Alarm often is raised about dope being used to despoil the nation's young. But on the Bureau of Narcotics list of 46,798 known addicts in the United States there were at latest count only 116 who were 17 or under. This is less than one-quarter of one per cent.

The figures, however, must be interpreted with care. By no means is every user of narcotics known. One rule of thumb is that for every known user, there may be three who have managed to keep their addiction secret. Furthermore, the known addict list does not include users of marijuana, frequently cited as a particular threat to youth.

MARIJUANA

According to a spokesman at the Narcotics Bureau, the use of marijuana—while illegal under federal law—does not cause addiction. There are no withdrawal syndromes. The big danger is that a user will graduate to addicting drugs.

The large amount of crime caused by addicts is generally unrelated to laws on use of narcotics. A well-hooked addict—who needs a fresh dose as soon as the previous one wears off—has a very expensive habit. The cost can run as high as $40 to $60 a day, although the average is from $10 to $15.

There are few addicts who can lay hands legally on this amount of cash. They turn to crime. Women, as a rule, become prostitutes.

The answer to dope traditionally has been demand for tougher punishment. But critics of this approach insist a more effective way would be to cut the profit element by placing addicts in the care of doctors or in some other way treating them as sick persons — providing them needed drugs under supervision. It has been suggested that experimental clinics be set up so addicts could get out-patient treatment — a scheme that was tried several decades ago and fell into abuse.

"That would be like making Uncle Sam a dope peddler," said a Bureau of Narcotics agent.

"The adoption of such a plan as advocated by dewy-eyed, impractical, self-styled social reformers would lead only to disaster," contends Harry J. Anslinger, who recently resigned as director of the Bureau of Narcotics, which he headed since it was set up.

Now that Anslinger has retired there are some who think there will be a shift in federal philosophy.

THE QUESTION of when German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, 86, should retire and who might succeed him is shaping into a serious political test in West Germany. Possible successors have refrained from pushing themselves into the limelight. Among those most logically in line are: Heinrich Krone, minister without portfolio; Franz-Joseph Strauss, defense minister; Ludwig Erhard, vice chancellor and economics minister and Gerhard Schroeder, foreign minister. Successor To Adenauer Now Political Dilemma

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BONN, Germany (AP) — The question of when Konrad Adenauer should retire and who should succeed him is shaping more and more into a serious political dilemma for West Germany.

The question has been publicly debated off and on since 1959 when the chancellor said he would retire to run for the more ceremonial job of president, then changed his mind because of the ensuing feud over a successor.

FOURTH TERM

When Adenauer's Christian Democratic party lost its parliamentary majority last fall, Adenauer said he would retire in time to give his successor a chance to learn the job before 1965's general elections. After this concession the Free Democrats joined a coalition that elected Adenauer for a fourth term.

Now the question has again become a hot issue.

Erich Mende, head of the Free Democrats, has threatened to take his party out of the coalition unless the 86-year-old chancellor resigns in the fall of next year.

Mende insists that his threat be taken seriously even though it was made in Schleswig-Holstein Province, where his party is fighting to keep its three seats in the legislature.

"He can't attack government policy because his party has a hand in making it, so he hacks away at the old man," said one prominent Christian Democrat. "In doing this, Mende is toying with his own destruction."

Mende is indeed taking a big chance. If he does carry out his threat it could mean the end of the Free Democrats' voice in Parliament, where they hold 67 seats out of 499.

Political experts argue that the foxy old chancellor would not be beyond forming a coalition with the Socialists if he feels it will keep him in power. And the Socialists are likely to try anything to get into the government.

Such a coalition could be prevented if the Christian Democrats promise enough to a few Free Democrats to get them to change parties. Adenauer needs only eight seats for an absolute majority.

Adenauer aides say the "old man" is by no means tired of his job and intends to stay on at least until the end of next year.

The executive secretary of the Christian Democrats, Herman Dufhues, says the questions of retirement and a successor will be settled "calmly but also firmly."

But many bets have been made in Bonn—among politicians and government officials—that Adenauer, unless illness prevents him, will say again "you don't change horses in midstream" and announce his candidacy for yet another four-year term.

The men most logically in line for the chancellorship refrain from pushing themselves into the limelight.

Ludwig Erhard, 65, vice chancellor and economics minister still is the Christian Democrat party's choice but Adenauer has many times indicated that he felt the father of what is called Germany's economic miracle lacks the political ability to be chancellor.

SUPPORT LOST

Tough Defense Minister Franz-Josef Strauss, whose aspirations for the top job have long been an open secret, appears to have lost support since he was accused and exonerated of misusing his office for financial gain.

Gerhard Schroeder, young and energetic foreign minister whose pragmatic handling of Bonn's foreign policy has won him orchids from even the Socialists, is in the running. But, his friends point out, he is too clever to make any public utterances about possible chancellor ambitions.

Another possibility is Heinrich Krone, 67, minister without portfolio and former parliamentary majority leader. Krone, affectionately known by party cronies as "Papa", has long been one of Adenauer's closest confidantes.

One thing seems certain: Solving the dilemma over Adenauer's retirement and succession will be a crucial test of West Germany's young democracy.

Scientific Shangri-La In The Heart Of Africa

By PETER GROSE

LWIRO, Congo (AP) — High in the mountains at the heart of Africa a small band of scientists has weathered the Congo crisis, custodians during chaos of a remote Shangri-La for scientific research.

A short distance from Bukavu in Kivu Province, 1,000 miles east of Leopoldville, a winding dirt road leads up the slopes overlooking Lake Kivu. Through the trees appears an unexpected cluster of low buildings—like a monastery, or one of the Spanish missions in California with its secluded cloisters and quadrangles.

Inside the stone gates the visitor leaves far behind the political turmoil in the valley below. The air is serene and academic, and looming out of the bush is a $4-million complex of laboratories to probe the fringes of man's knowledge.

Almost unbelieveably, after two years of Congo upheavals, this scientific haven is still intact. Its scientists and modern equipment are once again at the disposal of the West for space age research.

The Central African Institute for Scientific Research known as IRSAC—was one of the most important research establishments on the continent before the Congo became independent in 1960. Then during months of lawlessness and violence the scientific world outside gave it up for lost.

"They couldn't believe that an advanced research station could go on functioning amid all the disorders of the Congo," said one of these scientists who stayed at his post throughout the troubles.

Some 20 well-equipped laboratories—for electronics, nutrition and the study of earthquakes to name just a few—are now waiting to be reactivated.

Modern electronic computers and radar stand in working order after two years of hibernation, guarded lovingly by the caretaker scientists.

Once the spiderwebs and protective shrouds are cleared away IRSAC's installations could help detect atomic tests.

Equipment is at hand for observing the earth's radiation belts with favorable conditions unique in the world.

The quartz clock at IRSAC could transmit the exact time to all of Africa—accurate to one-tenthousandth of a second.

Over 60 international researchers lived and worked at IRSAC before the Congo gained its stormy independence. Now there are 20, and at the height of the Kivu Province anarchy the number dropped to 12.

One by one the legacies of Congolese turmoil are falling away.

This month local authorities returned a radio transmitter they sezied during the days when any white man in Kivu was considered a spy.

Once this is restored to working condition IRSAC's atmospheric and seismographic data can be transmitted speedily for correlation with other observation posts around the earth.

European families evacuated during the troubles are on their way back. By September, the population at the station will be 70, a including wives and children, two-thirds the preindependence figure.

The oak-paneled library, where over 3,000 scientific periodicals were received regularly until delivery stopped abruptly in 1960, is gradually being replenished.

This center of higher learning was founded shortly after World War II, as part of Belgium's program to develop educational and research institutions in her sources-rich colony.

In Venezuela, Bank Robberies...:Assassination

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Bank robberies... assassination... terrorism.

Dangerous because they are made desperate by the sting of defeat, the Communists are dipping deep into their arsenal of lawlessness in an attempt to bring chaos to Venezuela.

In another 15 months, if all goes well, Venezuela will make history. It then will have had a duly elected government which lasted out its full term of office and permitted orderly transition to a new one. It never has happened before.

The Communist-Castroist combine, smarting from one serious setback after another, is throwing caution to the winds in this final round of a knock-down, drag-out battle over what it probably regards as the most attractive target in all Latin America—rich, restless Venezuela.

WILD EAST

The wild east of Bolshevik days has been transferred to the west. Like the Bolshevik bandits of Czarist Russia under Stalin and others, bands of wild-eyed young Communist thugs, each anywhere from six to a dozen strong, storm into country banks, nervous fingers on the triggers of Czechoslovak tommy guns smuggled to them from Cuba.

Openly they announce to cowed victims that this raid is for the party. The party needs the money. The party is building up its war chest. They scoop up hundreds of thousands of bolivars and disappear.

Other Communist bands steal radio and communications equipment.

Others carry out swift, senseless assassinations of ordinary policemen. At least 25 have been mowed down this year in a terrorist attack aimed at destroying their morale.

For the Communists, it's all part of a desperate gamble. They know they are now turning the population bitterly against them and their Castroist allies. But they already have lost much in popular support in Venezuela. They failed in several successive leftist attempts to overthrow the Betancourt government. The people are palpably annoyed. They are criticizing the government for not moving more drastically against the extremists.

The Communist campaign has two facets. One is the constant pressure of violence, spurred by the suspicion that they are losing ground and must go for broke if they are to prevent a measure of political stability in the nation. The other is the legalistic side, the notion presented to the public, as one Communist leader is saying publicly, that "we must pause and regroup."

They may be regrouping, but they are not pausing. There is too much at stake. They have lost the momentum provided by Fidel Castro. A year ago he was a distinct threat to Venezuela, as he was in many other Latin-American areas. Today, the name Castro has lost its glitter. Too many people are aware of what is going on in Cuba, delivered body and soul to the Communist bloc.

What is the Communist aim? How do they mean to stop President Romulo Betancourt, their worst enemy in Latin America, from finishing out his term?

A young Venezuelan political leader put it this way: "The Communists have been plagued by their own friends, the Castro extremists. The young, fiery, impatient elements, who wanted to take the country overnight, have added up to disaster for the Communist party. It is now damning the so-called 'adventurist cliques,' meaning the Castroists, and going back to the textbooks. The proletarian element—meaning the Communist party—must lead the revolutionary movement, and the movement must be disciplined.

"But, although the country is still seething for various economic reasons, the Communist party has lost much ground in the last year, has alienated many of its former followers because of extremist acts of terrorism. In spite of itself, the Communist party has become a haven for all sorts of lunatic elements in the country, including young lunatics in the military.

THE PARTY

"The party, however, is hoping for one thing now: the overthrow of the Betancourt government by an extreme right—not left—wing movement in the armed forces. It is hoping to provoke this by one means or another.

"The Communists hope that then the present leaders of Betancourt's Accion Democratica party will be purged, exiled, imprisoned. That will leave the framework of the democratic action to be infiltrated by them. They hope then to take over that framework and work against the military junta, so that when it is overthrown, a democratic action party, respectable in the eyes of the people but acually controlled by the Communists, can come into power."

But, say many Venezuelans, the Communists will not be able to do it.

Why not?

"They have gone too far," says one Venezuelan who has become disgusted with the extreme left. "The people are tired of their constant violence."

They tell a story about the Communist leader who warned a young political leader that the day would come when he would be placed against the wall and shot, like "the reactionaries" in Cuba.

"You may shoot me one day," the young man is said to have retorted. "But if you do it will not be at the wall. It will be on the barricades, fighting against you."

The exports gave Ceylon one of the highest standards of living in underdeveloped Asia, with a per capita income almost double that of India. In 1961, Ceylon's 10,167,000 people averaged 617 rupees—$129.57—apiece, scarcely higher than the per capita rate in 1948 because a population increase of 2.8 per cent a year has eaten up small economic gains.

The need to improve agriculture and industry has been recognized by successive Ceylonese governments, but little has been accomplished on either. The number of hungry mouths has increased 10 times as fast as rice production.

Industrialization, the key to a soundly balanced economy, would require a cut of luxury imports and also a combination of lower subsidies and higher taxes.

The predominately middle-class United National party that governed until 1956 only talked about industrialization. S.W.R.D. Bandaranaike, who came to power that year with the backing of rural masses, prepared the rough outline of a 10-year development plan. He was assassinated in September 1959. His widow became prime minister in 1960.

Ceylon needs foreign aid but has imperiled it by seizing some assets of U.S. and British oil companies. Private foreign investment has been frightened off by contradictory talk of nationalization and efforts to restrict expatriation of profits. For political reasons of nationalism among Ceylon's Buddhist Sinhalese majority, the talents of the Hindu Tamil minority are being wasted. Racial tension could explode.

Yet Parliament appears unconcerned. The budget debate involved little discussion of the budget and much violent political bickering.

Narcotic Problem Is A Complex One

By BERNARD GAVZER
Associated Press Writer

The new drug was truly miraculous. There was no pain it could not relieve. No matter how deep the suffering, there came sleep.

It was labeled morphine, after Morpheus, a god of sleep in Roman mythology.

The slumber soon was disturbed by a nightmare that has gone on for more than a century.

Morphine and related drugs have a diabolical quality—the more you use the more you need. The body revolts if you try to give it up.

The problems of narcotics addiction are complex and confusing. An attempt to analyze them and possibly point to a program of action will be made this week at the White House Conference on Narcotics, starting Sept. 27.

"The conference cannot be expected to come up with final solutions to the problems which have not been settled by federal, state and local governments," says Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"But it can pinpoint weaknesses of present approaches, indicate new directions which appear hopeful and suggest areas where meaningful research can be conducted."

ADDICTION

Kennedy did not specify the weaknesses nor elaborate on what he labels "misinformation that exists about the extent of drug addiction and abuse."

But there are two widespread misconceptions of the addict. One is the lingering image of a opulent opium den, the addict served by Orientals padding about in a blue haze. The other is of a depraved junkie, who needles himself with heroin and then rapes or murders.

While there may be rare real-life counterparts, both pictures are inaccurate. The opium den smoker is extinct. The image of the hopped up heroin junkie is contrary to fact.

The popular idea that dope leads to sex violence originated during a period when cocaine—a stimulant derived from the South American coca leaf—was more extensively used than it is today. Cocaine produces an immediate sense of exhiliration which is rapidly replaced by anxiety, hallucinations and delusions of a paranoid nature—a highly dangerous period. The reaction to cocaine has been transferred incorrectly to users of all narcotics.

The heroin addict — and that means about all the addicts—finds it difficult to become sexually aroused. The medical evidence is that heroin and other opium-derived drugs—which are depressants—depress the sexual appetite.

"I have never seen an addict rapist," Dr. Eugene F. Carey, a veteran police surgeon with the Chicago police department, reported several years ago. "Any long confirmed narcotic addict has about as much sex ability and desire as a dead cat."

There also is a common notion that narcotics ravages the body, popularized in motion pictures, novels, plays, television shows.

The medical fact is that neither heroin nor any of the opiates causes any permanent changes in the brain or central nervous system, or that it causes any changes except the body's greater tolerance of the drug.

Damage to the body is caused by the desperate addict's complete disregard of food or normal bodily care in his frantic efforts to satisfy his craving for a fix.

Alarm often is raised about dope being used to despoil the nation's young. But on the Bureau of Narcotics list of 46,798 known addicts in the United States there were at latest count only 116 who were 17 or under. This is less than one-quarter of one per cent.

The figures, however, must be interpreted with care. By no means is every user of narcotics known. One rule of thumb is that for every known user, there may be three who have managed to keep their addiction secret. Furthermore, the known addict list does not include users of marijuana, frequently cited as a particular threat to youth.

MARIJUANA

According to a spokesman at the Narcotics Bureau, the use of marijuana—while illegal under federal law—does not cause addiction. There are no withdrawal syndromes. The big danger is that a user will graduate to addicting drugs.

The large amount of crime caused by addicts is generally unrelated to laws on use of narcotics. A well-hooked addict—who needs a fresh dose as soon as the previous one wears off—has a very expensive habit. The cost can run as high as $40 to $60 a day, although the average is from $10 to $15.

There are few addicts who can lay hands legally on this amount of cash. They turn to crime. Women, as a rule, become prostitutes.

The answer to dope traditionally has been demand for tougher punishment. But critics of this approach insist a more effective way would be to cut the profit element by placing addicts in the care of doctors or in some other way treating them as sick persons — providing them needed drugs under supervision. It has been suggested that experimental clinics be set up so addicts could get out-patient treatment — a scheme that was tried several decades ago and fell into abuse.

"That would be like making Uncle Sam a dope peddler," said a Bureau of Narcotics agent.

"The adoption of such a plan as advocated by dewy-eyed, impractical, self-styled social reformers would lead only to disaster," contends Harry J. Anslinger, who recently resigned as director of the Bureau of Narcotics, which he headed since it was set up.

Now that Anslinger has retired there are some who think there will be a shift in federal philosophy.

THE QUESTION of when German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, 86, should retire and who might succeed him is shaping into a serious political test in West Germany. Possible successors have refrained from pushing themselves into the limelight. Among those most logically in line are: Heinrich Krone, minister without portfolio; Franz-Joseph Strauss, defense minister; Ludwig Erhard, vice chancellor and economics minister and Gerhard Schroeder, foreign minister. Successor To Adenauer Now Political Dilemma

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BONN, Germany (AP) — The question of when Konrad Adenauer should retire and who should succeed him is shaping more and more into a serious political dilemma for West Germany.

The question has been publicly debated off and on since 1959 when the chancellor said he would retire to run for the more ceremonial job of president, then changed his mind because of the ensuing feud over a successor.

FOURTH TERM

When Adenauer's Christian Democratic party lost its parliamentary majority last fall, Adenauer said he would retire in time to give his successor a chance to learn the job before 1965's general elections. After this concession the Free Democrats joined a coalition that elected Adenauer for a fourth term.

Now the question has again become a hot issue.

Erich Mende, head of the Free Democrats, has threatened to take his party out of the coalition unless the 86-year-old chancellor resigns in the fall of next year.

Mende insists that his threat be taken seriously even though it was made in Schleswig-Holstein Province, where his party is fighting to keep its three seats in the legislature.

"He can't attack government policy because his party has a hand in making it, so he hacks away at the old man," said one prominent Christian Democrat. "In doing this, Mende is toying with his own destruction."

Mende is indeed taking a big chance. If he does carry out his threat it could mean the end of the Free Democrats' voice in Parliament, where they hold 67 seats out of 499.

Political experts argue that the foxy old chancellor would not be beyond forming a coalition with the Socialists if he feels it will keep him in power. And the Socialists are likely to try anything to get into the government.

Such a coalition could be prevented if the Christian Democrats promise enough to a few Free Democrats to get them to change parties. Adenauer needs only eight seats for an absolute majority.

Adenauer aides say the "old man" is by no means tired of his job and intends to stay on at least until the end of next year.

The executive secretary of the Christian Democrats, Herman Dufhues, says the questions of retirement and a successor will be settled "calmly but also firmly."

But many bets have been made in Bonn—among politicians and government officials—that Adenauer, unless illness prevents him, will say again "you don't change horses in midstream" and announce his candidacy for yet another four-year term.

The men most logically in line for the chancellorship refrain from pushing themselves into the limelight.

Ludwig Erhard, 65, vice chancellor and economics minister still is the Christian Democrat party's choice but Adenauer has many times indicated that he felt the father of what is called Germany's economic miracle lacks the political ability to be chancellor.

SUPPORT LOST

Tough Defense Minister Franz-Josef Strauss, whose aspirations for the top job have long been an open secret, appears to have lost support since he was accused and exonerated of misusing his office for financial gain.

Gerhard Schroeder, young and energetic foreign minister whose pragmatic handling of Bonn's foreign policy has won him orchids from even the Socialists, is in the running. But, his friends point out, he is too clever to make any public utterances about possible chancellor ambitions.

Another possibility is Heinrich Krone, 67, minister without portfolio and former parliamentary majority leader. Krone, affectionately known by party cronies as "Papa", has long been one of Adenauer's closest confidantes.

One thing seems certain: Solving the dilemma over Adenauer's retirement and succession will be a crucial test of West Germany's young democracy.

Scientific Shangri-La In The Heart Of Africa

By PETER GROSE

LWIRO, Congo (AP) — High in the mountains at the heart of Africa a small band of scientists has weathered the Congo crisis, custodians during chaos of a remote Shangri-La for scientific research.

A short distance from Bukavu in Kivu Province, 1,000 miles east of Leopoldville, a winding dirt road leads up the slopes overlooking Lake Kivu. Through the trees appears an unexpected cluster of low buildings—like a monastery, or one of the Spanish missions in California with its secluded cloisters and quadrangles.

Inside the stone gates the visitor leaves far behind the political turmoil in the valley below. The air is serene and academic, and looming out of the bush is a $4-million complex of laboratories to probe the fringes of man's knowledge.

Almost unbelieveably, after two years of Congo upheavals, this scientific haven is still intact. Its scientists and modern equipment are once again at the disposal of the West for space age research.

The Central African Institute for Scientific Research known as IRSAC—was one of the most important research establishments on the continent before the Congo became independent in 1960. Then during months of lawlessness and violence the scientific world outside gave it up for lost.

"They couldn't believe that an advanced research station could go on functioning amid all the disorders of the Congo," said one of these scientists who stayed at his post throughout the troubles.

Some 20 well-equipped laboratories—for electronics, nutrition and the study of earthquakes to name just a few—are now waiting to be reactivated.

Modern electronic computers and radar stand in working order after two years of hibernation, guarded lovingly by the caretaker scientists.

Once the spiderwebs and protective shrouds are cleared away IRSAC's installations could help detect atomic tests.

Equipment is at hand for observing the earth's radiation belts with favorable conditions unique in the world.

The quartz clock at IRSAC could transmit the exact time to all of Africa—accurate to one-ten-thousandth of a second.

Over 60 international researchers lived and worked at IRSAC before the Congo gained its stormy independence. Now there are 20, and at the height of the Kivu Province anarchy the number dropped to 12.

One by one the legacies of Congolese turmoil are falling away.

This month local authorities returned a radio transmitter they sezied during the days when any white man in Kivu was considered a spy.

Once this is restored to working condition IRSAC's atmospheric and seismographic data can be transmitted speedily for correlation with other observation posts around the earth.

European families evacuated during the troubles are on their way back. By September, the population at the station will be 70, including wives and children, two-thirds the preindependence figure.

The oak-paneled library, where over 3,000 scientific periodicals were received regularly until delivery stopped abruptly in 1960, is gradually being replenished.

This center of higher learning was founded shortly after World War II, as part of Belgium's program to develop educational and research institutions in her resources-rich colony.

In Venezuela, Bank Robberies...:Assassination

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Bank robberies... assassination... terrorism.

Dangerous because they are made desperate by the sting of defeat, the Communists are dipping deep into their arsenal of lawlessness in an attempt to bring chaos to Venezuela.

In another 15 months, if all goes well, Venezuela will make history. It then will have had a duly elected government which lasted out its full term of office and permitted orderly transition to a new one. It never has happened before.

The Communist-Castroist combine, smarting from one serious setback after another, is throwing caution to the winds in this final round of a knock-down, drag-out battle over what it probably regards as the most attractive target in all Latin America—rich, restless Venezuela.

WILD EAST

The wild east of Bolshevik days has been transferred to the west. Like the Bolshevik bandits of Czarist Russia under Stalin and others, bands of wild-eyed young Communist thugs, each anywhere from six to a dozen strong, storm into country banks, nervous fingers on the triggers of Czechoslovak tommy guns smuggled to them from Cuba.

Openly they announce to cowed victims that this raid is for the party. The party needs the money. The party is building up its war chest. They scoop up hundreds of thousands of bolivars and disappear.

Other Communist bands steal radio and communications equipment.

Others carry out swift, senseless assassinations of ordinary policemen. At least 25 have been mowed down this year in a terrorist attack aimed at destroying their morale.

For the Communists, it's all part of a desperate gamble. They know they are now turning the population bitterly against them and their Castroist allies. But they already have lost much in popular support in Venezuela. They failed in several successive leftist attempts to overthrow the Betancourt government. The people are palpably annoyed. They are criticizing the government for not moving more drastically against the extremists.

The Communist campaign has two facets. One is the constant pressure of violence, spurred by the suspicion that they are losing ground and must go for broke if they are to prevent a measure of political stability in the nation. The other is the legalistic side, the notion presented to the public, as one Communist leader is saying publicly, that "we must pause and regroup."

They may be regrouping, but they are not pausing. There is too much at stake. They have lost the momentum provided by Fidel Castro. A year ago he was a distinct threat to Venezuela, as he was in many other Latin-American areas. Today, the name Castro has lost its glitter. Too many people are aware of what is going on in Cuba, delivered body and soul to the Communist bloc.

What is the Communist aim? How do they mean to stop President Romulo Betancourt, their worst enemy in Latin America, from finishing out his term?

A young Venezuelan political leader put it this way: "The Communists have been plagued by their own friends, the Castro extremists. The young, fiery, impatient elements, who wanted to take the country overnight, have added up to disaster for the Communist party. It is now damning the so-called 'adventurist cliques,' meaning the Castroists, and going back to the textbooks. The proletarian element—meaning the Communist party—must lead the revolutionary movement, and the movement must be disciplined.

"But, although the country is still seething for various economic reasons, the Communist party has lost much ground in the last year, has alienated many of its former followers because of extremist acts of terrorism. In spite of itself, the Communist party has become a haven for all sorts of lunatic elements in the country, including young lunatics in the military.

THE PARTY

"The party, however, is hoping for one thing now: the overthrow of the Betancourt government by an extreme right—not left—wing movement in the armed forces. It is hoping to provoke this by one means or another.

"The Communists hope that then the present leaders of Betancourt's Accion Democratica party will be purged, exiled, imprisoned. That will leave the framework of the democratic action to be infiltrated by them. They hope then to take over that framework and work against the military junta, so that when it is overthrown, a democratic action party, respectable in the eyes of the people but acually controlled by the Communists, can come into power."

But, say many Venezuelans, the Communists will not be able to do it.

Why not?

"They have gone too far," says one Venezuelan who has become disgusted with the extreme left. "The people are tired of their constant violence."

They tell a story about the Communist leader who warned a young political leader that the day would come when he would be placed against the wall and shot, like "the reactionaries" in Cuba.

"You may shoot me one day," the young man is said to have retorted. "But if you do it will not be at the wall. It will be on the barricades, fighting against you."

EXOTIC TOUR

India Made-To-Order Many Visitors Think

By MAXINE ATWATER

CALCUTTA, INDIA — As a major air gateway, this is one of India's best known cities, although it is not her most glamorous or interesting. Wise travelers look beyond overcrowded Calcutta and think of it as an exotic depot

Beyond is the beauty of India's diverse landscapes — White deserts, soaring mountain peaks, dense jungles and sprawling beaches. The best examples of India's man-made wonders — ancient cave paintings, intricately carved temples, glittering palaces and century-old cities deserted by all save ghosts — are easily accessible from Calcutta.

Planes, trains, limousines and buses link Calcutta with the most rewarding destinations in this vast country. Airline travel is the favored mode of transportation for the foreign visitor, although short trips should be included on the country's railroad which is comparable with the world's best Foreign travelers receive a 15 per cent discount in the first-class, air-conditioned compartments.

Japan Air Lines, which begins twice-weekly service to Calcutta, Karachi, Cairo, Rome and Frankfort from the Far East and Europe October 4, suggests visitors to India set aside two weeks or more to discover the land, using an itinerary like the following

After a one-day tour of Calcutta, admiring the fabulous Jain Temple, Indian Museum and shop-browsing, hop a plane bound for Madras, three-and-a-half hours away

In this intellectual center of southern India, take in the culture by strolling through the city past the imposing English buildings, gardens and broad avenues. See the San Thome Cathedral where Saint Thomas was buried, the world headquarters of the Theosophical Society with its library of palm leaf manuscripts and rare metaphysical volumes, and "the Abode of the Peacock," one of the most colorful temples in India with a live peacock inhabiting the premises.

For a breath of sea air, wander beneath the blooming acacia trees canopying the world's second longest Marina Drive that skirts the Bay of Bengal for eight miles. Take a pleasant half-day trip to the ancient seaport, Mahabalipuram. In the sixth century it was a school for sculpture set up by the reigning king. You can see the colossal results — elephants, horses, chariots — as big as buildings all carved from single boulders of granite.

The thrill of a visit to Cochin is the opportunity to set sail like traders have for centuries along part of the waterway. Instead of a timeless native canoe, modern explorers can lean back in cushioned comfort and cruise by motorized launch, for an afternoon or a week.

The setting — emerald green trees, bright yellow flowers, chartreuse fields of rice, and torrid sunsets that melt greens to reds—is spectacular. So are the sights on the islands: tiny thatched homes with lampshade roofs, tropical gardens, pastel-painted vendor's stands where barefoot women with tinkling anklets gather, hidden shrines and even a Christian Cathedral.

After two or three days, continue with a short flying jump to Bangalore and from there luxuriate for three, air-conditioned hours in the first-class compartment of the train headed for the regal city of Mysore. In this formerly insulated city, once a year the governor, rides a bejeweled elephant through the city streets leading one of the most lavish parades this side of a fairy tale. Even if you're not around for this, the Dussehra Festival in September, there are other sights which speak of Mysore's rich tradition.

Outstanding is the golden-domed Maharaja's Palace, and his stables in back housing dancing horses and beautifully - marked parade elephants. To add to the fantasy, in the evenings you can see from the balcony of your room at the Krishnaraj Sagar Hotel — less than $8 for a double room — the terraced Brindaran Gardens where countless fountains are illuminated in technicolor hues.

Returning to Bangalore by train, continue by plane to Bombay, three hours away, and plan to spend two days with time to see the eighth century cave temples of Elephanta containing magnificent sculpture and relief panels.

From Bombay circle back to Calcutta by way of Delhi, India's modern capital, Jaipur, the pink city where you can go elephant riding; Benaras on the banks of the sacred Ganges River; and Agra, home of the Taj Mahal and the abandoned city of Fatehpur Sikri.

Don't rest yet. Once back in Calcutta, head for the hills, namely Tiger Hill in Darjeeling overlooking awesome Mount Everest. It's a short plane trip to this Himalayan hideaway and just the place to recall, in inspring surroundings, your busy but exciting tour of India.

NATIONAL SKI TRIAL

Alaska Planning Sporting Event

The first major national sporting event ever staged in Alaska will take place in the spring of 1963, when the U. S. National Ski Championships and Olympic Trials are run on the slopes of Mt. Alyeska near Anchorage.

Alaskans expect the April 5-6-7 event to firmly entrench the 49th State as a leading winter travel destination among ski and winter-sport enthusiasts.

Site of the races — Mt. Alyeska — is 33 miles southeast of Anchorage. Alaska's largest city, and is accessible over paved road, by bus and auto and by rail.

Equipment at the area includes a one-mile double-passenger chairlift which carries skiers to a glass enclosed sun deck-cafeteria for a breath taking view of ocean waters and eight glaciers. Other features include a 2,600 foot Poma lift and several rope tows plus a newly constructed hotel with dining room, cocktail lounge, rathskellar, ski shop, first aid room, and ski patrol headquarters.

Although Alyeska is Alaska's largest ski area, the 49th State does boast an additional 16 non-military ski areas. These slopes, too, offer the fine powder snow at low altitudes for which all of Alaska is becoming famous.

The areas center in regions around Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Juneau.

In the Anchorage area are Mt. Alyeska; Arctic Valley with its 2800 foot T-bar and several rope tows and the following other tow-equipped resorts and slopes — Chalet Tahneta, Independence Mine, Eagle River, Kachemak Ski Club, Little Susitna, Romig Hill (right in Anchorage), Soldotna Ski Hill, and Valdez.

Around Fairbanks the avid skier has five areas to sample including Cleary Summit with its 3,000 foot T-bar plus several rope tows, Ullr-haven Lodge which plans to install a J-bar soon to supplement its tow equipment, plus these tow-equipped facilities — Arctic Circle Hot Springs Resort (100 miles by air from Fairbanks, boasting not only skiing but winter swimming in hot springs pools), Ski Boot Hill, and Ski-Land, Inc.

The Juneau ski visitor has one, and on occasion two, locations to choose from. Tow-equipped Douglas Ski Bowl, just three miles from downtown Juneau, is accessible by helicopter or by easy trail. Eleven miles north of town and overlooking Mendenhall Glacier the "Glacierama" ski development is in its planning stages. At present there are no tows or lifts to this bowl but on occasion the Juneau Ski Club sponsors group trips to the area by helicopter.

Several Alaska carriers offer ski tours to one or more of the three regions and independent travelers can arrange layovers in one or more cities at little or no extra cost. (Enroute to Anchorage or Fairbanks, for instance, a traveler can stop off at Juneau at no extra cost. The Fairbanks passenger, in fact, could stop off at both Anchorage and Juneau at practically no additional charge. Travel agents and airlines can give costs and details.)

RUNNING THE SCALES

Entertainment Row New I-20 Prospect

By JOHN CALE

With the summertime theatre an established habit at the Strauss Playhouse, live entertainment appears headed for a year 'round stretch here in northeast Louisiana.

These events were covered individually by a local critic, but this is the first scale-running column to appear since the 1961-62 season closed out last spring. By the way, Little Theatre's 1962-63 membership drive is currently underway. The season promises several plays and a musical.

Since this is an age of rash predictions, we might venture to say that the completion of the I-20 highway might bring with it a new era in fine entertainment availability across the top of Louisiana. Shreveport, Ruston and Monroe might find themselves in a position to offer more programs to more people than would be the case in the largest southern cities.

This was the topic of a recent conversation with L. V. E. Irvine of the Louisiana Tech Concert Association. He referred to the Northeast State College artist series here, the many private bookings in addition to Shreveport's Community Concerts as well as his own organization.

Irvine, however, a veteran organizer of concerts on the Tech campus, is not waiting for the new "road" to put his show upon. His membership drive for renewals is already in progress and he hopes to start soliciting for new members around October 1. Attractions thus far announced run all the way from "Sound of Music" to pianist Roger Williams and the Romeros Family guitarists.

Dr. Harry Lemert, who manages the Northeast series here, has announced the formal curtain raising for early December in order to avoid conflicts with the football season. The organization's annual membership campaign is slated for mid-October, so watch this column for latest developments and an announcement of attractions.

ART FESTIVAL

Before getting into big city opera announcements, there's an event slated for Saturday October 6 in Columbia that deserves the attention of anyone in the area interested in what makes art "tick." This is the seventh annual festival sponsored by the Caldwell Parish Library board and promoted by Mrs. O. N. Reynolds.

Whatever this festival is, it is not false or "arty." Whether the entries are school projects, amateur swirls or serious efforts, they all take on an honest appearance under the trees. Conversations among viewers and painters are equally disarming.

An ambitious handler of the brush can approach a visiting art teacher from any of several schools and get an unvarnished opinion of a particular creation without the teacher's ever realizing he might be addressing the creator himself or herself. Or if you don't care for pure paint and no varnish, you can take advantage of the "sidewalk cafe" for pie and coffee and watch the onlookers.

BIG OPERA

The New Orleans Opera House Association will on October 11th open its 1962-1963 season for the organization's 20th anniversary of Grand Opera. The Opera House will present six operas under the baton of Renato Cellini of the singers of international renown. Tickets for the season are now available at the Opera House Association, 420 St. Charles Avenue.

The opening opera of the season on October 11 and 13 will be Rigoletto starring the coloratura sensation of the Metropolitan opera, Gianna D'Angelo as Gilda; Cornell MacNeil reigning baritone of the Metropolitan as Rigoletto and Flaviano Labo, tenor star of La Scala Opera of Milan, Italy as the Duke. The MARRIAGE OF FIGARO will be presented on October 25 and 27 with the all-star cast of Lisa della Casa, Frances Bible, Judith Raskin, Cecilia Ward and Italo Tajo.

Lucia Di Lammermoor will be presented on November 8 and 10, again featuring Gianna D'Angelo in the title role and with Giuseppe Campora one of Italy's most famous tenors as Edgardo. On November 29 and December 1 New Orleans will hear its native son, famous bass-baritone, Norman Treigle of the New York City Opera in the role of Mephistopheles in Faust. Canadian tenor, Richard Verreau will sing the title role and Eva Likova will sing the role of Marguerite.

The spring season of the opera will begin on March 21 and 23 with Dorothy Kirsten singing the title role of Tosca. Andre Turp, leading tenor of Covert Garden, London will sing the role of Cavaradossi and baritone Cesare Bardelli will sing the role of Scarpia. On April 4 and 6, Anna Moffo of the Metropolitan Opera will sing the role of Violetta in La Traviata. John Alexander, also of the Metropolitan will sing the tenor role of Alfredo and Manuel Ausensi, the Spanish baritone will sing the role of Germont.

HOUSTON

The Houston Grand Opera Association will open its eighth season with an intimate, light opera, "The Elixir of Love" by Donizetti, to be sung in English in Cullen Auditorium, University of Houston, Sept. 28, 29, and 30, starting promptly at 8 PM.

Conductor Walter Herbert feels that the charm of this opera will be more readily captured in the smaller hall. The other three productions for the season will be presented in the Music Hall, as usual, with the Houston Symphony Orchestra. These are: Verdi's "Il Trovatore", Nov. 29 and Dec. 1; a double bill of Puccini's "Il Tabarro" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci" Jan. 17 and 19; and Wagner's "Die Meistersinger", March 28 and 30.

Sale of single tickets is now in progress for Dallas Civic Opera's 1962 season Nov. 30 - Dec. 15.

Tickets can be ordered from the Civic Opera Office, 309 Browder, Dallas. Brochures describing the season and containing mail order blanks will be sent to some 25,000 opera fans in the Southwest and throughout the country.

The company's sixth annual season in State Fair Music Hall will include "Otello" Nov. 30 and Dec. 8; "Barber of Seville" Dec. 1 and 7, and a double bill of "Suor Angelica" and "Pagliacci" Dec. 13 and 15.

A special student matinee of "Barber" also will be presented Dec. 9.

TRAVELING AROUND

Klondike Not For Sissies

DAWSON CITY, Yukon — Lacking gold, what does the Klondike offer to lure thousands north today?

The tourist would do well to meditate the words of Yukon poet Robert Service — "Send not your foolish and feeble; send me your strong and your sane . . ."

A first impression of Dawson City is that nothing has really changed since the frantic gold rush days of 1898. And the law of the land demands from its visitors a quality of adventure and stamina absent in less rugged resorts.

The dirt roads are covered with crude gravel taken from rock tailings in nearby dredging operations. And sidewalks — when there are any — are made of boards.

Everywhere are decaying buildings — unpainted frame structures with vacant windows, sagging at every corner.

The population of 700 is a curious mixture of half-breed and full blood Indian, families of the pioneers who have become conditioned to the area, and old sourdoughs who regard the Yukon as their birthright.

Dawson City is a decayed relic of the past. In this very lack of preservation lies the magic of the Klondike.

How anyone managed to get there in the first place is a mystery. But when seen in the context of the word "gold," even now the tourist may catch a glimpse of the passion which drove men to conquer the country in hopes of a fortune.

The endless stretch of snow-capped Yukon Mountains give the first hint that one has entered a no-man's - land. Even the Rocky Mountains of the rest of Canada and the United States are civilized in comparison.

The setting of Dawson City itself runs parallel with the Yukon image.

On one side is the Yukon River — swift, wide and strewn with rapids. The Midnight Dome and lesser hills fence in the tiny site. And the miles of rock-burying gold claims of the 1898 prospectors is a scene almost frightening in its desolation.

It is the land of Dangerous Dan McGrew, and hordes of other real ghosts who are kept alive in the tales of the old-timers.

Apart from history, the Klondike area is a gold mine for the sportsman. Big game, fishing and camping sites are close at hand.

The weather hasn't changed — frigid in winter with a midnight sun which highlights the visit, and hot in summer.

If all this is the attraction of Dawson City, the country can win on its own merit.

But the tourist looking for a storybook village will hop the next plane out.

With the recent opening of the gold rush festival, $750,000 has been spent on the area to draw visitors. This represented contributions from the Canadian Government, the Dawson City Festival Foundation and local businessmen.

Most noticeable results were the restored Palace Grand Theater, originally built by Indian fighter Arizona Charlie Meadows, and the old stern-wheeler, S. S. Keno, now being used as a "hotel" for tourists.

After an enthusiastic opening, the government hopes the festival will flourish on its own in the future.

But it is a moot point whether an historic memory is enough to bring visitors flocking to Dawson City.

Kerouac's Problems

BIG SUR. By Jack Kerouac. Farrar, Straus and Cudahy. $4.50.

It just goes to show that out - of - this - world beatniks can get themselves into worldly troubles too.

After Kerouac's "On The Road" became a financial success, the man billed as "King of the Beatniks' found himself a celebrity and an easy touch. On a trip to San Francisco to visit his old flophouse haunts and renew acquaintanceship with his ex-convict friends, he suddenly decided he had to get away from it all. (Just like a junior executive.)

So he borrowed a friend's cabin at Raton Canyon in the Big Sur country and communed with nature. It took him nearly three weeks to get bored, and then he had to go back to the city for some companionship in his drinking bouts and Zen talk.

He ran into two further problems — an entanglement with Billie, the part - time mistress of his friend Perry, and the physical decline that a man in his 40s is bound to undergo when he stays drunk for weeks.

This time he took some of his friends along when he returned to the Big Sur, but everything went wrong. Alcoholic thoughts of death and suspicious about his friends made him feel he was flipping his lid. But everything cleared up when it dawned on him that he could go back East. The moral seems to be that beatniks have to escape from themselves too. (Just like junior executives.)

Kerouac's admirers will find his style still is a slippery, glittering, mishmash of words drowning in their own bubbling effervescence.

Stamp News

The United States honors the centennial observance of the law creating land-grant colleges and universities by issuing a new 4-cent stamp which points to the role higher education is playing in the cultural and industrial development of this country.

The new stamp goes on sale Nov. 14, in Washington, D. C.

The stamp will feature poster-type art against a bas-relief map of the United States. There is an oil lamp of the ancients — the tradiional lamp of learning. The colors are green and black on white paper.

The Post Office Department points out that land-grant colleges and universities have produced 25 of the 42 living American Nobel Prize winners and train almost half of all regular and reserve officers of the armed forces through their ROTC programs.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the higher education stamp may send their addressed envelopes, together with the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington, D. C. The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be clearly marked "First Day Higher Education Stamp." Cover requests must be postmarked not later than Nov. 14, 1962.

Minkus Publications has just released three new albums designed for young collectors. The Minkus "United States Stamp Album" provides space for regular postal issues, commemoratives and airmails. The Minkus "World Stamp Album," which has spaces for more than 4,300 stamps, represents 420 stamp-issuing countries. The Minkus "Guide to Stamp Collecting" tells youngsters or those beginning a collection how to start and what to do. All three new albums cost $1 each.

Republic of South Africa has announced two commemorative postage stamps paying tribute to the unveiling of the precinct stone of the British Settlers INSERT Monument at Grahamstown. The stamps portray the ship "Chapmen." This ship arrived in Algoa Bay on April 10, 1820, bringing the first of a large group of settlers from Britain.

Two nations, Eire and Luxemburg, have announced issuance of stamps honoring Europa. The designs are the same for each country featuring the "Europa Tree." Collectors desiring special first day covers of the Eire stamps may write to Irish Cachet Covers, 947 E. 32nd St., Brooklyn 10, N. Y. The cost of a complete set on cover is $1.

The United Arab Republic has issued a new stamp to commemorate the Independence of Algeria. The design depicts the Algerian flag flying over the Independent Algerian State. A broken chain symbolizes the end of the French regime in Algeria.

BOOKS

Military Coup Is Described

SEVEN DAYS IN MAY. By Fletcher Knebel and Charles W. Bailey II. Harper & Row. $4.95.

It's a thriller about a seven-day crisis in the White House in the 1970's. By the fifth day of this narrative the reader can't stop.

President Jordan Lyman has negotiated with Russian premier Feemerov a treaty for nuclear disarmament, and has managed to get it ratified by the Senate, but has become unpopular with a worried public. Meanwhile, in the top levels of the armed services there is a conservative, anit-treaty clique that has become increasingly restless under civilian control.

At the center of this clique is the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. James M. (Gentleman Jim) Scott, a popular public figure who has definite ideas about the next presidential race. The reader soon learns that a power-hungry senator and an ultraconservative broadcaster also are involved with the clique.

An earnest Marine colonel at the Pentagon catches the first whiffs of what is in the wind—a military coup, timed to coincide with a practice alert, with Congress away from the Capitol and the vice president overseas. Lyman, not knowing how far the dissatisfaction has spread, has to fight the plot with a handful of confidantes.

The story idea, thus telescoped into a few sentences, sounds pretty fanciful. But the authors (two veteran Washington newsmen) have managed to make the situation sound sufficiently plausible to carry the action along. There is a lot of "inside Washington" color—maybe exaggerated a trifle here and there, but with a realistic ring.

Here is excitement plus. Peril and politics, a bit of sex and a lot of skullduggery, it makes an exhilarating story.

Second War Novel By James Jones

THE THIN RED LINE. By James Jones. Scribners. $5.95.

The title of this novel about combat at Guadalcanal could refer to Kipling's "Thin red line of 'eroes," or to the narrow border between man and beast, sanity and insanity.

It is a story about a rifle company, C - For - Charlie. No single individual stands out as a protagonist against fate, though of course some are more prominent than others.

It covers a period of several months, from the time the company arrives at the island, and much of it is concerned with C - For - Charlie's first experience in combat.

Jones is extremely skillful in describing with microscopic thoroughness the raw, graphic details of close-in fighting, the fear and nausea, the insane incoherence of the action, the numbing physical sensations relieved only by wild oscillations of hope and terror.

On another level, he delineates with equal thoroughness the ironic, seemingly haphazard qualities that make the distinction between real, unintentional heroes and the intentional, overrated heros.

He shows us such individuals as Fife, the company clerk, who thought himself a coward but became a combat squad leader; Capt. Stein, personally courageous but too humane to commit his men to death; Witt, an insensitive gorrilla who was loyal to the whole company; Dale, the cook who discovered he could throw himself naturally into the gambles of fighting; and Bell, the ex - officer who worried less about death than he did about the faithfulness of his wife back home.

If there is a flaw in the author's handling of his characters, it lies in the area of their relations with each other. He tells us much of individuals, but little of their reactions to each other. This story is as grim as Mailer's "The Naked and The Dead." It is a huge picture of men at war, but Jones and others have done it before.

Some readers will find this book a masterful exposition of the horrors of war, illuminated by a cool, detached pity for its human pawns. But some may feel that this pock-marked terrain has been crossed before, and that it needs a landmark.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Important Novel Now In Library

By Frances Flanders
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The most important novel of this week and probably of any week is Allen Drury's new book "A Shade of Difference." Those who read and enjoyed "Advise and Consent" will want to read this one and we predict an enormous popularity for this book. Set again in contemporary Washington, Mr. Drury points up for us the struggle between the black nations and the white ones. Mr. Drury tells a compelling story and shatters our complacency. This is a book to make the reader stop and think about the issues that are with us today and tomorrow. Many of the same characters who appeared in "Advise and Consent" are back with us. This is a book that should have a profound impact on the reader. It has been discussed not only by book reviewers, but by some of the top columnists of our times. Don't miss "A Shade of Difference."

Another book which deals with today's world is "Communications In Space, From Wireless To Satellite Relay." This is a timely book and will interest many readers. An interesting new book in the field of science is "The World of Ice" written by James L. Dyson. This is the story of glaciers in the past and today. It deals with the polar ice caps, icebergs and many other fascinating topics. This book is full of very interesting information and is one that you will find absorbing. Warren R. Guild is the author of "How To Keep Fit and Enjoy It: A Step-By-Step approach to Fitness After 30". This book discusses diet and health. It suggests programs of exercise and gives excellent ideas on how to reduce. This book is certain to be read and used. Especially valuable are the calorie charts which give the exact number of calories in the foods that we eat most often.

A book which should interest every landscape gardener is "The Home Owners Tree Book" by John Stuart Martin. It contains a great deal of sensible and valuable advice. Basketball coaches will welcome a new book written by Pete Newell. It gives invaluable information about training basketball teams.

An interesting book in the field of literature is "In Defense of Reading" by Reuben A. Brower. This is an interesting approach to the world of literary criticism. Would you like to know how to make doll furniture? There is a very interesting new book called "Let's Make Doll Furniture" written by Eileen Mercer. John C. Miller is the author of "The Colonial Image" which discusses the origins of American culture as revealed in the writings of men and women who shared the colonial experience. This is a fascinating collection of early American literature and should be widely used. Irwin R. Blacker is the editor of an impressive anthology, called "The Old West in Fact," which is a sequel to his the "Old West In Fiction." This collection contains many of the classics of the development of the West and should be very useful to students as well as enjoyable reading for those who like to read about the west.

An interesting book about one of our neighbors to the South is "Guatemala" written by Mario Rosenthal. This is the story of the unique Latin American state which was able to resist the Communists. This book shows that democracy can work in Latin America and that it is the best defense against Communism, in fact it is their only hope for survival as independent people.

Two books of interest to the genealogists of this area have recently been added to the library. One is "Legal Records of Washington Parish, 1819-1897". The other is "Abstracts of Deeds of Marion county, Mississippi, 1812-1840." Both of these volumes were compiled and edited by E. Russ Williams, Jr.

EXOTIC TOUR

India Made-To-Order Many Visitors Think

By MAXINE ATWATER

CALCUTTA, INDIA — As a major air gateway, this is one of India's best known cities, although it is not her most glamorous or interesting. Wise travelers look beyond overcrowded Calcutta and think of it as an exotic depot.

Beyond is the beauty of India's diverse landscapes — White deserts, soaring mountain peaks, dense jungles and sprawling beaches. The best examples of India's man-made wonders — ancient cave paintings, intricately-carved temples, glittering palaces and century-old cities deserted by all save ghosts — are easily accessible from Calcutta.

Planes, trains, limousines and buses link Calcutta with the most rewarding destinations in this vast country. Airline travel is the favored mode of transportation for the foreign visitor, although short trips should be included on the country's railroad which is comparable with the world's best. Foreign travelers receive a 15 per cent discount in the first-class, air-conditioned compartments.

Japan Air Lines, which begins twice-weekly service to Calcutta, Karachi, Cairo, Rome and Frankfort from the Far East and Europe October 4, suggests visitors to India set aside two weeks or more to discover the land, using an itinerary like the following:

After a one-day tour of Calcutta, admiring the fabulous Jain Temple, Indian Museum and shop-browsing, hop a plane bound for Madras, three-and-a-half hours away.

In this intellectual center of southern India, take in the culture by strolling through the city past the imposing English buildings, gardens and broad avenues. See the San Thome Cathedral where Saint Thomas was buried, the world headquarters of the Theosophical Society with its library of palm leaf manuscripts and rare metaphysical volumes, and "the Abode of the Peacock," one of the most colorful temples in India with a live peacock inhabiting the premises.

For a breath of sea air, wander beneath the blooming acacia trees canopying the world's second longest Marina Drive that skirts the Bay of Bengal for eight miles. Take a pleasant half-day trip to the ancient seaport, Mahabalipuram. In the sixth century it was a school for sculpture set up by the reigning king. You can see the colossal results — elephants, horses, chariots — as big as buildings all carved from single boulders of granite.

The thrill of a visit to Cochin is the opportunity to set sail like traders have for centuries along part of the waterway. Instead of a timeless native canoe, modern explorers can lean back in cushioned comfort and cruise by motorized launch, for an afternoon or a week.

The setting — emerald green trees, bright yellow flowers, chartreuse fields of rice, and torrid sunsets that melt greens to reds—is spectacular. So are the sights on the islands: tiny thatched homes with lampshade roofs, tropical gardens, pastel-painted vendor's stands where barefoot women with tinkling anklets gather, hidden shrines and even a Christian Cathedral.

After two or three days, continue with a short flying jump to Bangalore and from there luxuriate for three, air-conditioned hours in the first-class compartment of the train headed for the regal city of Mysore. In this forest-ringed city, once a year the former Maharaja, now the governor, rides a bejeweled elephant through the city streets leading one of the most lavish parades this side of a fairy tale. Even if you're not around for this, the Dussehra Festival in September, there are other sights which speak of Mysore's rich tradition.

Outstanding is the golden-domed Maharaja's Palace, and his stables in back housing dancing horses and beautifully - marked parade elephants. To add to the fantasy, in the evenings you can see from the balcony of your room at the Krishnaraj Sagar Hotel (less than $8 for a double room) the terraced Brindaran Gardens where countless fountains are illuminated in technicolor hues.

Returning to Bangalore by train, continue by plane to Bombay, three hours away, and plan to spend two days with time to see the eighth century cave temples of Elephanta containing magnificent sculpture and relief panels.

From Bombay circle back to Calcutta by way of Delhi, India's modern capital; Jaipur, the pink city where you can go elephant riding; Benaras on the banks of the sacred Ganges River; and Agra, home of the Taj Mahal and the abandoned city of Fatehpur Sikri.

Don't rest yet. Once back in Calcutta, head for the hills, namely Tiger Hill in Darjeeling overlooking awesome Mount Everest. It's a short plane trip to this Himalayan hideaway and just the place to recall, in inspring surroundings, your busy but exciting tour of India.

NATIONAL SKI TRIAL

Alaska Planning Sporting Event

The first major national sporting event ever staged in Alaska will take place in the spring of 1963, when the U. S. National Ski Championships and Olympic Trials are run on the slopes of Mt. Alyeska near Anchorage.

Alaskans expect the April 5-6-7 event to firmly entrench the 49th State as a leading winter travel destination among ski and winter-sport enthusiasts.

Site of the races — Mt. Alyeska — is 38 miles southeast of Anchorage, Alaska's largest city, and is accessible over paved road, by bus and auto and by rail.

Equipment at the area includes a one-mile double-passenger chairlift which carries skiers to a glass enclosed sun deck-cafeteria for a breath taking view of ocean waters and eight glaciers. Other features include a 2,600 foot Poma lift and several rope tows plus a newly constructed hotel with dining room, cocktail lounge, rathskellar, ski shop, first aid room, and ski patrol headquarters.

Although Alyeska is Alaska's largest ski area, the 49th State does boast an additional 16 non-military ski areas. These slopes, too, offer the fine powder snow at low altitudes for which all of Alaska is becoming famous.

The areas center in regions around Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Juneau.

In the Anchorage area are Mt. Alyeska; Arctic Valley with its 2800 foot T-bar and several rope tows and the following other tow-equipped resorts and slopes — Chalet Tahneta, Independence Mine, Eagle River, Kachemak Ski Club, Little Susitna, Romig Hill (right in Anchorage), Soldotna Ski Hill, and Valdez.

Around Fairbanks the avid skier has five areas to sample including Cleary Summit with its 3,000 foot T-bar plus several rope tows, Ullrhaven Lodge which plans to install a J-bar soon to supplement its tow equipment, plus these tow-equipped facilities — Arctic Circle Hot Springs Resort (100 miles by air from Fairbanks, boasting not only skiing but winter swimming in hot springs pools), Ski Boot Hill, and Ski-Land, Inc.

The Juneau ski visitor has one, and on occasion two, locations to choose from. Tow-equipped Douglas Ski Bowl, just three miles from downtown Juneau, is accessible by helicopter or by easy trail. Eleven miles north of town and overlooking Mendenhall Glacier the "Glacierama" ski development is in its planning stages. At present there are no tows or lifts to this bowl but on occasion the Juneau Ski Club sponsors group trips to the area by helicopter.

Several Alaska carriers offer ski tours to one or more of the three regions and independent travelers can arrange layovers in one or more cities at little or no extra cost. (Enroute to Anchorage or Fairbanks, for instance, a traveler can stop off at Juneau at no extra cost. The Fairbanks passenger, in fact, could stop off at both Anchorage and Juneau at practically no additional charge. Travel agents and airlines can give costs and details.)

RUNNING THE SCALES

Entertainment Row New I-20 Prospect

By JOHN CALE

With the summertime theatre an established habit at the Strauss Playhouse, live entertainment appears headed for a year 'round stretch here in northeast Louisiana.

These events were covered individually by a local critic, but this is the first scale-running column to appear since the 1961-62 season closed out last spring. By the way, Little Theatre's 1962-63 membership drive is currently underway. The season promises several plays and a musical.

Since this is an age of rash predictions, we might venture to say that the completion of the I-20 highway might bring with it a new era in fine entertainment availability across the top of Louisiana. Shreveport, Ruston and Monroe might find themselves in a position to offer more programs to more people than would be the case in the largest southern cities.

This was the topic of a recent conversation with L. V. E. Irvine of the Louisiana Tech Concert Association. He referred to the Northeast State College artist series here, the many private bookings in addition to Shreveport's Community Concerts as well as his own organization.

Irvine, however, a veteran organizer of concerts on the Tech campus, is not waiting for the new "road" to put his show upon. His membership drive for renewals is already in progress and he hopes to start soliciting for new members around October 1. Attractions thus far announced run all the way from "Sound of Music" to pianist Roger Williams and the Romeros Family guitarists.

Dr. Harry Lemert, who manages the Northeast series here, has announced the formal curtain raising for early December in order to avoid conflicts with the football season. The organization's annual membership campaign is slated for mid-October, so watch this column for latest developments and an announcement of attractions.

ART FESTIVAL

Before getting into big city opera announcements, there's an event slated for Saturday October 6 in Columbia that deserves the attention of anyone in the area interested in what makes art "tick." This is the seventh annual festival sponsored by the Caldwell Parish Library board and promoted by Mrs. O. N. Reynolds.

Whatever this festival is, it is not false or "arty." Whether the entries are school projects, amateur swirls or serious efforts, they all take on an honest appearance under the trees. Conversations among viewers and painters are equally disarming.

An ambitious handler of the brush can approach a visiting art teacher from any of several schools and get an unvarnished opinion of a particular creation without the teacher's ever realizing he might be addressing the creator himself or herself. Or if you don't care for pure paint and no varnish, you can take advantage of the "sidewalk cafe" for pie and coffee and watch the onlookers.

BIG OPERA

The New Orleans Opera House Association will on October 11th open its 1962-1963 season for the organization's 20th anniversary of Grand Opera. The Opera House will present six operas under the baton of Renato Cellini of the singers of international renown. Tickets for the season are now available at the Opera House Association, 420 St. Charles Avenue.

The opening opera of the season on October 11 and 13 will be Rigoletto starring the coloratura sensation of the Metropolitan opera, Gianna D'Angelo as Gilda; Cornell MacNeil reigning baritone of the Metropolitan as Rigoletto and Flaviano Labo, tenor star of La Scala Opera of Milan, Italy as the Duke. The MARRIAGE OF FIGARO will be presented on October 25 and 27 with the all-star cast of Lisa della Casa, Frances Bible, Judith Raskin, Cecilia Ward and Italo Tajo.

Lucia Di Lammermoor will be presented on November 8 and 10, again featuring Gianna D'Angelo in the title role and with Giuseppe Campora one of Italy's most famous tenors as Edgardo. On November 29 and December 1 New Orleans will hear its native son, famous bass-baritone, Norman Treigle of the New York City Opera in the role of Mephistopheles in Faust. Canadian tenor, Richard Verreau will sing the title role and Eva Likova will sing the role of Marguerite.

The spring season of the opera will begin on March 21 and 23 with Dorothy Kirsten singing the title role of Tosca. Andre Turp, leading tenor of Covert Garden, London will sing the role of Cavaradossi and baritone Cesare Bardelli will sing the role of Scarpia. On April 4 and 6, Anna Moffo of the Metropolitan Opera will sing the role of Violetta in La Traviata. John Alexander, also of the Metropolitan will sing the tenor role of Alfredo and Manuel Ausensi, the Spanish baritone will sing the role of Germont.

HOUSTON

The Houston Grand Opera Assocation will open its eighth season with an intimate, light opera, "The Elixir of Love" by Donizetti, to be sung in English in Cullen Auditorium, University of Houston, Sept. 28, 29, and 30, starting promptly at 8 PM.

Conductor Walter Herbert feels that the charm of this opera will be more readily captured in the smaller hall. The other three productions for the season will be presented in the Music Hall, as usual, with the Houston Symphony Orchestra. These are: Verdi's "Il Trovatore", Nov. 29 and Dec. 1; a double bill of Puccini's "Il Tabarro" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci" Jan. 17 and 19; and Wagner's "Die Meistersinger", March 28 and 30.

Sale of single tickets is now in progress for Dallas Civic Opera's 1962 season Nov. 30 - Dec. 15.

Tickets can be ordered from the Civic Opera Office, 309 Browder, Dallas. Brochures describing the season and containing mail order blanks will be sent to some 25,000 opera fans in the Southwest and throughout the country.

The company's sixth annual season in State Fair Music Hall will include "Otello" Nov. 30 and Dec. 8; "Barber of Seville" Dec. 1 and 7, and a double bill of "Suor Angelica" and "Pagliacci" Dec. 13 and 15.

A special student matinee of "Barber" also will be presented Dec. 9.

TRAVELING AROUND

Klondike Not For Sissies

DAWSON CITY, Yukon — Lacking gold, what does the Klondike offer to lure thousands north today?

The tourist would do well to meditate the words of Yukon poet Robert Service — "Send not your foolish and feeble; send me your strong and your sane . . ."

A first impression of Dawson City is that nothing has really changed since the frantic gold rush days of 1898. And the law of the land demands from its visitors a quality of adventure and stamina absent in less rugged resorts.

The dirt roads are covered with crude gravel taken from rock tailings in nearby dredging operations. And sidewalks — when there are any — are made of boards.

Everywhere are decaying buildings — unpainted frame structures with vacant windows, sagging at every corner.

The population of 700 is a curious mixture of half-breed and full blood Indian, families of the pioneers who have become conditioned to the area, and old sourdoughs who regard the Yukon as their birthright.

Dawson City is a decayed relic of the past. In this very lack of preservation lies the magic of the Klondike.

How anyone managed to get there in the first place is a mystery. But when seen in the context of the word "gold," even now the tourist may catch a glimpse of the passion which drove men to conquer the country in hopes of a fortune.

The endless stretch of snow-capped Yukon Mountains give the first hint that one has entered a no-man's - land. Even the Rocky Mountains of the rest of Canada and the United States are civilized in comparison.

The setting of Dawson City itself runs parallel with the Yukon image.

On one side is the Yukon River — swift, wide and strewn with rapids. The Midnight Dome and lesser hills fence in the tiny site. And the miles of rock burying gold claims of the 1898 prospectors is a scene almost frightening in its desolation.

It is the land of Dangerous Dan McGrew, and hordes of other real ghosts who are kept alive in the tales of the old-timers.

Apart from history, the Klondike area is a gold mine for the sportsman. Big game, fishing and camping sites are close at hand.

The weather hasn't changed — frigid in winter with a midnight sun which highlights the visit, and hot in summer.

If all this is the attraction of Dawson City, the country can win on its own merit.

But the tourist looking for a storybook village will hop the next plane out.

With the recent opening of the gold rush festival, $750,000 has been spent on the area to draw visitors. This represented contributions from the Canadian Government, the Dawson City Festival Foundation and local businessmen.

Most noticeable results were the restored Palace Grand Theater, originally built by Indian fighter Arizona Charlie Meadows, and the old stern-wheeler, S. S. Keno, now being used as a "hotel" for tourists.

After an enthusiastic opening, the government hopes the festival will flourish on its own in the future.

But it is a moot point whether an historic memory is enough to bring visitors flocking to Dawson City.

At the center of this clique is the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. James M. (Gentleman Jim) Scott, a popular public figure who has definite ideas about the next presidential race. The reader soon learns that a power-hungry senator and an ultraconservative broadcaster also are involved with the clique.

An earnest Marine colonel at the Pentagon catches the first whiffs of what is in the wind—a military coup, timed to coincide with a practice alert, with Congress away from the Capitol and the vice president overseas. Lyman, not knowing how far the dissatisfaction has spread, has to fight the plot with a handful of confidantes.

The story idea, thus telescoped into a few sentences, sounds pretty fanciful. But the authors (two veteran Washington newsmen) have managed to make the situation sound sufficiently plausible to carry the action along. There is a lot of "inside Washington" color—maybe exaggerated a trifle here and there, but with a realistic ring.

Here is excitement plus. Peril and politics, a bit of sex and a lot of skullduggery, it makes an exhilarating story.

Second War Novel By James Jones

THE THIN RED LINE. By James Jones. Scribners. $5.95.

The title of this novel about combat at Guadalcanal could refer to Kipling's "Thin red line of 'eroes," or to the narrow border between man and beast, sanity and insanity.

It is a story about a rifle company, C - For - Charlie. No single individual stands out as a protagonist against fate, though of course some are more prominent than others.

It covers a period of several months, from the time the company arrives at the island, and much of it is concerned with C - For - Charlie's first experience in combat.

Jones is extremely skillful in describing with microscopic thoroughness the raw, graphic details of close-in fighting, the fear and nausea, the insane incoherence of the action, the numbing physical sensations relieved only by wild oscillations of hope and terror.

On another level, he delineates with equal thoroughness the ironic, seemingly haphazard qualities that make the distinction between real, unintentional heroes and the intentional, overrated heros.

He shows us such individuals as Fife, the company clerk, who thought himself a coward but became a combat squad leader; Capt. Stein, personally courageous but too humane to commit his men to death; Witt, an insensitive gorrilla who was loyal to the whole company; Dale, the cook who discovered he could throw himself naturally into the gambles of fighting; and Bell, the ex - officer who worried less about death than he did about the faithfulness of his wife back home.

If there is a flaw in the author's handling of his characters, it lies in the area of their relations with each other. He tells us much of individuals, but little of their reactions to each other. This story is as grim as Mailer's "The Naked and The Dead." It is a huge picture of men at war, but Jones and others have done it before.

Some readers will find this book a masterful exposition of the horrors of war, illuminated by a cool, detached pity for its human pawns. But some may feel that this pock-marked terrain has been crossed before, and that it needs a landmark.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Important Novel Now In Library

By Frances Flanders
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The most important novel of this week and probably of any week is Allen Drury's new book "A Shade of Difference." Those who read and enjoyed "Advise and Consent" will want to read this one and we predict an enormous popularity for this book. Set again in contemporary Washington, Mr. Drury points up for us the struggle between the black nations and the white ones. Mr. Drury tells a compelling story and shatters our complacency. This is a book to make the reader stop and think about the issues that are with us today and tomorrow. Many of the same characters who appeared in "Advise and Consent" are back with us. This is a book that should have a profound impact on the reader. It has been discussed not only by book reviewers, but by some of the top columnists of our times. Don't miss "A Shade of Difference."

Another book which deals with today's world is "Communications In Space, From Wireless To Satellite Relay." This is a timely book and will interest many readers. An interesting new book in the field of science is "The World of Ice" written by James L. Dyson. This is the story of glaciers in the past and today. It deals with the polar ice caps, icebergs and many other fascinating topics. This book is full of very interesting information and is one that you will find absorbing. Warren R. Guild is the author of "How To Keep Fit and Enjoy It; A Step-By-Step approach to Fitness After 30". This book discusses diet and health. It suggests programs of exercise and gives excellent ideas on how to reduce. This book is certain to be read and used. Especially valuable are the calorie charts which give the exact number of calories in the foods that we eat most often.

A book which should interest every landscape gardener is "The Home Owners Tree Book" by John Stuart Martin. It contains a great deal of sensible and valuable advice. Basketball coaches will welcome a new book written by Pete Newell. It gives invaluable information about training basketball teams.

An interesting book in the field of literature is "In Defense of Reading" by Reuben A. Brower. This is an interesting approach to the world of literary criticism. Would you like to know how to make doll furniture? There is a very interesting new book called "Let's Make Doll Furniture" written by Eileen Mercer. John C. Miller is the author of "The Colonial Image" which discusses the origins of American culture as revealed in the writings of men and women who shared the colonial experience. This is a fascinating collection of early American literature and should be widely used. Irwin R. Blacker is the editor of an impressive anthology, called "The Old West in Fact," which is a sequel to his the "Old West In Fiction." This collection contains many of the classics of the development of the West and should be very useful to students as well as enjoyable reading for those who like to read about the west.

An interesting book about one of our neighbors to the South is "Guatemala" written by Mario Rosenthal. This is the story of the unique Latin American state which was able to resist the Communists. This book shows that democracy can work in Latin America and that it is the best defense against Communism, in fact it is their only hope for survival as independent people.

Two books of interest to the genealogists of this area have recently been added to the library. One is "Legal Records of Washington Parish, 1819-1897". The other is "Abstracts of Deeds of Marion county, Mississippi, 1812-1840." Both of these volumes were compiled and edited by E. Russ Williams, Jr.

Lamar Plays Situations To Down Indians, 14-0 In Brown Stadium

Jerry Stovall Shines Bright For 68,000

By JACK GATES

BATON ROUGE — West Monroe's Jerry Stovall, a pre-season pick on many All-American teams, starred brilliantly Saturday night as Louisiana State University opened a new season under a new coach in glittering style with a 24-0 victory over Texas A&M before a sellout crowd of 68,000.

The 195 - pound Stovall, regular on defense as well as offense, scored one LSU touchdown and intercepted an Aggie pass.

LSU-Texas A&M

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Statistics of the Texas A&M-Louisiana State game:

	Texas A&M	LSU
First downs	9	16
Rushing yardage	97	192
Passing yardage	106	52
Passes	10-19	3-12
Passes intercepted by	0	3
Punts	7-35.3	5-39.2
Fumbles lost	0	1
Yards penalized	55	80

He set up his own touchdown with a 58 - yard punt return on which he almost went all the way.

Stovall's touchdown came in the third period when the Tigers were leading only 7-0 and it broke the Aggies' back. He plunged over from two yards out.

The other touchdowns were scored by Bo Campbell, the Shreveport flash who slashed over from the four in the first period, and Danny LeBlanc, the Lake Charles sophomore who broke into the tough White team lineup in his first varsity year. He went over from one yeard out.

Lynn Amedee, the Go Team quarterback, who had a rough time most of the night, booted all three extra points.

It was a sweet victory for Coach Charles McClendon, who moved into the head spot this season after Paul Dietzel went to Army, although the Tigers showed weakness in spots.

It wasn't a pleasant start for Aggie Coach Hank Foldberg, who also is starting his first season as head coach at Aggieland. His Aggies battled gamely throughout the game, but never really threatened the Tiger goal line.

Another Twin City player also showed poise in the LSU victory. He was tackle Mickey Cox, who played at Neville. Cox was selected as the kickout man and also played well on defense with the Chinese Bandits.

Despite the victory, weakness that Coach McClendon had early feared came to life. It is apparent that LSU at present has no field goal specialist such as Wendell Harris, who graduated after last season, and the Bandit defense was not the heralded stands of old.

The Go Team also failed to impress spectators too much after its initial touchdown drive.

However, only time and a few other games will tell just how good this LSU team is, although the White Team looked almost in mid-season form.

Almost from the start of the game, it seemed apparent that the Tigers were in command and would be in command when the gun sounded.

The first Tiger touchdown came mid-way of the first period after the Aggies had had the ball for two series of plays. Taking the ball on their own 39, the Tigers drove to the Aggie 45, with Stovall and fullback Charles Cranford carrying. At that point, quarterback Jimmy Fields hit end Jack Gates with a 29 yard toss. Two plays later, the Go Team took over at the Aggie 15. Amedee hit halfback Ray Wilkins with a 11 yard pass, moving the ball to the four. On the next play, Campbell, a speedy halfback moved to his right and cut back into the end zone for the score.

LSU moved within scoring distance twice in the third period, while the closest the Aggies came was to the LSU 37.

On the initial drive in the second period, the White game moved the ball to the Aggie 20, highlighted by a 19 yard dash by Fields. At that point, the Go Team took over, but failed to gain but one yard in three tries. On fourth down, Amedee attempted a field goal which was wide.

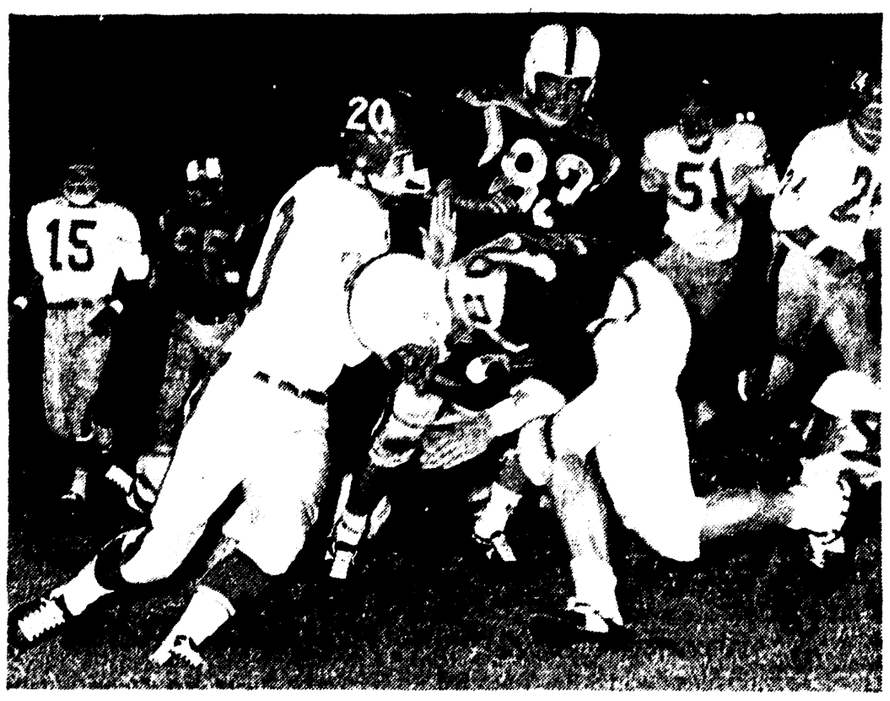

The Go Team took over again later in the period, and moved from the Tiger 41 to the Aggie 34, where A&M defense held.

As the first half ended, Bandit quarterback Dwight Robinson intercepted an Aggie pass.

The Tigers blew it open on the opening kickoff in the third period. Stovall took the Aggie kickoff on his own 10 and galloped to the A&M 33-yard line before he was hauled down. One block would have sprung him free to go all the way. With Fields, Stovall and fullback Steve Ward alternating, the Tigers moved to the two where Stovall carried it over.

In all, LSU picked up 16 first downs to nine for Texas A&M, and gained 244 total yards, 192

Hebert Leads Visitors With Passing Arm

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

Lamar Tech's Cardinals, playing like poised professionals, stayed cool until the situation was right, then struck with rapier swiftness behind the passing arm of sensational Windell Hebert and a bevy of hard-running backs to defeat Northeast State 14-0 in the season opener for the Tribe here Saturday night.

Northeast	Lamar Tech
12	20
144	196
5-14	9-16
69	111
1	0
4	1
0	1
4-28.5	5-33
4-45	5-60

Some 5,000 watched as the catlike Hebert, who played the entire game, completed nine of 16 passes for 111 yards, utalized his runners to the utmost and guided the Cardinals on both of their touchdown drives.

The first score came in the second period after a Northeast quick-kick was nullified by a penalty and the following fourth-down punt was returned to the Indians 48. In Indian territory for the first time, it took Hebert and the Cardinals just three plays to negotiate the 4yards.

He completed two consecutive passes to the Indian 24, then handed off to halfback Ronnie Wright on the third play. The 170-pound junior picked his way off left tackle, found an opening and waltzed into the end zone untouched.

A Northeast drive that went astray and was pushed back to the Lamar 43 in the third quarter, furnished the impetus for the second Lamar touchdown.

This time it took Hebert eight plays, including passes of eight and 18-yards, to get the skin across. Halfback Harold Mayo got the last 10-yards and the score. Guard Gerald Finch kicked both extra points.

This and a Cardinal defense that never faltered when it had to be tough was all Lamar needed to halt all three-Northeast teams and the Tribe's new offensive wrinkle, a version of the flip-flop offense.

But Lamar also moved the ball well in the middle of the field and racked up 20 first downs to 12 for Northeast, plus 196 yards rushing, against the Indian's 144.

The Tribe moved the ball well in mid-field too, but "couldn't cut the mustard" from in close, except for one time and this one time didn't count when the game was over.

Northeast quarterback Ronnie Myrick, playing one of his most inspiring ball games, marched the ball for one would-be score, almost single handedly.

But the Tribe, which gave Myrick no support whatsoever, wrecked the little man's bid completely, getting his touchdown run called back on a clipping penalty and later giving him virtually no protection when he attempted to pass in the face of Lamar's onrushing white wave.

In spite of the callback and the repeated dumpings, Myrick gained 32 yards on 10 attempts and completed five of 11 passes for 49 yards.

This was second only to halfback Ken Newton who garnered 67 yards on 11 runs for Northeast, most of it on one long scamper.

The Myrick-engineered drive came in the third period and started on the goal line where halfback Joe Thrailkill took the kickoff after Lamar's second touchdown and raced back to the Redbird 47. Myrick and halfback Ken Thornhill carried once apiece to the 24, then Myrick set sail to his left on a bootleg and twisted and turned to go diving and skidding into the end zone.

The play was called back, however, and the penalty plus a stout Cardinal line halted the drive on the Lamar three.

Hebert, who is so fast it is almost impossible to trap him, before he passes, used four runners with almost equal effectiveness.

Halfback Richard Prejean and fullback Ralph Stone both had 42 yards apiece, Stone on 12 carries and Prejean on eight. Reserve fullback Barry Kerr came up with 33 yards on 11 runs and Wright gained 29 on four rushes.

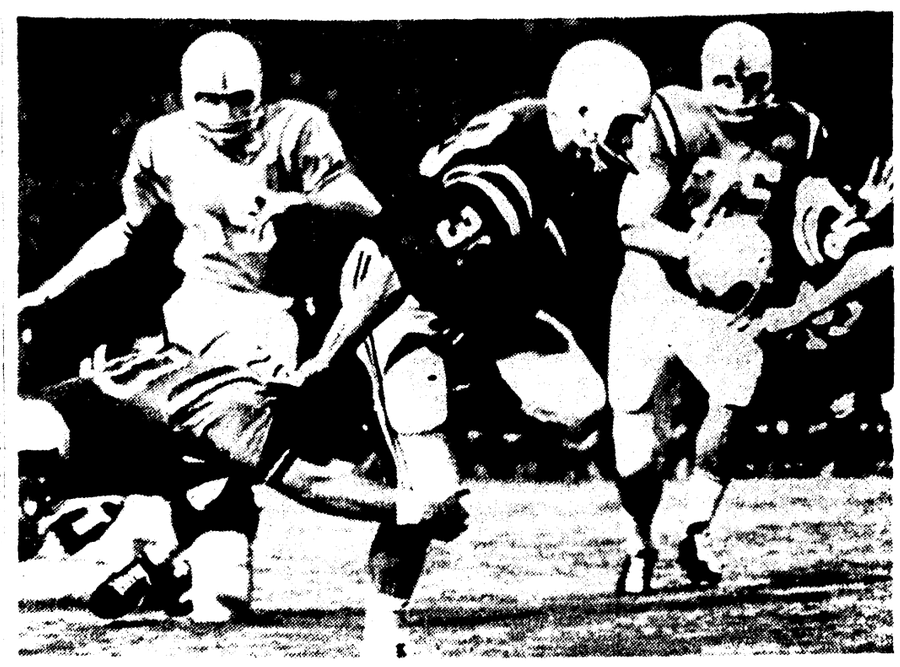

Both teams battled back and forth throughout the first quarter, looking for positional advantage.

Northeast returned the opening kickoff to its 36 - yard line and promptly marched to the Lamar 20, aided by a big 15 - yard penalty. From this point Vincent's 41 - yard field goal attempt was off.

Lamar moved the ball back to its 46 where Billy Foster dropped Hebert on a third down pass attempt and forced the Cardinals to punt. The ball went to the Indian 14 and the Tribe Maroon team was sent in.

Northeast marched to its 44 and Kelly punted down to the Lamar

Namath Ramrod Of 'Bama Win

BY BILL TOME

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Sophomore Joe Namath, passing, running and calling signals with the poise of a veteran, threw for three touchdowns Saturday night as Alabama opened defense of its national championship with a 35-0 trouncing of Georgia.

Before an awed capacity crowd of 51,000, the 184-pound quarterback from Beaver Falls, Pa., shattered the Georgia defense while his well-drilled teammates threw back every Bulldog offensive gesture.

Namath passed 52 yards to end Dick Williamson for one score and 10 and 12 yards to halfback Cotton Clark for two more. Clark scored again on a four-yard run and Hudson Harris counted on a 25 yard sprint.

End Farris Morton nailed Georgia's Jake Saye in the end zone for a safety and specialist Tim Davis kicked one conversion while Jack Hurlbut added a two-pointer on a pass to Butch Wilson.

In rolling easily through its 19th straight game without defeat, the Crimson Tide displayed its usual paralyzing defense led by linebacker Lee Roy Jordan. Georgia failed to cross the 50-yard line in the first half until just before time ran out.

Namath brought the audience roaring to its feet before five minutes had gone when he hit Williamson with a 27-yard pass behind a Bulldog defensive back and the end went the rest of the way for a 52-yard scoring play.

Namath guided Alabama 52 yards again for a score early in the second half. He crossed up the Georgia defense by sticking almost entirely to the ground until the Crimson Tide reached the Bulldog 10. Then Namath dropped back, found Clark alone in the right flat and Clark took it over.

Another long pass play from Namath to Williamson, of 50 yards, set up the 12-yard touchdown heave to Clark.

Hurlbut, Namath's replacement, took over in the final period, guiding Alabama 69 and 57 yards for Clark's short dash and the 25 yard sweep by Harris.

Myers Passes Northwestern By Gamecocks

By JOE MOOSHIL

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Quarterback Tom Myers, making his collegiate football debut, equalled Otto Graham's 20-year-old Northwestern passing record and tossed the Wildcats to a 37-20 victory over South Carolina Saturday.

The 18-year old sophomore from Troy, Ohio, completed 20 passes in 24 attempts for 275 yards, twice throwing for touchdowns and finally running one over himself. In addition, Myers twice passed for points after touchdown.

With Graham's records of 20 completions and 295 yards gained by passing against Michigan in 1942 within range, Myers was pulled out of the game with about four minutes to play.

The Wildcats trailed 6-0 after the first quarter as the Gamecocks indicated they would rest their laurels on defense. South Carolina won the toss and elected to kick. The move proved to be a good one.

Halfback Roland Leads Missouri Past California

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Missouri's swift sophomore halfback Johnny Roland scored three touchdowns in his varsity debut Saturday, leading the Tigers to a 21-10 intersectional victory over California.

Boilermakers Tie Huskies In 7-7 Game

SEATTLE (AP) — The fast Huskies of Washington outgained Purdue Saturday but also outfumbled the Boilermakers and had to settle for a 7-7 tie in their intersectional football game.

Led by quarterback Willie Siler, Washington marched 76 yards after the opening kickoff to score.

The over-capacity crowd of 55,500 took this as an omen of a Washington victory, but was disillusioned when Washington was struck by fumbleitis in the second period.

SEATTLE (AP)—Statistics of the Purdue-Washington football game:

	Purdue	Wash.
First downs	9	19
Rushing yardage	109	234

Passes	3-14	3-8
Passes intercepted by	2	1
Punts	7-33	4-40.5
Fumbles lost	1	3
Yards penalized	20	107

The first one came just as the second quarter started, with Washington on its own 20. Tackle Nathaniel Jackson pounced on the bobble for Purdue at the Washington 14. Four smashes by the big Purdue backs fell a yard short of the first down, but Washington charitably gave the ball right back on another fumble.

Halfback Dave Miller fielded the dropped ball on the 3 and dived over, but the ball was ruled dead where he made the recovery.

A Washington offside moved the ball to the 2, and fullback Tom Yakubowski took it in for the tally.

Omer (Skip) Ohl kicked the tying point, and the scoring was over for the afternoon.

Ohl, whose kicking decided the issue in Purdue's 13-6 victory over the Huskies last year, had tried a field goal earlier from the 21-yard line but the boot was short.

Washington brought on its sophomore kicker, Jim Norton, three times to try for field goals, twice in the final three minutes of the action.

The youngster, who had converted after the Washington touchdown, missed all three. One was from the 20, the second from the 42 and the last one—with just 26 seconds left in the game—was from the 32-yard line.

Florida Gets Win Behind Libertore

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Fleet quarterback Larry Libertore sparked Florida to a 19-9 South-eastern Conference victory over Mississippi State tonight, bringing the Gators from behind twice-setting up one touchdown and scoring another.

Florida capitalized on a break for its first touchdown and marched 70 yards for its second, with Libertore playing a leading role in both pushes.

The scores, the first only 29 seconds before intermission, and the second late in the third quarter.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Statistics of the Florida-Miss. State game:

From there, Libertore thrust over center for the touchdown that deadlocked the game.

Quarterback Jimmy Hall's conversion try was blocked.

Libertore's deft ball handling and slithering runs sparked the drive for the next score, which came on a 28-yard sprint by fullback Sam Mack with a Libertore pitchout. Hall converted for a 13-9 lead.

State scored all nine points on field goals by reserve fullback Sammy Dantone, who hit on all three attempts. His effort tied the Southeastern Conference record for field goals in one game.

State showed offensive prowess until the second Florida touchdown killed the Maroon spirits. However, State was unable to pierce the Florida line in the crucial final yards and settled for their field goals.

Dantone's kicks were 33 yards in the first quarter, 21 yards in the second and 24 yards early in the third.

The final Florida touchdown was on a one-yard run by fullback Jim O'Donnell.

Penn State Downs Navy In Top Scrap

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Penn State's Nittany Lions, sparked by the spectacular running and defensive work of halfbacks Al Gursky and Junior Powell, trampled Navy 41-7 Saturday in a battle between two of the East's top-ranked college football powers.

Gursky and Powell scored two touchdowns each and came up with stunning pass interceptions to break the Middies' backs.

Gursky electrified some 40,000 spectators in the second period by grabbing a Navy pass on his 23 yard line and racing 77 yards untouched for Penn State's third tally.

Powell did the same in the last period, intercepting a pass on his own 48 and scampering 52 yards to score.

Both also scored on pass plays from quarterback Pete Liske. Gursky's covered five yards and Powell's nine.

Liske and reserve quarterback Ron Coates, getting excellent protection from Penn State's front line, teamed to complete 16 of 23 passes for 234 yards. Liske's aerials also played a key role in setting up State's second and fourth touchdowns. Roger Kochman, the Lions leading candidate for All-America honors, carried eight yards around right end for the second score while Liske bootlegged across from the Navy 16 for the other TD.

NSC Beaten By Florence In Alabama

FLORENCE, Ala. (AP)—Sticking to the ground most of the game, Florence State whipped Northwestern Louisiana 21-14 Saturday night.

A 45-yard run by wingback Ernest Breland plus a two-yard clincher by quarterback Gil Cleveland—with 11:42 left made the difference.

The game had been tied since just before the end of the first half.

Both teams concentrated on grinding out ground yardage the first half. NSC took to the air the final portion of te game.

On the second play of the game, Florence tailback Carl Barton went 79 yards to score, with Bob Jackson converting.

Sparked by the running of NSC halfback Kenneth Thompson, the Northwestern squad retaliated by grinding out 45 yards with halfback Ed Horton plunging over from the two. The conversion failed.

Causey Sparks KC To Victory Over Bunning

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Jim Bunning's hopes of winning 20 baseball games received a rude setback Saturday night when the Kansas City Athletics cuffed the tall Detroit right-hander for four runs in the first inning and went on to a 5-2 victory over the Tigers.

Jerry Stovall Shines Bright For 68,000

By JACK GATES

BATON ROUGE— West Monroe's Jerry Stovall, a pre-season pick on many All-American teams, starred brilliantly Saturday night as Louisiana State University opened a new season under a new coach in glittering style with a 21-0 victory over Texas A&M before a sellout crowd of 68,000.

The 195 - pound Stovall, terrific on defense as well as offense, scored one LSU touchdown and intercepted an Aggie pass.

LSU-Texas A&M

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Statistics of the Texas A&M-Louisiana State game:

	Texas A&M	LSU
First downs	9	16
Rushing yardage	97	192
Passing yardage	106	52
Passes	10-19	3-12
Passes intercepted	0	3
Punts	7-35.3	5-39.2
Fumbles lost	0	1
Yards penalized	55	80

He set up his own touchdown with a 58 - yard punt return on which he almost went all the way.

Stovall's touchdown came in the third period when the Tigers were leading only 7-0 and it broke the Aggies' back. He plunged over from two yards out.

The other touchdowns were scored by Bo Campbell, the Shreveport flash who slashed over from the four in the first period, and Danny LeBlanc, the Lake Charles sophomore who broke into the tough White team lineup his first varsity year. He went over from one yeard out.

Lynn Amedee, the Go Team quarterback, who had a rough time most of the night, booted all three extra points.

It was a sweet victory for Coach Charles McClendon, who moved into the head spot this season after Paul Dietzel went to Army, although the Tigers showed weakness in spots.

Bt it wasn't a pleasant start for Aggie Coach Hank Foldberg, who also is starting his first season as head coach at Aggieland. His Aggies battled gamely throughout the game, but never really threatened the Tiger goalline.

Another Twin City player also showed poise in the LSU victory. He was tackle Mickey Cox, who played at Neville. Cox was selected as the kickout man and also played well on defense with the Chinese Bandits.

Despite the victory, weakness that Coach McClendon had early feared came to life. It is apparent that LSU at present has no field goal specialist such as Wendell Harris, who graduated after last season, and the Bandit defense was not the heralded stands of old.

The Go Team also failed to impress spectators too much after its initial touchdown drive.

However, only time and a few other games will tell just how good this LSU team is, although the White Team looked almost in mid-season form.

Almost from the start of the game, it seemed apparent that the Tigers were in command and would be in command when the gun sounded.

The first Tiger touchdown came mid-way of the first period after the Aggies had had the ball for two series of plays. Taking the ball on their own 39, the Tigers drove to the Aggie 45, with Stovall and fullback Charles Cranford carrying. At that point, quarterback Jimmy Fields hit end Jack Gates with a 29 yard toss. Two plays later, the Go Team took over at the Aggie 15. Amedee hit halfback Ray Wilkins with a 11 yard pass, moving the ball to the four. On the next play, Campbell, a speedy halfback moved to his right and cut back into the end zone for the score.

LSU moved within scoring distance twice in the third period, while the closest the Aggies came was to the LSU 37.

On the initial drive in the second period, the White game moved the ball to the Aggie 20, highlighted by a 19 yard dash by Fields. At that point, the Go Team took over, but failed to gain but one yard in three tries. On fourth down, Amedee attempted a field goal which was wide.

The Go Team took over again later in the period, and moved from the Tiger 41 to the Aggie 34, where A&M defense held.

As the first half ended, Bandit quarterback Dwight Robinson intercepted an Aggie pass.

The Tigers blew it open on the opening kickoff in the third period. Stovall took the Aggie kickoff on his own 10 and galloped to the A&M 33-yard line before he was hauled down. One block would have sprung him free to go all the way. With Fields, Stovall and fullback Steve Ward alternating, the Tigers moved to the two where Stovall carried it over.

In all, LSU picked up 16 first downs to nine for Texas A&M, and gained 244 total yards, 192

Hebert Leads Visitors With Passing Arm

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

Lamar Tech's Cardinals, playing like poised professionals, stayed cool until the situation was right, then struck with rapier swiftness behind the passing arm of sensational Windell Hebert and a bevy of hard-running backs to defeat Northeast State 14-0 in the season opener for the Tribe here Saturday night.

Northeast	Lamar Tech
FD	12	20
Yards Rushing	144	196
Passes (A&C)	5-14	9-16
Yards Passing	49	111
Passes Int by	1	0
Fumbles	4	1
Fumbles Lost	0	1
Punts And Ave.	4-28.5	5-33
Penalties	4-45	5-60

Some 5,000 watched as the catlike Hebert, who played the entire game, completed nine of 16 passes for 111 yards, utalized his runners to the utmost and guided the Cardinals on both of their touchdown drives.

The first score came in the second period after a Northeast quick-kick was nullified by a penalty and the following fourth-down punt was returned to the Indians 48. In Indian territory for the first time, it took Hebert and the Cardinals just three plays to negotiate the 4yards.

He completed two consecutive passes to the Indian 24, then handed off to halfback Ronnie Wright on the third play. The 170-pound junior picked his way off left tackle, found an opening and waltzed into the end zone untouched.

A Northeast drive that went astray and was pushed back to the Lamar 43 in the third quarter, furnished the impetus for the second Lamar touchdown.

This time it took Hebert eight plays, including passes of eight and 18-yards, to get the skin across. Halfback Harold Mayo got the last 10-yards and the score. Guard Gerald Finch kicked both extra points.

This and a Cardinal defense that never faltered when it had to be tough was all Lamar needed to halt all three-Northeast teams and the Tribe's new offensive wrinkle, a version of the flip-flop offense.

But Lamar also moved the ball well in the middle of the field and racked up 20 first downs to 12 for Northeast, plus 196 yards rushing, against the Indian's 144.

The Tribe moved the ball well in mid-field too, but "couldn't cut the mustard" from in close, except for one time and this one time didn't count when the game was over.

Northeast quarterback Ronnie Myrick, playing one of his most inspiring ball games, marched the ball for one would-be score, almost single handedly.

But the Tribe, which gave Myrick no support whatsoever, wrecked the little man's bid completely, getting his touchdown run called back on a clipping penalty and later giving him virtually no protection when he attempted to pass in the face of Lamar's onrushing white wave.

In spite of the callback and the repeated dumpings, Myrick gained 32 yards on 10 attempts and completed five of 11 passes for 49 yards.

This was second only to halfback Ken Newton who garnered 67 yards on 11 runs for Northeast, most of it on one long scamper.

The Myrick-engineered drive came in the third period and started on the goal line where halfback Joe Thrailkill took the kickoff after Lamar's second touchdown and raced back to the Redbird 47. Myrick and halfback Ken Thornhill carried once apiece to the 24, then Myrick set sail to his left on a bootleg and twisted and turned to go diving and skidding into the end zone.

The play was called back, however, and the penalty plus a stout Cardinal line halted the drive on the Lamar three.

Hebert, who is so fast it is almost impossible to trap him, before he passes, used four runners with almost equal effectiveness.

Halfback Richard Prejean and fullback Ralph Stone both had 42 yards apiece, Stone on 12 carries and Prejean on eight. Reserve fullback Barry Kerr came up with 38 yards on 11 runs and Wright gained 29 on four rushes.

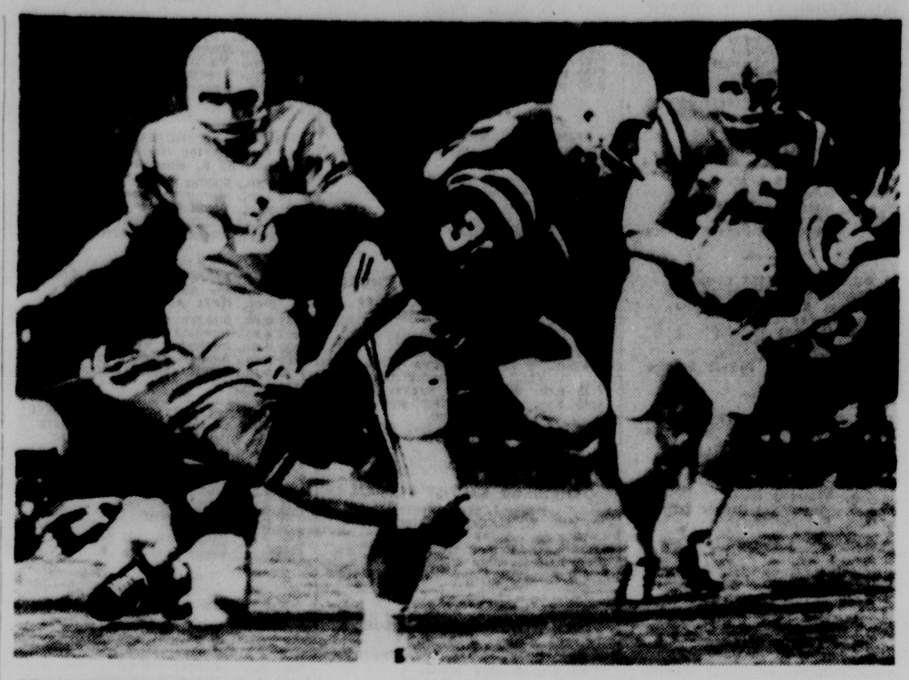

Both teams battled back and forth throughout the first quarter, looking for positional adntage.

Northeast returned the opening kickoff to its 36 - yard line and promptly marched to the Lamar 20, aided by a big 15 - yard penalty. From this point Vincent's 41 - yard field goal attempt was off.

Lamar moved the ball back to its 46 where Billy Foster dropped Hebert on a third down pass attempt and forced the Cardinals to punt. The ball went to the Indian 14 and the Tribe Maroon team was sent in.

Northeast marched to its 44 and Kelly punted down to the Lamar

Namath Ramrod Of 'Bama Win

By BILL TOME

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Sophomore Joe Namath, passing, running and calling signals with the poise of a veteran, threw for three touchdowns Saturday night as Alabama opened defense of its national championship with a 35-0 trouncing of Georgia.

Before an awed capacity crowd of 54,000, the 184-pound quarterback from Beaver Falls, Pa., shattered the Georgia defense while his well-drilled teammates threw back every Bulldog offensive gesture.

Namath passed 52 yards to end Dick Williamson for one score and 10 and 12 yards to halfback Cotton Clark for two more. Clark scored again on a four-yard run and Hudson Harris counted on a 25-yard sprint.

End Farris Morton nailed Georgia's Jake Saye in the end zone for a safety and specialist Tim Davis kicked one conversion while Jack Hurlbut added a two-pointer on a pass to Butch Wilson.

In rolling easily through its 19th straight game without defeat, the Crimson Tide displayed its usual paralyzing defense led by linebacker Lee Roy Jordan. Georgia failed to cross the 50-yard line in the first half until just before time ran out.

Namath brought the audience roaring to its feet before five minutes had gone when he hit Williamson with a 27-yard pass behind a Bulldog defensive back and the end went the rest of the way for a 52-yard scoring play.

Namath guided Alabama 52 yards again for a score early in the second half. He crossed up the Georgia defense by sticking almost entirely to the ground until the Crimson Tide reached the Bulldog 10. Then Namath dropped back, found Clark alone in the right flat and Clark took it over.

Another long pass play from Namath to Williamson, of 50 yards, set up the 12-yard touchdown heave to Clark.

Hurlbut, Namath's replacement, took over in the final period, guiding Alabama 69 and 57 yards for Clark's short dash and the 25 yard sweep by Harris.

Myers Passes Northwestern By Gamecocks

By JOE MOOSHIL

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Quarterback Tom Myers, making his collegiate football debut, equalled Otto Graham's 20-year-old Northwestern passing record and tossed the Wildcats to a 37-20 victory over South Carolina Saturday.

The 18-year-old sophomore from Troy, Ohio, completed 20 passes in 24 attempts for 275 yards, twice throwing for touchdowns and finally running one over himself. In addition, Myers twice passed for points after touchdown.

With Graham's records of 20 completions and 295 yards gained by passing against Michigan in 1942 within range, Myers was pulled out of the game with about four minutes to play.

The Wildcats trailed 6-0 after the first quarter as the Gamecocks indicated they would rest their laurels on defense. South Carolina won the toss and elected to kick. The move proved to be a good one.

Halfback Roland Leads Missouri Past California

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Missouri's swift sophomore halfback Johnny Roland scored three touchdowns in his varsity debut Saturday, leading the Tigers to a 21-10 intersectional victory over California.

A crowd of 36,500 in Memorial Stadium watched the elusive 192-pound back from Corpus Christi, Tex., dash 58 yards around his right end for the third period tally that finally gave the Tigers a lead over the upset-minded Bears in this 1962 football season opener.

Boilermakers Tie Huskies In 7-7 Game

SEATTLE (AP) — The fast Huskies of Washington outgained Purdue Saturday but also outfumbled the Boilermakers and had to settle for a 7-7 tie in their intersectional football game.

Led by quarterback Willie Siler, Washington marched 76 yards after the opening kickoff to score.

The over-capacity crowd of 55,500 took this as an omen of a Washington victory, but was disillusioned when Washington was struck by fumbleitis in the second period.

The first one came just as the second quarter started, with Washington on its own 20. Tackle Nathaniel Jackson pounced on the bobble for Purdue at the Washington 14. Four smashes by the big Purdue backs fell a yard short of the first down, but Washington charitably gave the ball right back on another fumble.

Halfback Dave Miller fielded the dropped ball on the 3 and dived over, but the ball was ruled dead where he made the recovery.

A Washington offside moved the ball to the 2, and fullback Tom Yakubowski took it in for the tally.

Omer (Skip) Ohl kicked the tying point, and the scoring was over for the afternoon.

Ohl, whose kicking decided the issue in Purdue's 13-6 victory over the Huskies last year, had tried a field goal earlier from the 21-yard line but the boot was short.

Washington brought on its sophomore kicker, Jim Norton, three times to try for field goals, twice in the final three minutes of the action.

The youngster, who had converted after the Washington touchdown, missed all three. One was from the 20, the second from the 42 and the last one—with just 26 seconds left in the game—was from the 32-yard line.

OVER MISSISSIPPI STATE

Florida Gets Win Behind Libertore

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Fleet quarterback Larry Libertore sparked Florida to a 19-9 South-eastern Conference victory over Mississippi State tonight, bringing the Gators from behind twice-setting up one touchdown and scoring another.

Florida capitalized on a break for its first touchdown and marched 70 yards for its second, with Libertore playing a leading role in both pushes.

The scores, the first only 29 seconds before intermission, and the second late in the third quarter, shattered State's spirits and the Gators were in firm control the rest of the way.

State end Randy Hutto, back deep in his own territory to punt, fumbled a low snap on fourth down and was tackled at the State 13. Four plays carried to the one. From there, Libertore thrust over center for the touchdown that deadlocked the game.

Quarterback Jimmy Hall's conversion try was blocked.

Libertore's deft ball handling and slithering runs sparked the drive for the next score, which came on a 28-yard sprint by fullback Sam Mack with a Libertore pitchout. Hall converted for a 13-9 lead.

State scored all nine points on field goals by reserve fullback Sammy Dantone, who hit on all three attempts. His effort tied the Southeastern Conference record for field goals in one game.

State showed offensive prowess until the second Florida touchdown killed the Maroon spirits. However, State was unable to pierce the Florida line in the crucial final yards and settled for their field goals.

Dantone's kicks were 33 yards in the first quarter, 21 yards in the second and 24 yards early in the third.

The final Florida touchdown was on a one-yard run by fullback Jim O'Donnell.

Penn State Downs Navy In Top Scrap

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Penn State's Nittany Lions, sparked by the spectacular running and defensive work of halfbacks Al Gursky and Junior Powell, trampled Navy 41-7 Saturday in a battle between two of the East's top-ranked college football powers.

Gursky and Powell scored two touchdowns each and came up with stunning pass interceptions to break the Middies' backs.

Gursky electrified some 40,000 spectators in the second period by grabbing a Navy pass on his 23 yard line and racing 77 yards untouched for Penn State's third tally.

Powell did the same in the last period, intercepting a pass on his own 48 and scampering 52 yards to score.

Both also scored on pass plays from quarterback Pete Liske, Gursky's covered five yards and Powell's nine.

Liske and reserve quarterback Ron Coates, getting excellent protection from Penn State's front line, teamed to complete 16 of 23 passes for 234 yards. Liske's aerials also played a key role in setting up State's second and fourth touchdowns. Roger Kochman, the Lions leading candidate for All-America honors, carried eight yards around right end for the second score while Liske bootlegged across from the Navy 16 for the other TD.

NSC Beaten By Florence In Alabama

FLORENCE, Ala. (AP)—Sticking to the ground most of the game, Florence State whipped Northwestern Louisiana 21-14 Saturday night.

A 45-yard run by wingback Ernest Breland plus a two-yard clincher by quarterback Gil Cleveland—with 11:42 left made the difference.

The game had been tied since just before the end of the first half.

Both teams concentrated on grinding out ground yardage the first half. NSC took to the air the final portion of te game.

On the second play of the game, Florence tailback Carl Barton went 79 yards to score, with Bob Jackson converting.

Sparked by the running of NSC halfback Kenneth Thompson, the Northwestern squad retaliated by grinding out 45 yards with halfback Ed Horton plunging over from the two. The conversion failed.

Causey Sparks KC To Victory Over Bunning

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Jim Bunning's hopes of winning 20 baseball games received a rude setback Saturday night when the Kansas City Athletics cuffed the tall Detroit right-hander for four runs in the first inning and went on to a 5-2 victory over the Tigers.

Wildcats, Florida State Battle To 0-0 Decision

By JOHN G. DIETRICH

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—Ambitious Florida State and Kentucky's hard-bitten handful battled to a futile scoreless tie Saturday night in Charlie Bradshaw's debut as head coach at the University of Kentucky.

Neither team could get a consistent attack underway, and the closest they came to scoring were missed field goals by each from the same spot on the field—the 19-yard line—by Florida State in the second period and Kentucky in the third.

Kentucky's alert secondary kept Florida State's two quarterbacks, Eddie Feely and Steve Tensi, from connecting when it counted.

The Seminoles, on the other hand, checked Kentucky's feared passing combination of Jerry Woolum to end Tom Hutchinson by keeping the Wildcats bottled up in non-passing territory most of the time.

Florida State's defensive unit, the Renegades, with guards Ferrell Henry and Dick Hermann and tackle Bill Tyre leading the charge, simply overwhelmed the inexperienced middle of Kentucky's offensive line.

Kentucky did not make a first down by rushing until the fourth period.

Kentucky was held to 29 yards rushing by the Renegades, a 16-yard dash by fullback Perky Bryant being the longest Kentucky run of the night.

Feely was a constant threat to break loose on option passes, but never quite managed it, as fullback Marion Roberts stood out offensively for Florida State, several times coming through with first down gains that enabled the Seminoles to maintain control of the ball.

Kentucky, down to 29 able-bodied players after losing more than 50 players by dropouts, injury, or ineligibility since last spring, made its biggest move in the fading minutes of the third period when Woolum connected on a 32-yard pass to Hutchinson that carried to the Florida State 15.

The Wildcats got as far as the 11, but nothing came of it and Clark Mayfield's fourth-down field goal attempt was wide.

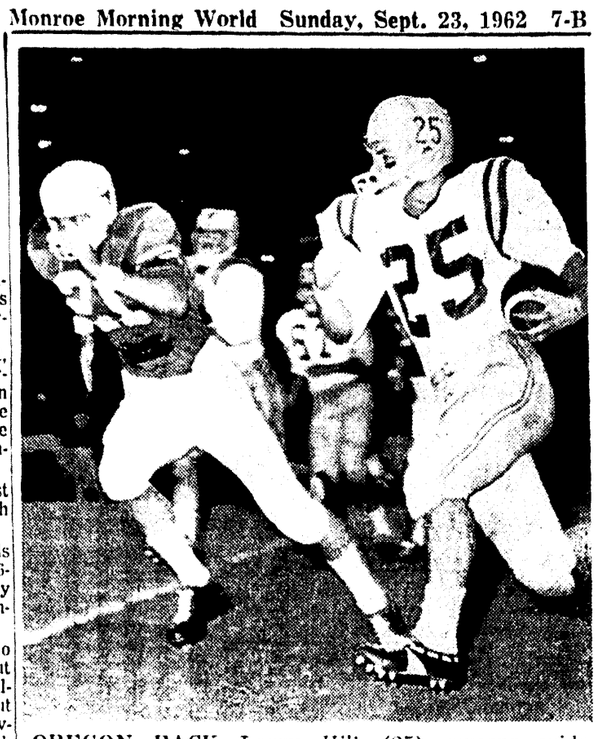

Florida State missed its best chance in the second period when an 11-yard smash by Roberts and Feely's 14-yard run, plus a personal foul penalty, carried to the Kentucky 18.

But two Feely passes were batted down and John Harlee's place kick attempt was wide to the left.

LUCKY BREAKS HELP

Ole Miss Socks Memphis, 21-7

By BILL CRIDER

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mississippi mounted one solid scoring drive and cashed in two lucky breaks to wallop Memphis State Saturday night 21-7.

Quarterback Glynn Griffing passed for one of the Rebel touchdowns, ran for the second and sent Perry Lee Dunn crashing across for the third. Memphis State's touchdown came on a spectacular 88-yard run by quarterback Russ Vollmer. A second Tiger threat expired on the Ole Miss 7.

Mississippi, favored by two to three touchdowns, kept the Tigers in hot water most of the first half. Memphis State managed to cope with the Rebel running attack, but couldn't handle that and Griffing's passing, too.

The Rebels, a Southeastern Conference power, got their first touchdown when a bad pass from center sailed over Vollme's head on a fourth down kicking situation, giving them the ball on the Tiger's 14.

The second big break came when Vollmer's handoff was fumbled on tre Tigers 4, where it was recovered by Ole Miss guard Don Dickson. Griffing went over on the second play.

by rushing, to 203 for the Aggies.

In final statistics, Stovall gained 31 yards rushing, plus the 58-yard punt return, while Fields picked up 44 for LSU rushing honors. Campbell ended up with 32, Cranford, with 28, and LeBlanc 10.

In the punting department, Stovall booted five times for a 39.2 average.

Keller was the star for the Aggies, picking up 24 yards on five attempts, but he completed six of nine passes for 62 yards.

It appeared for a while that LSU might score again in the third, but a drive, highlighted by a 15 - yard dash by Campbell, died on the Aggie 31.

Near the end of the quarter, Stovall intercepted a pass thrown by Aggie quarterback Doe McIlhaney, who also alternated at halfback, on the Aggie 47 and returned it to the 41 as the period ended.

On the opening play of the fourth period, LSU drew a 15 yard penalty, moving the ball back to the 50. On the next play, Fields, gained it back with a 13-yard pass to LeBlanc, who made a spectacular catch.

Ward, Stovall and LeBlanc alternated, moving the ball to the one where LeBlanc went over.

The Aggie offense, which was supposed to have featured 28 different formations, was contained most of the night, although first string Jim Keller was a passing threat.

The Aggies only penetrated the LSU end of the field four times during the game.They drove once to the Tiger 20 for their deepest penetration, and that on the last play of the game.

Nicklaus Carries One Stroke Lead

By LARRY KURTZ

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Leader Jack Nicklaus and defending champion Billy Casper Jr.—only a stroke apart—fired identical 5 below par 67s Saturday to set up a showdown Sunday for the 1962 Portland Open golf title.

Nicklaus' 54-hole total in the $25,000 tourney is 200, which is 16 under par on the par 36-36—72 Columbia - Edgewater Country Club course. It includes a two-stroke penalty for slow play, which was imposed by tournament supervisor Joe Black Friday.

In third place with a 203 total after 63 is Butch Baird of Galveston, Tex.

Both Nicklaus and Casper, who is bidding for his fourth straight Portland Open championship, had rounds of 34-33. Nicklaus holed an 18-foot eagle putt after a 350-yard tee shot and a fine approach on the 532-yard 12th hole.

He also sank birdie putts of 2, 7, 10, 10 and 20 feet. He barely missed a 20-foot eagle putt on the first hole and bogeyed the seventh after his drive landed beside a tree. Later he bogeyed the par 3 16th hole when he chipped too far past the pin.

The steady Casper had no bogeys and managed five birdies.

Bruce Crampton, who Friday set a course record with a 9-under-par 63 flared to a 73 after scoring an eagle on the first hole. The putts which fell in for him Friday failed to drop Saturday and many of his tee shots went in the rough.

Sam Carmichael, the young Louisiana State University graduate from Martinsville, Ind., scored a 71 to fall five strokes behind.

Carmichael, playing in only his third pro tournament, tailed Nicklaus by just one stroke Friday.

Nicklaus said the two-stroke penalty was on his mind all day.

"I think I blew some shots because of it," he said, "but then maybe I made some others I wouldn't have otherwise."

Nicklaus is after his second straight crown in his final tourney of the season before enterias classes at Ohio State University Monday.

Nicklaus won the Seattle Open a week ago.

In Sunday's final round, Casper, Ron Weber and Julius Boros will tee off at 12:50 p.m., PDT. Nicklaus, Baird and Larry Mowry will follow 10 minutes later.

Brown In Upset Of Colgate, 6-2

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP)—Brown ended a carry over nine-game losing streak Saturday with a 19-yard scoring pass from Dennis Hauflaire to Bob Seiple in the last period for a 6-2 upset of Colgate. The last game Brown won was the season finale in 1960, also over Colgate.

When Brown was penned deep in its own territory in the final seconds, Hauflaire ran out of the end zone to give Colgate an automatic safety with 22 seconds to go .That set up a free kick and permitted Brown to escape.

Seiple, rated a third-string end, caught four passes in Brown's scoring drive that covered 61 yards in nine plays. The payoff pitch was a down and out pass in the right that with Hauflaire, a 21-year old senior quarterback from Downers Grove, Ill., throwing from the 19. Seiple, a 19-year-old sophomore from Phillipsburg, N.J., grabbed the ball on the 11 and scored. The attempted conversion kick was blocked by three Colgate linemen.

Hebert Leads Visitors With Passing Arm

18. The Indian Apache club stopped the Cardinals cold and Robert Payne returned a Lamar kick from his 45 to the Cardinal 43.

The Indians punched down to Lamar's 34 before the quarter ended.

But the Cardinals dug in here and Robert Payne's angling kick went out of bounds at the Lamar 22. A Lamar punt moments later gave Northeast the ball at its 32 where Robert Payne quick - kicked to the Lamar 15.

But a penalty moved the ball back to the Indian 23 and the Tribe's fourth down punt was run back to the Indian 44.

Out of the hole for the first time all night, Hebert opened up the Lamar offense. It took him just three plays to move the ball 44 - yards for the score.

First he passed to halfback Wright at the Northeast 35, then hit end David Webb at the 24.

On the next play he handed off to Wright and the 170 - pound junior raced off left tackle and went the final 24 yards untouched.

Guard Ferald Finch toed the extra point with 9:41 left in the half for Lamar's 7-0 lead.

The Tribe moved to the Lamar 21 after the kickoff but was held on downs. Then Finch's 34-yard field goal attempt was no good as the half ended.

Lamar took the second half kickoff and returned it to the 30, then drove to the Tribe 42. From here the Cardinals punted to the Indian 23.

On the second play from scrimmage Indian halfback Ken Newton carried around right end, was hit, but kept digging and broke loose to race all the way up to the Lamar 37 where he was tackled by Wright and Webb, the last men between him and the goal.

The Cardinal, defense always tough when it had to be, stiffened [illegible] and dropped Vincent for two consecutive losses on pass attempts back to the 43.

Perhaps erasing the Tribe disappointment, Lamar marched back to the Northeast 25, mainly on passes of eight and 18 yards by Hebert.

Lafitte took over then, gaining 12 yards on the draw play to the Indian, 10, before Mayo threaded his way over right tackle two plays later for the second and last Lamar score.

Some 2:30 was remaining when Finch kicked his second extra point.

The Indians struck back behind Myrick and the Maroon team with one of their best offensive showings of the night.

Thrailkill picked up the kickoff on his goal line, fumbled it, then picked it up and scampered down to the right sideline to the Lamar 35.

Myrick showed his running skill at this point with one of his best offensive displays. The speedy Oak Grove sophomore rambled to the Lamar 30 on the first play from scrimmage on the first of several rollouts.

Thornhill gained to the 24 on the next play, then Myrick went left and weaved his way through most of the Cardinal team to score standing up.

But a clipping penalty nullified the touchdown and shoved the ball back to the 38. Another penalty put the ball on the Lamar 28 moments later and Myrick rolled to the 12 as the quarter ended.

Myrick passed to Thornhill at the five next, but Thornhill was stopped short on the next play and Lamar took over.

The Tribe stopped Lamar quickly and took over on its own 25, then marched to the Indian 45 where a fourth down ramble fizzled and the Cardinals took over.

Foster came through on the next play and recovered a fumble to give the Indians new life at the 47.

Northeast punched down to the Lamar 36, but Vincent was trapped on a fourth down pass attempt and the Cardinals took over at their 44.

Two Hebert passes keyed a drive which moved the ball back to the Indian 29 late in the game, before Vincent intercepted a pass to stop the threat. The Mississippi senior was injured on the play and the game ended moments later with Lamar in possession on the 50.

Longhorns Rally To Down Oregon

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas proved its high national ranking Friday night by coming from behind to down a battling University of Oregon team 25-13.

The mighty Texans were beaten soundly the first half and part of the third quarter by the rampaging Ducks, led by sprinter Mel Renfro and passer Bob Berry.

Texas trailed 13-3 until it suddenly caught fire, making a total of 22 points in 12 minutes.

The Longhorns' quarterback Johnny Genung, fullback Ray Poage, tailback Tommy Ford and punter Ernie Koy led the rejuvenated victory parade, but several others had their spots of glory.

The game ended with Texas gaining 112 yards rushing and 114 passing through nine of 17 attempted passes. Oregon had 134 yards rushing and 174 passing, completing 14 of 29 passes.

An unexpectedly large crowd of 52,000 stood and yelled for most of the second half. Only 40,000 had been expected.

Air Force Tops Colorado State In New Stadium

By FRANK PITMAN

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP)—Air Force opened play in its sparkling new $3.5 million stadium Saturday with a 34-0 victory over punchless Colorado State University.

A capacity 41,330 fans jammed the glass-and-concrete showplace, nestled among pines on the academy grounds in the Rocky Mountain foothills.

The loss was the 12th in a row for Colorado State.

Air Force hit scoring territory in the second quarter under the guidance of reserve quarterback Dave Backus. He drove the falcons 80 yards in eight plays, capped by his pitchout to halfback John Locher, who ran 27 yards for the TD.

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP)—Untested quarterback Jerry Yost ran and passed West Virginia to a 26-0 victory over Vanderbilt Saturday in the football season opener for both schools.

Despite a cold, drizzling rain, Yost threw needle-sharp passes for two touchdowns and ran for a third.

Vanderbilt's touted quarterback Hank Lorenne, top passer among Southeastern Conference returnees, was held to 53 yards passing, completing six of 17 throws. Yost passed for 87 yards, 70 of them in the first half, and completed six of seven.

Yost, a junior, scored from the one on a sneak in the first period, ending a drive which moved into Commodore territory on a 25-yard pass play to the 42. Yost throwing to end Gene Heeter.

Boston College Stomps Detroit

BOSTON (UPI) — New Coach Jim Miller directed his Boston College football team to a 27-0 victory over his former University of Detroit Charges in their mutual opener Saturday.

Miller's Eagles scored single touchdowns in the first and second quarters and exploded for a pair in the fourth period against the team he coached to a 20-3 victory over Boston in last fall's opener.

Boston College had to overcome the bullet passing of chunky all-America quarterback prospect Jerry Gross, Miller's former prize pupil, for the win.

Dean Chance, Wooster, Ohio hurler with the Los Angeles Angels, won 51 out of 52 games in high school.

Street Carries The Citadel By Davidson, 19-0

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI)—Sophomore halfback Dwight Street scored once and kicked two field goals and an extra point Saturday night to lead the Citadel to a 19-0 victory over Davidson.

The 19-year-old Street, from Shelby, N. C., also ran well for the Cadets who amassed 262 yards on the ground in bouncing back from a 49-0 defeat at the hands of Florida State last Saturday.

Davidson, seeking its second straight victory, never was able to get a consistent attack going against the alternating three platoons of the Cadets.

In fact, the visitors got into a hole at the start when they fumbled on the second play of the game and the Citadel recovered on the Davidson 34. With quarterback Sid Mitchell directing the offense, the Cadets moved quickly downfield and Mitchell sneaked over from the 1. Street's toe failed him the only time tonight when the ball sailed wide on a conversion attempt.

Street turned pass receiver in the second period, snaring a 25-yard scoring toss from Mitchell for the second touchdown. Then in the next two quarters, he kicked field goals of 16 and 31 yards to conclude the scoring.

The Citadel made 18 first downs to 11 for Davidson and reeled off a total 360 yards to 186 for the visitors.

Wildcats, Florida State Battle To 0-0 Decision

By JOHN G. DIETRICH

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)—Ambitious Florida State and Kentucky's hard-bitten handful battled to a futile scoreless tie Saturday night in Charlie Bradshaw's debut as head coach at the University of Kentucky.

Neither team could get a consistent attack underway, and the closest they came to scoring were missed field goals by each from the same spot on the field—the 19-yard line—by Florida State in the second period and Kentucky in the third.

Kentucky's alert secondary kept Florida State's two quarterbacks, Eddie Feely and Steve Tensi, from connecting when it counted.

The Seminoles, on the other hand, checked Kentucky's feared passing combination of Jerry Woolum to end Tom Hutchinson by keeping the Wildcats bottled up in non-passing territory most of the time.

Florida State's defensive unit, the Renegades, with guards Ferrell Henry and Dick Hermann and tackle Bill Tyre leading the charge, simply overwhelmed the inexperienced middle of Kentucky's offensive line.

Kentucky did not make a first down by rushing until the fourth period.

Kentucky was held to 29 yards rushing by the Renegades, a 16-yard dash by fullback Perky Bryant being the longest Kentucky run of the night.

Feely was a constant threat to break loose on option passes, but never quite managed it, as fullback Marion Roberts stood out offensively for Florida State, several times coming through with first down gains that enabled the Seminoles to maintain control of the ball.

Kentucky, down to 29 able-bodied players after losing more than 50 players by dropouts, injury, or ineligibility since last spring, made its biggest move in the fading minutes of the third period when Woolum connected on a 32-yard pass to Hutchinson that carried to the Florida State 15.

The Wildcats got as far as the 11, but nothing came of it and Clark Mayfield's fourth-down field goal attempt was wide.

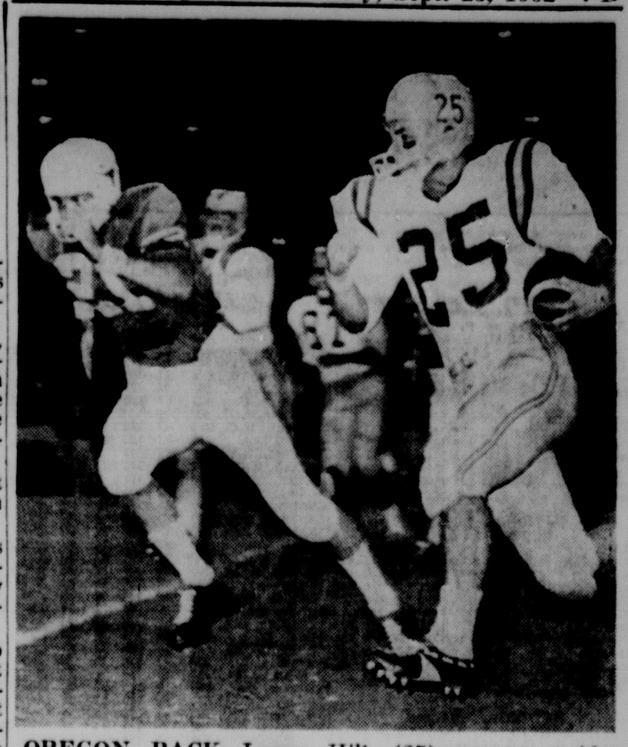

Florida State missed its best chance in the second period when an 11-yard smash by Roberts and Feely's 14-yard run, plus a personal foul penalty, carried to the Kentucky 18.

But two Feely passes were batted down and John Harlee's place kick attempt was wide to the left.

by rushing, to 203 for the Aggies.

In final statistics, Stovall gained 31 yards rushing, plus the 58-yard punt return, while Fields picked up 44 for LSU rushing honors. Campbell ended up with 32, Cranford, with 28, and LeBlanc 10.

In the punting department, Stovall booted five times for a 39.2 average.

Keller was the star for the Aggies, picking up 24 yards on five attempts, but he completed six of nine passes for 62 yards.

It appeared for a while that LSU might score again in the third, but a drive, highlighted by a 15 - yard dash by Campbell, died on the Aggie 31.

Near the end of the quarter, Stovall intercepted a pass thrown by Aggie quarterback Doe McIlhaney, who also alternated at halfback, on the Aggie 47 and returned it to the 41 as the period ended.

On the opening play of the fourth period, LSU drew a 15 yard penalty, moving the ball back to the 50. On the next play, Fields, gained it back with a 18-yard pass to LeBlanc, who made a spectacular catch.

Ward, Stovall and LeBlanc alternated, moving the ball to the one where LeBlanc went over.

The Aggie offense, which was supposed to have featured 28 different formations, was contained most of the night, although first string Jim Keller was a passing threat.

The Aggies only penetrated the LSU end of the field four times during the game.They drove once to the Tiger 20 for their deepest penetration, and that on the last play of the game.

Nicklaus Carries One Stroke Lead

By LARRY KURTZ

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Leader Jack Nicklaus and defending champion Billy Casper Jr.—only a stroke apart—fired identical 5-below par 67s Saturday to set up a showdown Sunday for the 1962 Portland Open golf title.

Nicklaus' 54-hole total in the $25,000 tourney is 200, which is 16 under par on the par 36-36—72 Columbia - Edgewater Country Club course. It includes a two-stroke penalty for slow play, which was imposed by tournament supervisor Joe Black Friday.

In third place with a 203 total after 68 is Butch Baird of Galveston, Tex.

Both Nicklaus and Casper, who is bidding for his fourth straight Portland Open championship, had rounds of 34-33. Nicklaus holed an 18-foot eagle putt after a 350-yard tee shot and a fine approach on the 532-yard 12th hole.

He also sank birdie putts of 2, 7, 10, 10 and 20 feet. He barely missed a 20-foot eagle putt on the first hole and bogeyed the seventh after his drive landed beside a tree. Later he bogeyed the par 3 16th hole when he chipped too far past the pin.

The steady Casper had no bogeys and managed five birdies.

Bruce Crampton, who Friday set a course record with a 9-under-par 63 flared to a 73 after scoring an eagle on the first hole. The putts which fell in for him Friday failed to drop Saturday and many of his tee shots went in the rough.

Sam Carmichael, the young Louisiana State University graduate from Martinsville, Ind., scored a 71 to fall five strokes behind.

Carmichael, playing in only his third pro tournament, tailed Nicklaus by just one stroke Friday.

Nicklaus said the two-stroke penalty was on his mind all day.

"I think I blew some shots because of it," he said, "but then maybe I made some others I wouldn't have otherwise."

Nicklaus is after his second straight crown in his final tourney of the season before entering classes at Ohio State University Monday.

Nicklaus won the Seattle Open a week ago.

In Sunday's final round, Casper, Ron Weber and Julius Boros will tee off at 12:50 p.m., PDT. Nicklaus, Baird and Larry Mowry will follow 10 minutes later.

Brown In Upset Of Colgate, 6-2

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP)—Brown ended a carry over nine-game losing streak Saturday with a 19-yard scoring pass from Dennis Hauflaire to Bob Seiple in the last period for a 6-2 upset of Colgate. The last game Brown won was the season finale in 1960, also over Colgate.

When Brown was penned deep in its own territory in the final seconds, Hauflaire ran out of the end zone to give Colgate an automatic safety with 22 seconds to go .That set up a free kick and permitted Brown to escape.

Seiple, rated a third-string end, caught four passes in Brown's scoring drive that covered 61 yards in nine plays. The payoff pitch was a down and out pass in the right flat with Hauflaire, a 21 - year - old senior quarterback from Downers Grove, Ill., throwing from the 19. Seiple, a 19-year-old sophomore from Phillipsburg, N.J., grabbed the ball on the 11 and scored. The attempted conversion kick was blocked by three Colgate linemen.

Senators Defeat Boston Nine, 4-3

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bud Zipfel's double off the center field fence in the bottom of the 12th inning gave the Washington Senators a 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday night.

With one out in the 12th, Ron Stillwell singled off Boston rookie Bill McLeod. Chuck Hinton singled to center and Zipfel then hit a towering drive to wind it up.

Marty Kutyna, 23rd Washington player to enter the game, was the winner in relief.

Hebert Leads Visitors With Passing Arm

18. The Indian Apache club stopped the Cardinals cold and Robert Payne returned a Lamar kick from his 45 to the Cardinal 43.

The Indians punched down to Lamar's 34 before the quarter ended.

But the Cardinals dug in here and Robert Payne's angling kick went out of bounds at the Lamar 22. A Lamar punt moments later gave Northeast the ball at its 32 where Robert Payne quick - kicked to the Lamar 15.

But a penalty moved the ball back to the Indian 23 and the Tribe's fourth down punt was run back to the Indian 44.

Out of the hole for the first time all night, Hebert opened up the Lamar offense. It took him just three plays to move the ball 44 - yards for the score.

First he passed to halfback Wright at the Northeast 35, then hit end David Webb at the 24.

On the next play he handed off to Wright and the 170 - pound junior raced off left tackle and went the final 24 yards untouched.

Guard Ferald Finch toed the extra point with 9:41 left in the half for Lamar's 7-0 lead.

The Tribe moved to the Lamar 21 after the kickoff but was held on downs. Then Finch's 34-yard field goal attempt was no good as the half ended.

Lamar took the second half kickoff and returned it to the 30, then drove to the Tribe 42. From here the Cardinals punted to the Indian 18.

On the second play from scrimmage Indian halfback Ken Newton carried around right end, was hit, but kept digging and broke loose to race all the way up to the Lamar 37 where he was tackled by Wright and Webb, the last men between him and the goal.

The Cardinal, defense always tough when it had to be, stiffened again and dropped Vincent for two consecutive losses on pass attempts, back to the 43.

Perhaps sensing the Tribe discouragement, Lamar smashed back to the Northeast 25, mainly on pases of eight and 18 yards by Hebert.

Lafitte took over then, gaining 12 yards on the draw play to the Indian, 10, before Mayo threaded his way over right tackle two plays later for the second and last Lamar score.

Some 2:30 was remaining when Finch kicked his second extra point.

The Indians struck back behind Myrick and the Maroon team with one of their best offensive showings of the night.

Thrailkill picked up the kickoff on his goal line, fumbled it, then picked it up and scampered down to the right sideline to the Lamar 37.

Myrick, showed his running skill at this point with one of his best offensive displays. The speedy Oak Grove sophomore rambled to the Lamar 30 on the first play from scrimmage on the first of several rollouts.

Thornhill gained to the 24 on the next play, then Myrick went left and weaved his way through most of the Cardinal team to score standing up.

But a clipping penalty nullified the touchdown and shoved the ball back to the 38. Another penalty put the ball on the Lamar 28 moments later and Myrick rolled to the 12 as the quarter ended.

Myrick passed to Thornhill at the five next, but Thornhill was stopped short on the next play and Lamar took over.

The Tribe stopped Lamar quickly and took over on its own 25, then marched to the Indian 45 where a fourth downgamblefailed and the Cardinals took over.

Foster came through on the next play and recovered a fumble to give the Indians new life at the 47.

Northeast punched down to the Lamar 36, but Vincent was trappe on a fourth down pas attempt and the Cardinals took over at their 44.

Two Hebert passes keyed a drive which moved the ball back to the Indian 20 late in the game, before Vincent intercepted a pas to stop the threat. The Mississippe senior was injured on the play and the game ended moments later with Lamar in possession at the 50.

LUCKY BREAKS HELP

Ole Miss Socks Memphis, 21-7

By BILL CRIDER

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mississippi mounted one solid scoring drive and cashed in two lucky breaks to wallop Memphis State Saturday night 21-7.

Quarterback Glynn Griffing passed for one of the Rebel touchdowns, ran for the second and sent Perry Lee Dunn crashing across for the third. Memphis State's touchdown came on a spectacular 88-yard run by quarterback Russ Vollmer. A second Tiger threat expired on the Ole Miss 7.

Mississippi, favored by two to three touchdowns, kept the Tigers in hot water most of the first half. Memphis State managed to cope with the Rebel running attack, but couldn't handle that and Griffing's passing, too.

The Rebels, a Southeastern Conference power, got their first touchdown when a bad pass from center sailed over Vollme's head on a fourth down kicking situation, giving them the ball on the Tiger's 14.

The second big break came when Vollmer's handoff was fumbled on tre Tigers 4, where it was recovered by Ole Miss guard Don Dickson. Griffing went over on the second play.

When to Fish or Hunt
SOLUNAR TABLES
by John Alden Knight

The schedule or Solunar Periods, printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting on good cover during these times if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

Begin these times as shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The minor periods first listed for morning and afternoon, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Longhorns Rally To Down Oregon

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas proved its high national ranking Friday night by coming from behind to down a battling University of Oregon team 25-13.

The mighty Texans were beaten soundly the first half and part of the third quarter by the rampaging Ducks, led by sprinter Mel Renfro and passer Bob Berry.

Texas trailed 13-3 until it suddenly caught fire, making a total of 22 points in 12 minutes.

The Longhorns' quarterback Johnny Genung, fullback Ray Poage, tailback Tommy Ford and punter Ernie Koy led the rejuvenated victory parade, but several others had their spots of glory.

The game ended with Texas gaining 112 yards rushing and 114 passing through nine of 17 attempted passes. Oregon had 134 yards rushing and 174 passing, completing 14 of 29 passes.

An unexpectedly large crowd of 52,000 stood and yelled for most of the second half. Only 40,000 had been expected.

Air Force Tops Colorado State In New Stadium

By FRANK PITMAN

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP)—Air Force opened play in its sparkling new $3.5 million stadium Saturday with a 34-0 victory over punchless Colorado State University.

A capacity 41,380 fans jammed the glass-and-concrete showplace, nestled among pines on the academy grounds in the Rocky Mountain foothills.

The loss was the 17th in a row for Colorado State.

Air Force hit scoring territory in the second quarter under the guidance of reserve quarterback Dave Backus. He drove the falcons 80 yards in eight plays, capped by his pitchout to halfback John Lorber, who ran 27 yards for the TD.

Rickie Richman Leads Villanova

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) 8 Quarterback Rickie Richman threw three touchdown passes and caught a pair that set up a field goal as the Villanova Wildcats defeated Virginia Military Institute 24-0 Saturday for their second victory of the infant football season.

Richman, a 21-year-old senior, and a beefy Villanova line that outweighed the speedy Keydets almost 17 pounds a man, dominated a game in which Villanova led 10-0 at halftime and wrapped up with a 14 point third quarter.

Vanderbilt Falls To West Virginia

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP)—Untested quarterback Jerry Yost ran and passed West Virginia to a 26-0 victory over Vanderbilt Saturday in the football season opener for both schools.

Despite a cold, drizzling rain, Yost threw needle-sharp passes for two touchdowns and ran for a third.

Vanderbilt's touted quarterback Hank Lesesne, top passer among Southeastern Conference returnees, was held to 53 yards passing, completing six of 17 throws. Yost passed for 87 yards, 70 of them in the first half, and completed six of seven.

Yost, a junior, scored from the one on a sneak in the first period, ending a drive which moved into Commodore territory on a 25-yard pass play to the 42, Yost throwing to end Gene Heeter.

FOUR TEXAS Christian tacklers converge on Kansas quarterback Rodger McFarland in the second quarter of Saturday's game, stopping him six inches short of a first down. McFarland faked a hand off and tried to go around right end. TCU won 6-3. Kansas made the first down on the next play. (AP Wirephoto)

TCU Defeats Jayhawkers Behind Sonny Gibbs, 6-3

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Big, talented Texas Christian made an early touchdown pass by Sonny Gibbs stand up for a 6-3 victory Saturday over a young Kansas club. The Jayhawkers dismissed a tying field goal attempt and tried to win with a pass on the game's final play.

Gibbs, the 6-foot-7, 230-pound All America candidate, directed a 10 play, 72-yard scoring drive which ended with his 12-yard scoring pass to end Tom Magoffin early in the second period.

But the rest of the game largely was a story of missed scoring chances by the Jayhawkers or the hard-nosed defensive stands by the TCU Horned Frogs.

On the last play of the game, Kansas had the ball on the TCU 5 with three seconds left. They passed up a close-in shot at a tying field goal for a pass by quarterback Rodger McFarland, which misfired in the end zone.

A crowd of 35,000, a record for the 20-game TCU-Kansas series, watched in chilly weather under overcast skies.

Kansas moved from the TCU 45 to the 5 in just 43 seconds. McFarland fired three sideline passes to end Jay Roberts and TCU contributed a 15-yard penalty.

OVER YANKEES, 6-2

Error Launches White Sox' Win

CHICAGO (AP)—A throwing error by rookie shortstop Phil Linz opened the door for a three-run seventh inning Saturday that launched the Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

The outcome, coupled with a 5-3 loss by the second place Minnesota Twins at Baltimore, left the Yankees magic number at two.

The only way New York can cinch its 27th pennant and its 13th in the last 15 seasons Sunday is by defeating the Sox while the Twins lose at Baltimore. Both are single games.

Facing the Yankees Bill Stafford will be Early Wynn trying again for his 300th victory.

The Yanks were cruising with a 2-0 lead on Elston Howard's two-run homer in the second inning until the dam burst in the seventh.

Howard's 425-foot shot into the center field bullpen for his 20th home run came with Mickey Mantle aboard on a walk.

Ralph Terry, seeking his 23rd triumph, had limited the Sox to three hits until the seventh. Al Smith walked and Mike Hershberger and Luis Aparicio singled to fill the bases. Deacon Jones' pinch - hit sacrifice fly scored Smith with Hershberger going to third. Aparicio stole second as pinch hitter Charlie Maxwell struck out.

Then came Linz' blunder. Jim Landis was safe when Linz took his routine grounder and threw high to first baseman Bill Skowron. Hershberger scored and Aparicio took third. Fox singled home Aparicio.

Terry was knocked out in the eighth as the Sox scored three more times.

Looney Takes Oklahoma By Syracuse, 7-3

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Reserve fullback Joe Don Looney, inserted in the fourth quarter to give Oklahoma more running punch, twisted into the clear with 2:07 remaining, and sped 60 yards to give the Sooners a 7-3 opening game victory over Syracuse Saturday.

Looney, son of former Texas Christian great Don Looney and star of the Junior Rose Bowl last season with Cameron College, did exactly what he was supposed to do. Once in the game he presented Oklahoma the running attack it had lacked most of the game.

His flashing runs featured an earlier drive which stalled because of a rash of penalties.

Then, with time running out, Oklahoma got the ball on its own 28 when Syracuse fullback James Nance failed to make a first down. Three plays later, Looney burst through the entire Syracuse team, jerked away from three tacklers and sped into the end zone. George Jarman converted.

Until Looney's run, Syracuse looked to be the winner with Tom Mingo's 35-yard field goal which he booted with 49 seconds left in the first half.

Syracuse, with Nance and halfbacks Bill Schoonover and Augustine Giradi doing the damage, continued to hammer at the OU line. But three big chances were killed with three fumbles, all of which were recovered by Oklahoma end Rick McCurdy.

The Orangemen, who had not lost an opener since 1955, headed for what seemed like an insurance touchdown in the fourth quarter with a devastating ground attack. But quarterback Robert Lelli, attempting to pitch out, fumbled.

Mets Set Mark In Loss Catagory

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets lost their 116th game, a modern record in the National League, when the Chicago Cubs bombed Casey Stengel's pitchers for 15 hits and a 9-2 victory Saturday.

It was the Mets' 154th decision although they had also played a tie game. The Boston Braves of 1935 lost 115 games in a 154-game season. The American League record is 117 by Philadelphia in 1916.

Paul Toth, rookie pitcher acquired from St. Louis, was the Cub winner. Al Jackson, knocked out in the third, lost his 20th. It was the first time a National League team had two 20-game losers since Bucky Walters lost 21 and Joe Bowman 20 for the 1936 Phillies.

Mets Set Mark In Loss Catagory

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets lost their 116th game, a modern record in the National League, when the Chicago Cubs bombed Casey Stengel's pitchers for 15 hits and a 9-2 victory Saturday.

It was the Mets' 154th decision although they had also played a tie game. The Boston Braves of 1935 lost 115 games in a 154-game season. The American League record is 117 by Philadelphia in 1916.

Paul Toth, rookie pitcher acquired from St. Louis, was the Cub winner. Al Jackson, knocked out in the third, lost his 20th. It was the first time a National League team had two 20-game losers since Bucky Walters lost 21 and Joe Bowman 20 for the 1936 Phillies.

FOUR TEXAS Christian tacklers converge on Kansas quarterback Rodger McFarland in the second quarter of Saturday's game, stopping him six inches short of a first down. McFarland faked a hand off and tried to go around right end. TCU won 6-3. Kansas made the first down on the next play. (AP Wirephoto)

IN DEFENSIVE BATTLE

TCU Defeats Jayhawkers Behind Sonny Gibbs, 6-3

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Big, talented Texas Christian made an early touchdown pass by Sonny Gibbs stand up for a 6-3 victory Saturday over a young Kansas club. The Jayhawkers disdained a tying field goal attempt and tried to win with a pass on the game's final play.

Gibbs, the 6-foot-7, 230-pound All-America candidate, directed a 10-play, 72-yard scoring drive which ended with his 12-yard scoring pass to end Tom Magoffin early in the second period.

But the rest of the game largely was a story of missed scoring chances by the Jayhawkers or hard-nosed defensive stands by the TCU Horned Frogs.

On the last play of the game, Kansas had the ball on the TCU 5 with three seconds left. They passed up a close-in shot at a tying field goal for a pass by quarterback Rodger McFarland, which misfired in the end zone.

A crowd of 35,000, a record for the 20-game TCU-Kansas series, watched in chilly weather under overcast skies.

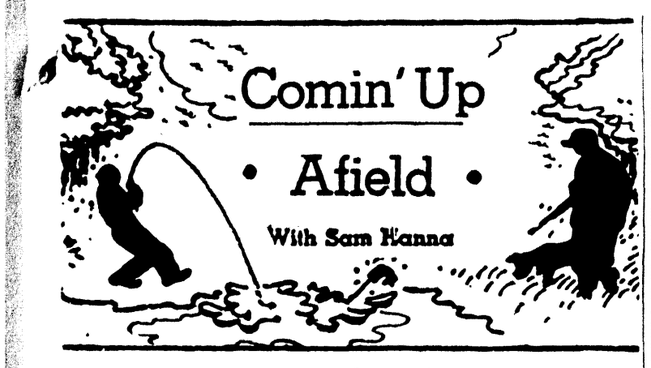

Kansas moved from the TCU 45 to the 5 in just 43 seconds. McFarland fired three sideline passes to end Jay Roberts and TCU contributed a 15-yard penalty.

Gary Duff, Kansas sophomore kicking specialist, booted a 26-yard field goal late in the first period for a 3-0 Kansas lead. TCU came right back with the winning touchdown with the running of sophomore Jim Fauber and fullback Tommy Crutcher, a potent factor behind the Horned Frog line.

A Vital Need

Louisiana is on the verge of directing its outdoor attentions to the field after a busy season on the waters, although the boating industry has leveled off since a big boom of two years ago.

In a few more weeks water sports will take a backseat until spring returns again.

But before another season of water sports returns, somebody needs to coordinate a state-wide effort to develop boat launching facilities for the public.

Except in a few cases, the man who owns a boat — a big boat— has difficulty getting his craft in the water. For instance, the Twin Cities have more than their share of boat owners, yet there is not public launching area in town on the Ouachita River.

A while back we suggested that the Louisiana Legislature sponsor a study of public recreation needs in the state to look in on what Louisiana needs in the line of public parks, camping areas and launching facilities.

This idea did not materialize, but it is not folly. Louisiana has tremendous outdoor potential, yet we are behind the times as the number of outdoor sportsmen grows bigger by the year.

Ah you say let the boatowner rough it like they did in the old days. But these aren't the old days and the craft that people are buying nowadays are far ahead of the boats that use to creep along the Louisiana waterways.

The Louisiana Wildlife Federation, at one time, was making an effort to get the Department of Highways to build boat facilities throughout the state. At home, the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce is currently asking the highway department to build a ramp on the westside of the Ouachita.

This is good.

But there should be a more concentrated drive on the state-level. If it takes money, then let the Legislature direct the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission and the Department of Public Works to pinpoint areas where public ramps are needed.

Let the Legislature direct the parks commission to pinpoint areas where other public facilities are needed.

Money? Sure there's a shortage. There has always been and there always will be.

But if the state can build mansions, then certainly the state can build recreation facilities for the public to enjoy.

Squirrel Season Opening

Squirrel hunters have until October 6th (SIXTH) to prepare for one of the best hunts of them all. Squirrel hunting can be an art.

Last week, by error in this corner, we reported the opening day for October 1. But we had past years in mind and this year's opening comes on October 6th—a Saturday.

This means that the season opener will fall on a weekend when most hunters can have a chance to get into the woods. We suggest, however, that before you go, scout around for a good area.

The squirrel population, according to the reports that we get, is good, but squirrels will move from one area to another when the food and water supplies run short.

An area that has squirrels today may not have squirrels by the time the season opens.

Hunters also should give consideration to having the proper type of clothes for the squirrel season. Personally, we believe in bright-colored caps whether the game can recognize them or not. Just so long as the hunters can.

A big item too is boots. Snakes will still be out when the season opens and a good strong boot could save your life.

At any rate, the squirrel season opens October 6th — the next of the Louisiana seasons. At the same time the rabbit season opens also.

After that, the seasons will be on until the closing of the quail season on Fbruary 25th.

Archers, Squirrel Hunters

Archers who plan to open the special deer season on any of Louisiana's game management areas on October 1st must have a permit from the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

The local office located on Black Bayou has permits for all the game management areas in Northeast Louisiana. This includes the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area in Lafourche Swamp near Monroe.

Meantime, squirrel hunters who plan to hunt the game management areas when the season opens October 6th also must have state permits.

These permits also can be obtained from the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission. Offices in this area are located in Monroe and at Ferriday.

If you plan to hunt the game management areas, do not fail to obtain a permit first. Otherwise you will be violating the law.

Night Hunting Session

A hot subject will be discussed at a regular meeting of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit at the Virginia Hotel Tuesday night, according MORE MORE MORE ... to president Lloyd Voorhees.

Since the Police Jury heard charges that "fire hunters" are destroying the raccoon population in Ouachita Parish and the surrounding area, life has not been the same.

The coon hunters are unhappy. So Tuesday night, when the Wildlife club meets, Voorhees will preside over a discussion pertaining to "night hunting."

In addition, the club hopes to have a representative of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission present to give a detailed explanation of the waterfowl picture.

A film on duck hunting featuring Ted Williams will be shown also.

That's Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Virginia.

Little Man's Corner

Fishing, in general, improved while the dove season ended and the little men made news afield.

Bass fishing is better in Black Bayou near Monroe and Ken Case has been landing a string everyday. Jake Benton has a nice bass fishing trip too. And Steve Simmons did too.

If you plan to go, try the little White Bomber.

And we have been informed that the specs are biting in a big way in the Midway Dam on Bayou DeSiard.

From Winnsboro, Jack Miller and H. W. Armstrong landed 47 large white perch at Mean's Lake near Harrisonburg. They were fishing 10 feet deep.

Most dove hunters ended the first leg of the three - split season on a quiet note, but there were others who got the limit — like L. C. Crews, Jim Baur, Pat Bonner, all of Lake Providence, and Carl Kinney Jr. of Monroe. James Crews of Lake Providence had lots of luck.

Meantime, bass fishing has been good in recent days on Lake Concordia at Ferriday. Billy Smith of Vidalia landed six that averaged over four pounds each. He was fishing with a Nip-idee.

C. J. Jones of Ferriday got the limit of bass there, fishing at night with a black Bushwacker.

Tow other Vidalia anglers, Jimmy Hodges and his son, got the limit of bass in Old River near their town and so did Grover Stanton and Gene Bates.

Lonnie Poland of Jonesboro landed the limit of white perch in Little River near Jena.

At Old River near Lake Providence, Grady Kinnard of Bastrop landed 25 white perch. Catching the limit also were Mrs. G. O. Hill, Mrs. S. J. Mitchell and Mrs. J. E. Sisson, all of Bastrop.

J. W. Hale and Conley Hale of Epps caught the limit of bream in Old River and K. J. Limfom of Darnell landed 15 bass.

A Lake Providence fisherman, C. A. King, landed two nice bass in Gassoway and Mrs. Jim Matthews got the limit of bream.

Monroe fishermen H. L. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Chapman caught of the limit of bream, as did Garland Robbins of Tallulah. Claude Rinnicker of Lake Providence landed a nice string of white perch at the Rock Pile while Mrs. Sam Foutz of Lake Providence caught 10 large white perch at Hollybrook.

Catching bream and catfish in Lake Providence were Mrs. Pat Riley and Mrs. Joe Riley.

Saturday Flag Football League Is Scheduled

A Saturday morning flag football league will be held each Saturday morning at the Benoit Recreation Center for boys between the ages of 10-14 who are not participating on a varsity team.

Any boy wanting to participate may register this week at the Monroe Recreation Center at 1700 Oaklawn Drive.

Providing enough boys sign up for the league, leagues will be established for the northside and college area. Southside boys are asked to register at Benoit and northside boys at Westminister.

Further information may be obtained from Jackie Neal at 325-3895.

TENSAS FISHERMEN Clarence Kiefer and Ed Lofton of St. Joseph were among many fishermen having good luck bass fishing in Lake St. John in recent days. They landed 26 — as demonstrated here on a nice-looking string.

IN DIETZEL'S DEBUT

Army Takes Win From WF, 40-14

By TED SMITS

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Army walloped Wake Forest 40-14 Saturday as Paul Dietzel made his debut as the new Cadet football coach in a glittering display of showmanship.

Using the three unit system he made famous at Louisiana State—calling the platoons the Regulars, the Go team, and the Chinese Bandits—Dietzel master-minded a continuous flow of players and the usually sedate Cadet Corp joined in by donning red hats every time the Bandits took the field.

But Wake Forest went down fighting. John Mackovic, a sophomore quarterback, opened a brilliant passing attack in the second half that neither the Army regulars nor the Bandits could solve.

Joe Blackgrove, quarterback of the Army regulars, and Art Lewis quarterback of the Go team, sparked the Army touchdowns. Blackgrove scored one himself on a sweep, and passed to end John Ellerson for another. Lewis passed to John Seymour for a third Army tally and Paul Stanley scored another on a sneak.

In the closing minutes Seymour ran 30 yards to score and Dick Eckert passed 8-yards to Don Parcells for the final Army touchdown.

Wake Forest started its fireworks in the third period after Army had run up a 26-0 lead. The North Carolina team went 80 yards almost entirely on Mackovic's passes, with Jimmy Bedgood catching a 6-yard toss for the marker. Henry Newton took a 19-yard pass, also from Mackovic, for the second.

For a few moments in the second period it looked as if Army would run wild. The Go team had gone for the 30 to the Wake Forest 11 as the first period ended. The Regulars then took over, with Stanley scoring from the 3 for the first of the game. On the first play after the next kickoff, Mackovic fumbled and Ellerson recovered. Blackgrove passed 27 yards to Ellerson on the next play to make it 12-0.

Orioles Win, 5-3 From Fading Twins

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — Playing their role of spoiler to the hilt, the Baltimore Orioles stopped Minnesota 5-3 Saturday and all but eliminated the fading Twins from the American League pennant race.

Homers by Jack Brandt, Jim Gentile and Dave Nicholson powered the Orioles to their second straight victory over the second-place Twins. Prior to this series, Baltimore showed only a 4-8 record against Minnesota.

Harmon Killebrew's 44th home run of the season, after singles by Vic Power and Rich Rollins, shot the Twins into a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

After their first inning rally, the Twins rolled over and played dead at the plate. They made only two hits the rest of the way—doubles by Lenny Green in the seventh and Zorro Versalles in the ninth.

Rookie John Miller, the third of four Baltimore pitchers, was credited with the victory. The 21-year-old native of Baltimore hurled three hitless innings in the middle of the game, in his first major league appearance.

Brandt's two-run homer in the third inning cut the Minnesota lead to 3-2, and the Orioles knocked loser Jack Kralick from the box with three more runs in the sixth.

After Brooks Robinson reached base on a checked-swing single, Gentile homered into the right field bleachers. His 33rd homer—and 10th at home—came several pitches after his blow into the stands along the right field line was called foul.

Two batters later, Nicholson hit a solo homer which finished Kralick—and just about finished the Twins for 1962.

Milwaukee Wins With Aaron, 2-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) -- A booming home run over the left field scoreboard by Henry Aaron powered the Milwaukee Braves to a 2-0 victory Saturday over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Aaron's blast, his 41st homer of the year, came in the eighth inning off rookie Tom Sisk after Eddie Mathews singled.

Braves starter Jim Constable scattered five hits, walked none and struck out five in picking up the victory.

QUARTERBACK THRILLS CROWD

Yellow Jackets Whip Tigers Behind Billy Lothridge, 26-9

By DAVID M. MOFFIT

ATLANTA (UPI) — Billy Lothridge, Georgia Tech's do-it-all quarterback, thrilled a record crowd Saturday with a second-period aerial barrage that gave the Yellow Jackets a 26-9 victory over the Clemson Tigers.

Lothridge, a junior from Gainesville, Ga., threw three touchdown passes during a seven-minute stand of the second period. He hit on two 23-yard scoring passes to ends Billy Martin and Ted Davis and a 37-yard touchdown heave to halfback Joe Auer.

ATLANTA (AP)—Statistics of the Clemson-Georgia Tech football game:

	Clemson	Ga. Tech
First downs	11	19
Rushing yardage	94	177
Passing yardage	94	148
Passes	12-24	11-16
Passes intercepted by	2	2
Punts	5-46.4	3-39
Fumbles lost	1	0
Yards penalized	55	48

Lothridge really put on a show for the 51,140 fans in the remodeled Grant Field stands. In addition to his second period passes, he scored Tech's fourth touchdown himself in the final period, kicked two extra points, handled all the punting and kickoff chores for the Jackets and even attempted a 50-yard field goal that was short.

Clemson was ahead 3-0 on a 44-yard first period field goal by Rodney Rogers and had Tech backed up to its own six-yard line when Lothridge went to work.

He directed the Jackets on a 94-yard, 14-play march that featured runs by Auer and sophomore halfback Johnny Gresham and was climaxed by his pass to Martin who plucked the ball from two Clemson defenders on the Tiger 10 and raced in untouched.

Five minutes later Tech scored again as Lothridge first completed a 15-yard pass to Gresham, then hit Auer in the flat from the 37. Auer shook off a couple of over-anxious defenders and headed goalward with a burst of speed.

It took Lothridge and the Jackets barely two and one-half minutes to strike again. Guard Brad Yates intercepted a Clemson pass at the Tiger 35. Lothridge connected on an 11-yard pass to Gresham and then caught Davis with his third scoring pass of the period.

Lothridge made good on two of three conversion tries during the period and Tech went off the field at halftime with a 20-3 lead and looking every bit as good as its pre-season ratings.

Tech never got going in the third period and Clemson, after a pass interception by end Coleman Glaze, began a 63-yard drive that ended with halfback Jerry Taylor's six-yard touchdown run in the opening minute of the fourth period. Clemson's try for a two-point pass failed.

Lothridge got Tech going again midway through the final period after linebacker Don Toner recovered a Clemson fumble at the Tech 40. Lothridge completed two key passes during the 60-yard drive and went over himself from a foot out.

Tech's Team Is Dominated By Hopefuls

RUSTON (Special) — Sandwich an old pro around a bunch of young fellows and a person has a clear picture of the Louisiana Tech backfield situation.

Mickey Slaughter is the elder member of the Tech backfield and as usual there is no evidence of weakness in his performance. Paul Labenne, junior from Fair Park of Shreveport, has shown the greatest improvement and is rated by Tech Coach Joe Aillet as "an outstanding back."

Soph Jack Odom of Shreveport Fair Park has shown excellent running ability in fall drills but is handicapped by a strained back. Aillet expressed pleasure with frosh Billy Laird's work at quarterback and says he "has everything it takes to be a great quarterback."

Youth prevails in the backfield on all three Tech units. Other halfbacks include Corky Corkern, Bossier City soph; Tommy Robertson, North Caddo frosh; Dwain Nettles, ex - Istrouma star who is also a freshman, and Ken Tidwell, North Caddo soph whose frame may be small at 140 pounds but who has a lot of ability.

Mickey Strother is a senior halfback who has shown good running form on occasion but who is hobbled by an ankle injury.

Two sophs and one freshman are holding forth at fullback. Ronnie Carson, Jonesboro - Hodge soph, is a starter at present but is being pushed by soph Wayne Noland of Tallulah and frosh Gerald McDowell of Sulphur.

With training time still left before the opener, other young players could make a place for themselves before the clash with McNeese State here Spt. 29.

Nebraska Rolls To 53-0 Victory

By DAN MCNULTY

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska rolled over an out-manned and out-weighed South Dakota team 53-0 Saturday in what amounted to a gridiron tune-up for the Huskers' game with Michigan this week.

Nebraska opened up in the second half, after a sluggish first quarter of their first game under Coach Bob Devaney.

South Dakota never threatened. Its longest penetration went to the Nebraska 15 on the game's final play.

Faulk Increases Lead In Visalia

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — Mary Lena Faulk, Thomasville, Ga., shooting a par 72, widened her lead in the Visalia $10,000 Invitational Open to six strokes Saturday with only one more day to go.

Her effort made her three-day score 214, two under par for 54 holes.

Ruth Jessen, Seattle, Wash., started to blaze a comeback until she hit the 16th hole where she put two out of bounds. She was three under par for the first nine, but finished the day with a par 72 for a total of 220.

DICK SHINER LEADS

Maryland Downs Mustangs By 7-0

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)— Maryland pried a long but brilliant touchdown out of a stubborn Southern Methodist squad Saturday for a 7-0 victory fashioned mainly by quarterback Dick Shiner's passing and a fourth-down jackpot gamble.

Thwarted for two periods by the Mustangs' surprisingly craggy defense and a succession of embarrassing penalties, the Terrapins mustered one 36 - scoring march in the third quarter and made it stand up under heavy SMU pressure.

Shiner had a third and 24 on his own 14 when he hit sophomore end Mike Funk for 22 yards. Fourth-and-2 looked a mile, but Shiner made it with a burst around end and Maryland caught fire.

Two more passes to Funk carried to the Mustangs' 27, two smashes by sophomore halfback Len Chiaverini put the ball on the SMU 4. Shiner then took it into the end zone with another cruise around the Mustangs' flank.

John Hannigan's conversion ended the scoring, but not the excitement.

Shiner, apparently anxious to have Maryland live up to its role as a two touchdown favorite, kept tossing passes in the fourth period. Center John Hughes picked one off on the Terp 28 and SMU worked down to the 13 before Tom Brown, Maryland's crack defensive halfback, saved the day by intercepting Max Derden's pass in the end zone.

It was a frustrating first half for the Terps had five key first downs wiped out by penalties, four of them called inside SMU territory and two of them occurring when Maryland apparently had the ball inside the Mustang 30.

A Vital Need

Louisiana is on the verge of directing its outdoor attentions to the field after a busy season on the waters, although the boating industry has leveled off since a big boom of two years ago.

In a few more weeks water sports will take a backseat until spring returns again.

But before another season of water sports returns, somebody needs to coordinate a state-wide effort to develop boat launching facilities for the public.

Except in a few cases, the man who owns a boat — a big boat— has difficulty getting his craft in the water. For instance, the Twin Cities have more than their share of boat owners, yet there is not public launching area in town on the Ouachita River.

A while back we suggested that the Louisiana Legislature sponsor a study of public recreation needs in the state to look in on what Louisiana needs in the line of public parks, camping areas and launching facilities.

This idea did not materialize, but it is not folly. Louisiana has tremendous outdoor potential, yet we are behind the times as the number of outdoor sportsmen grows bigger by the year.

Ah you say let the boatowner rough it like they did in the old days. But these aren't the old days and the craft that people are buying nowadays are far ahead of the boats that use to creep along the Louisiana waterways.

The Louisiana Wildlife Federation, at one time, was making an effort to get the Department of Highways to build boat facilities throughout the state. At home, the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce is currently asking the highway department to build a ramp on the westside of the Ouachita.

This is good.

But there should be a more concentrated drive on the state-level. If it takes money, then let the Legislature direct the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission and the Department of Public Works to pinpoint areas where public ramps are needed.

Let the Legislature direct the parks commission to pinpoint areas where other public facilities are needed.

Money? Sure there's a shortage. There has always been and there always will be.

But if the state can build mansions, then certainly the state can build recreation facilities for the public to enjoy.

Squirrel Season Opening

Squirrel hunters have until October 6th (SIXTH) to prepare for one of the best hunts of them all. Squirrel hunting can be an art.

Last week, by error in this corner, we reported the opening day for October 1. But we had past years in mind and this year's opening comes on October 6th—a Saturday.

This means that the season opener will fall on a weekend when most hunters can have a chance to get into the woods. We suggest, however, that before you go, scout around for a good area.

The squirrel population, according to the reports that we get, is good, but squirrels will move from one area to another when the food and water supplies run short. An area that has squirrels today may not have squirrels by the time the season opens.

Hunters also should give consideration to having the proper type of clothes for the squirrel season. Personally, we believe in bright-colored caps whether the game can recognize them or not. Just so long as the hunters can.

A big item too is boots. Snakes will still be out when the season opens and a good strong boot could save your life.

At any rate, the squirrel season opens October 6th — the next of the Louisiana seasons. At the same time the rabbit season opens also.

After that, the seasons will be on until the closing of the quail season on Fbruary 25th.

Archers, Squirrel Hunters

Archers who plan to open the special deer season on any of Louisiana's game management areas on October 1st must have a permit from the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

The local office located on Black Bayou has permits for all the game management areas in Northeast Louisiana. This includes the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area in Lafourche Swamp near Monroe.

Meantime, squirrel hunters who plan to hunt the game management areas when the season opens October 6th also must have state permits.

These permits also can be obtained from the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission. Offices in this area are located in Monroe and at Ferriday.

If you plan to hunt the game management areas, do not fail to obtain a permit first. Otherwise you will be violating the law.

Night Hunting Session

A hot subject will be discussed at a regular meeting of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit at the Virginia Hotel Tuesday night, according MORE MORE MORE ..... to president Lloyd Voorhees.

Since the Police Jury heard charges that "fire hunters" are destroying the raccoon population in Ouachita Parish and the surrounding area, life has not been the same.

The coon hunters are unhappy. So Tuesday night, when the Wildlife club meets, Voorhees will preside over a discussion pertaining to "night hunting."

In addition, the club hopes to have a representative of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission present to give a detailed explanation of the waterfowl picture.

A film on duck hunting featuring Ted Williams will be shown also.

That's Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Virginia.

Little Man's Corner

Fishing, in general, improved while the dove season ended and the little men made news afield.

Bass fishing is better in Black Bayou near Monroe and Ken Case has been landing a string everyday. Jake Benton has a nice bass fishing trip too. And Steve Simmons did too.

If you plan to go, try the little White Bomber.

And we have been informed that the specs are biting in a big way in the Midway Dam on Bayou DeSiard.

From Winnsboro, Jack Miller and H. W. Armstrong landed 47 large white perch at Mean's Lake near Harrisonburg. They were fishing 10 feet deep.

Most dove hunters ended the first leg of the three - split season on a quiet note, but there were others who got the limit — like L. C. Crews, Jim Baur, Pat Bonner, all of Lake Providence, and Carl Kinney Jr. of Monroe. James Crews of Lake Providence had lots of luck.

Meantime, bass fishing has been good in recent days on Lake Concordia at Ferriday. Billy Smith of Vidalia landed six that averaged over four pounds each. He was fishing with a Nip-idee.

C. J. Jones of Ferriday got the limit of bass there, fishing at night with a black Bushwacker.

Tow other Vidalia anglers, Jimmy Hodges and his son, got the limit of bass in Old River near their town and so did Grover Stanton and Gene Bates.

Lonnie Poland of Jonesboro landed the limit of white perch in Little River near Jena.

At Old River near Lake Providence, Grady Kinnard of Bastrop landed 25 white perch. Catching the limit also were Mrs. G. O. Hill, Mrs. S. J. Mitchell and Mrs. J. E. Sisson, all of Bastrop.

J. W. Hale and Conley Hale of Epps caught the limit of bream in Old River and K. J. Limfom of Darnell landed 15 bass.

A Lake Providence fisherman, C. A. King, landed two nice bass in Gassoway and Mrs. Jim Matthews got the limit of bream.

Monroe fishermen H. L. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Chapman caught of the limit of bream, as did Garland Robbins of Tallulah. Claude Rinnicker of Lake Providence landed a nice string of white perch at the Rock Pile while Mrs. Sam Foutz of Lake Providence caught 10 large white perch at Hollybrook.

Catching bream and catfish in Lake Providence were Mrs. Pat Riley and Mrs. Joe Riley.

Saturday Flag Football League Is Scheduled

A Saturday morning flag football league will be held each Saturday morning at the Benoit Recreation Center for boys between the ages of 10-14 who are not participating on a varsity team.

Any boy wanting to participate may register this week at the Monroe Recreation Center at 1700 Oaklawn Drive.

Providing enough boys sign up for the league, leagues will be established for the northside and college area. Southside boys are asked to register at Benoit and northside boys at Westminister.

Further information may be obtained from Jackie Neal at 325-3895.

TENSAS FISHERMEN Clarence Kiefer and Ed Lofton of St. Joseph were among many fishermen having good luck bass fishing in Lake St. John in recent days. They landed 26 — as demonstrated here on a nice-looking string.

IN DIETZEL'S DEBUT

Army Takes Win From WF, 40-14

By TED SMITS

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Army walloped Wake Forest 40-14 Saturday as Paul Dietzel made his debut as the new Cadet football coach in a glittering display of showmanship.

Using the three unit system he made famous at Louisiana State—calling the platoons the Regulars, the Go team, and the Chinese Bandits—Dietzel master-minded a continuous flow of players and the usually sedate Cadet Corp joined in by donning red hats every time the Bandits took the field.

But Wake Forest went down fighting. John Mackovic, a sophomore quarterback, opened a brilliant passing attack in the second half that neither the Army regulars nor the Bandits could solve.

Joe Blackgrove, quarterback of the Army regulars, and Art Lewis quarterback of the Go team, sparked the Army touchdowns. Blackgrove scored one himself on a sweep, and passed to end John Ellerson for another. Lewis passed to John Seymour for a third Army tally and Paul Stanley scored another on a sneak.

In the closing minutes Seymour ran 30 yards to score and Dick Eckert passed 8-yards to Don Parcells for the final Army touchdown.

Wake Forest started its fireworks in the third period after Army had run up a 26-0 lead. The North Carolina team went 80 yards, almost entirely on Mackovic's passes, with Jimmy Bedgood catching a 6-yard toss for the marker. Henry Newton took a 19-yard pass, also from Mackovic, for the second.

For a few moments in the second period it looked as if Army would run wild. The Go team had gone for the 30 to the Wake Forest 11 as the first period ended. The Regulars then took over, with Stanley scoring from the 3 for the first of the game. On the first play after the next kickoff, Mackovic fumbled and Ellerson recovered. Blackgrove passed 27 yards to Ellerson on the next play to make it 12-0.

QUARTERBACK THRILLS CROWD

Yellow Jackets Whip Tigers Behind Billy Lothridge, 26-9

By DAVID M. MOFFIT

ATLANTA (UPI) — Billy Lothridge, Georgia Tech's do-it-all quarterback, thrilled a record crowd Saturday with a second-period aerial barrage that gave the Yellow Jackets a 26-9 victory over the Clemson Tigers.

Lothridge, a junior from Gainesville, Ga., threw three touchdown passes during a seven-minute stand of the second period. He hit on two 23-yard scoring passes to ends Billy Martin and Ted Davis and a 37-yard touchdown heave to halfback Joe Auer.

Lothridge really put on a show for the 51,140 fans in the remodeled Grant Field stands. In addition to his second period passes, he scored Tech's fourth touchdown himself in the final period, kicked two extra points, handled all the punting and kick-off chores for the Jackets and even attempted a 50-yard field goal that was short.

Clemson was ahead 3-0 on a 44-yard first period field goal by Rodney Rogers and had Tech backed up to its own six-yard line when Lothridge went to work.

He directed the Jackets on a 94-yard, 14-play march that featured runs by Auer and sophomore halfback Johnny Gresham and was climaxed by his pass to Martin who plucked the ball from two Clemson defenders on the Tiger 10 and raced in untouched.

Five minutes later Tech scored again as Lothridge first completed a 15-yard pass to Gresham, then hit Auer in the flat from the 37. Auer shook off a couple of over-anxious defenders and headed goalward with a burst of speed.

It took Lothridge and the Jackets barely two and one-half minutes to strike again. Guard Brad Yates intercepted a Clemson pass at the Tiger 35. Lothridge connected on an 11-yard pass to Gresham and then caught Davis with his third scoring pass of the period.

Lothridge made good on two of three conversion tries during the period and Tech went off the field at halftime with a 20-3 lead and looking every bit as good as its pre-season ratings.

Tech never got going in the third period and Clemson, after a pass interception by end Coleman Glaze, began a 63-yard drive that ended with halfback Jerry Taylor's six-yard touchdown run in the opening minute of the fourth period. Clemson's try for a two-point pass failed.

Lothridge got Tech going again midway through the final period after linebacker Don Toner recovered a Clemson fumble at the Tech 40. Lothridge completed two key passes during the 60-yard drive and went over himself from a foot out.

DICK SHINER LEADS

Maryland Downs Mustangs By 7-0

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Maryland pried a long but brilliant touchdown out of a stubborn Southern Methodist squad Saturday for a 7-0 victory fashioned mainly by quarterback Dick Shiner's passing and a fourth-down jackpot gamble.

Thwarted for two periods by the Mustangs' surprisingly craggy defense and a succession of embarrassing penalties, the Terrapins mustered one 86 - scoring march in the third quarter and made it stand up under heavy SMU pressure.

Shiner had a third and 24 on his own 14 when he hit sophomore end Mike Funk for 22 yards. Fourth-and-2 looked a mile, but Shiner made it with a burst around end and Maryland caught fire.

Two more passes to Funk carried to the Mustangs' 27, two smashes by sophomore halfback Len Chiaverini put the ball on the SMU 4. Shiner then took it into the end zone with another cruise around the Mustangs' flank.

John Hannigan's conversion ended the scoring, but not the excitement.

Shiner, apparently anxious to have Maryland live up to its role as a two touchdown favorite, kept tossing passes in the fourth period. Center John Hughes picked one off on the Terp 28 and SMU worked down to the 13 before Tom Brown, Maryland's crack defensive halfback, saved the day by intercepting Max Derden's pass in the end zone.

It was a frustrating first half for the Terps had five key first downs wiped out by penalties, four of them called inside SMU territory and two of them occurring when Maryland apparently had the ball inside the Mustang 10.

JUST ABOUT OVER NOW

Orioles Win, 5-3 From Fading Twins

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — Playing their role of spoiler to the hilt, the Baltimore Orioles stopped Minnesota 5-3 Saturday and all but eliminated the fading Twins from the American League pennant race.

Homers by Jack Brandt, Jim Gentile and Dave Nicholson powered the Orioles to their second straight victory over the second-place Twins. Prior to this series, Baltimore showed only a 4-8 record against Minnesota.

Harmon Killebrew's 44th home run of the season, after singles by Vic Power and Rich Rollins, shot the Twins into a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

After their first inning rally, the Twins rolled over and played dead at the plate. They made only two hits the rest of the way—doubles by Lenny Green in the seventh and Zorro Versalles in the ninth.

Rookie John Miller, the third of four Baltimore pitchers, was credited with the victory. The 21-year-old native of Baltimore hurled three hitless innings in the middle of the game, in his first major league appearance.

Brandt's two-run homer in the third inning cut the Minnesota lead to 3-2, and the Orioles knocked loser Jack Kralick from the box with three more runs in the sixth.

After Brooks Robinson reached base on a checked-swing single, Gentile homered into the right field bleachers. His 33rd homer—and 10th at home—came several pitches after his blow into the stands along the right field line was called foul.

Two batters later, Nicholson hit a solo homer which finished Kralick—and just about finished the Twins for 1962.

Milwaukee Wins With Aaron, 2-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A booming home run over the left field scoreboard by Henry Aaron powered the Milwaukee Braves to a 2-0 victory Saturday over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Aaron's blast, his 41st homer of the year, came in the eighth inning off rookie Tom Sisk after Eddie Mathews singled.

Braves starter Jim Constable scattered five hits, walked none and struck out five in picking up the victory.

Nebraska Rolls To 53-0 Victory

By DAN MCNULTY

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska rolled over an out-manned and out-weighed South Dakota team 53-0 Saturday in what amounted to a gridiron tune-up for the Huskers' game with Michigan this week.

Nebraska opened up in the second half, after a sluggish first quarter of their first game under Coach Bob Devaney.

South Dakota never threatened. Its longest penetration went to the Nebraska 15 on the game's final play.

Tech's Team Is Dominated By Hopefuls

RUSTON (Special) — Sandwich an old pro around a bunch of young fellows and a person has a clear picture of the Louisiana Tech backfield situation.

Mickey Slaughter is the elder member of the Tech backfield and as usual there is no evidence of weakness in his performance. Paul Labenne, junior from Fair Park of Shreveport, has shown the greatest improvement and is rated by Tech Coach Joe Aillet as "an outstanding back."

Soph Jack Odom of Shreveport Fair Park has shown excellent running ability in fall drills but is handicapped by a strained back. Aillet expressed pleasure with frosh Billy Laird's work at quarterback and says he "has everything it takes to be a great quarterback."

Youth prevails in the backfield on all three Tech units. Other halfbacks include Corky Corkern, Bossier City soph; Tommy Robertson, North Caddo frosh; Dwain Nettles, ex - Istrouma star who is also a freshman, and Ken Tidwell, North Caddo soph whose frame may be small at 140 pounds but who has a lot of ability.

Mickey Strother is a senior halfback who has shown good running form on occasion but who is hobbled by an ankle injury.

Two sophs and one freshman are holding forth at fullback. Ronnie Carson, Jonesboro - Hodge soph, is a starter at present but is being pushed by soph Wayne Noland of Tallulah and frosh Gerald McDowell of Sulphur.

With training time still left before the opener, other young players could make a place for themselves before the clash with McNeese State here Spt. 29.

Faulk Increases Lead In Visalia

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — Mary Lena Faulk, Thomasville, Ga., shooting a par 72, widened her lead in the Visalia $10,000 Invitational Open to six strokes Saturday with only one more day to go.

Her effort made her three-day score 214, two under par for 54 holes.

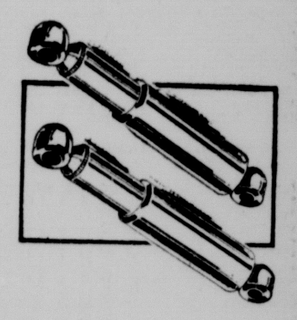

Ruth Jessen, Seattle, Wash., started to blaze a comeback until she hit the 16th hole where she put two out of bounds. She was three under par for the first nine, but finished the day with a par 72 for a total of 220.

CONFERENCE SLATED

Group To Study Drugs Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The narcotics addict who "mainlines" heroin . . . The teen-ager who sniffs model airplane cement . . . The truck driver who gulps "bennies" to keep awake on a long haul . . . The nervous housewife who can't get to sleep without barbiturates . . . The harassed businessman who lives on martinis-and-Miltown . . .

They're all part of a growing national problem — the problem of drug abuse.

Next Thursday and Friday, at the invitation of President Kennedy, 400 scientists and law enforcement officials from all parts of the country will explore this problem at a White House Conference on Narcotic and Drug Abuse.

They will try to extract a few hard facts from the mountain of folklore and fiction which surrounds this subject. And they hope to point the nation toward new and more effective means of controlling drug addiction and reclaiming its victims.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy will serve as chairman. The President will address the opening session.

Discussions will center around a report drafted by a panel of noted physicians, psychiatrists, pharmacologists, social scientists and law enforcement experts, headed by Dr. David Goddard, provost of the University of Pennsylvania.

The report is sharply critical of the present national policy — reflected in federal and state laws — of sending drug offenders to prison for long periods. But it also rejects the alternative adopted by Great Britain and frequently advocated in this country of providing addicts with legal supplies of narcotics through public clinics.

Instead of either approach, the report urges that "compulsive drug abusers" be rehabilitated through enforced hospitalization, followed by "a long, strictly supervised, highly controlled parole period."

Experiments in California and New York have demonstrated, the report says, that a "reasonable proportion" of addicts can be "permanently weaned" from drugs by the parole approach.

Others can be restored to useful functioning in society even though they may suffer occasional relapses into the habit.

Besides being a more humane solution, hospital treatment followed by strictly supervised parole is much less expensive to the public, the report points out. It said it costs about $350 a year to watch over a patroled patient and help him readjust to normal life. But it would cost $2,000 a year to keep the same person in jail.

Although most people think of drug abuse primarily in terms of narcotics addiction, the conference will view the problem in a much wider context.

Available evidence indicates that illicit use of morphine, heroin and cocaine is decreasing in the United States, but the misuse of non-narcotic drugs, such as barbiturates, amphetamines and tranquilizers, is increasing.

Road Project Study Set At College

RUSTON (Special) — Subsurface formations along highway terrain will be studied in a research project under the supervision of Dr. H. A. Kallsen, civil engineering professor at Louisiana Tech.

Dr. Kallsen, who is serving as acting head of the civil engineering department as a replacement for R. A. Smith, on leave for additional graduate work at Oklahoma State University, has been engaged to conduct the project by the Louisiana Department of Highways and the Bureau of Public Roads through a contract with the engineering research department at Tech.

Through this project, Dr. Kallsen will investigate the applicability of a single - channel seismograph (trade name Terrascout) to the detection of underground formations. It is desired to detect without excavations such formations as rock layers, water lenses, gravel deposits, sand deposits and any other formation affecting cuts, fills, foundations or drainage of construction projects.

Dr. Kallsen aided in the development of the Terrascout device before joining the Tech engineering staff and has been actively engaged in evaluating the instrument for several years.

This project will be carried out in large part along Interstate 20 highway west of Ruston, where surveys can be run on undisturbed terrian and correlation of the findings subsequently can be varified when the cuts are made during construction of the highway.

Dr. Kallsen will be assisted in the project by James C. Summerlin, instructor of civil engineering at Tech, and by undergraduate students yet to be selected at the college.

Funds for the research project will be administered by Dr. Virgil Orr, head of the engineering research department at Tech.

Methodists Lead In U.S. Cabinet

By LOIS CASSELS
United Press International

The appointment of W. Willard Wirtz as secretary of labor puts the Methodist Church in first place among U. S. denominations in terms of representation in the cabinet.

Wirtz is the third Methodist in President Kennedy's official family. The others are Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges and Postmaster General J. Edward Day.

The cabinet also includes two Presbyterians, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara; two Roman Catholics, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze; one Episcopalian, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon; one Lutheran, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman; and one Mormon, Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall.

A Catholic cardinal warned this week that a "vast new mission effort" is needed if Christianity is to keep up with world population growth.

In a message to U.S. Catholic missionary societies holding their annual meeting at Washington, D. C., Joseph Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis said that two-thirds of the world is non-Christian, and the proportion is growing annually.

He said adult baptisms in mission lands totaled about 800,000 last year, while total population increased by 30 million persons.

Irish Actress Is Expert On Mother Roles

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Maureen O'Hara, the screen's most successful mother, was talking in her soft Irish brogue about motherhood.

"A housewife stopped me the other day and said, "How am I goin' to compete with you? My husband adores you. Why do you have to be such a glamorous mother?'

"So I asked how many children she had. Four, she told me. And I said to her, 'Why, isn't that wonderful. It shows how much your husband must love you.'"

At 39, the onetime Irish colleen —who looks 25—has become an expert on motherhood.

She's had 20½ children and three grandchildren. One was adopted. A couple died at birth. She's even had twins.

But all but one—her 18-year-old daughter, Bronwyn Bridget, confined their hijinks to the screen.

Bronwyn is her daughter by her divorce-ended marriage to the late producer Will Price.

The others were the offspring of cinematic liaisons with such famous husbands as Rex Harrison, John Wayne, Robert Young, Tyrone Power, Fred MacMurray, James Stewart and Henry Fonda.

The half child?

"Hayley Mills. She played twins in "Parent Trap."

"I've even been Natalie Wood's mother—twice," she added, "In "Miracle on 34th Street," and "Father was a Fullback."

All this motherhood has given a new resurgence to Maureen's career, usually confined in early days to the hoop-skirted heroine in such swashbuckles as "Spanish Main."

And it hasn't lessened the attentions of her steady beau, Mexico City attorney Enrique Parra.

She's been a mother in her last five films. In her latest, "Spencer's Mountain," with Henry Fonda, they're parents of 9.

Being a mother really isn't new for Maureen, though it's given her career a boost.

"No one realizes that I've been playing mothers since I was too young to be a mother. I played a mother of a 6-year-old son in 'Buffalo Bill' and I was only 20."

BANKRUPTCY ACTION

Texan Purchases Assets Of Estes

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A federal referee in bankruptcy sold Billie Sol Estes' assets Saturday for $5.8 million principal and certain interest charges. The purchaser was Morris D. Jaffe of San Antonio, a man with varied business interests.

Federal bankruptcy referee J. C. Brooke said the sale is effective immediately. It was approved by the El Paso federal court on recommendation of the Estes creditors committee.

The committee turned down an offer by E. J. Gray of Baytown, Tex., to purchase the assets for $6.6 million principal.

James F. Hulse, El Paso attorney who is chairman of the creditors committee, said Gray's offer was declined because Gray had no commodity credit license for grain storage and that he had submitted no financial statement to the committee.

Hulse said: "These properties must be operated as soon as possible to gain a net profit."

Brooke's order approving the sale included all of the assets in Estes brothers in which Bobby Frank Estes had claimed ⅛ interest.

At the time Estes went into receivership in April, Estes brothers was claimed to have assets of $20 million.

Gray's offer included $1.4 million in interest. Jaffe's offer was $5.8 million plus interest of $1.2 million.

Jaffe said earlier that the creditors insisted that they receive the interest—that he not go to outside sources to obtain a loan.

Estes' widespread empire of grain storage, fertilizer sales, and cotton growing collapsed last March 27 when he was arrested on federal charges of fraud. The government said he sold millions in fertilizer tank mortgages when the tanks never existed.

Estes is scheduled to go on trial Monday in Tyler, Tex., on state charges of theft, swindling and embezzlement in connection with the tank mortgages.

Group To Study Drugs Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The narcotics addict who "mainlines" heroin ... The teen-ager who sniffs model airplane cement ... The truck driver who gulps "bennies" to keep awake on a long haul ... The nervous housewife who can't get to sleep without barbiturates ... The harassed businessman who lives on martinis-and-Miltown ...

They're all part of a growing national problem — the problem of drug abuse.

Next Thursday and Friday, at the invitation of President Kennedy, 400 scientists and law enforcement officials from all parts of the country will explore this problem at a White House Conference on Narcotic and Drug Abuse.

They will try to extract a few hard facts from the mountain of folklore and fiction which surrounds this subject. And they hope to point the nation toward new and more effective means of controlling drug addiction and reclaiming its victims.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy will serve as chairman. The President will address the opening session.

Discussions will center around a report drafted by a panel of noted physicians, psychiatrists, pharmacologists, social scientists and law enforcement experts, headed by Dr. David Goddard, provost of the University of Pennsylvania.

The report is sharply critical of the present national policy — reflected in federal and state laws — of sending drug offenders to prison for long periods. But it also rejects the alternative adopted by Great Britain and frequently advocated in this country of providing addicts with legal supplies of narcotics through public clinics.

Instead of either approach, the report urges that "compulsive drug abusers" be rehabilitated through enforced hospitalization, followed by "a long, strictly supervised, highly controlled parole period."

Experiments in California and New York have demonstrated, the report says, that a "reasonable proportion" of addicts can be "permanently weaned" from drugs by the parole approach.

MR. AND MRS. GERALD HAMMETT

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Couple In Point

A double ring ceremony on Thursday evening, September 6, united in marriage Miss Linda Antley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Antley, of Point, and Gerald Hammett, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Hammett, of West Monroe, in the Providence Baptist Church, in Point.

Vows were exchanged before a background of softly burning tapers in tiered rows of wrought iron candelabra, flanked by yellow gladioli and stock, and garlanded with ivy. Nuptial music was provided by Rev. Ted Lann, organist, with vocal selections by Mrs. Jean Bryan.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Amos Antley. She wore a gown of embroidered net over tulle and taffeta, which featured a molded bodice floor length skirt of embroidered net over taffeta. The fingertip veil was of tulle fashioned in two tiers and fell from a capulet embroidered with tiny seed pearls. The bride's bouquet was fashioned of white split carnations and lace with long streamers of bridal pearls tied in bridal knots, over a white Bible. She also wore a string of pearls, a gift of the groom.

WEDDING PARTY

Mrs. JoAnn Moore, sister of the groom, served as matron of honor, and were a street length gown of yellow silk organza over taffeta, featuring a scalloped neckline. Her headdress was a yellow flowered hat with eyelash veil, and she wore matching yellow slippers and carried a bouquet of white pompons with long streamers. Mrs. Moore wore a string of pearls identical to that of the bride.

Miss Judy Tucker and Miss Lynn Tucker, cousins of the bride, served as bridesmaid and junior bridesmaid, respectively. They wore street length gowns, slippers, and headdresses identical to that of the matron of honor, and carried bouquets of white pompons with long streamers.

Robert Earl Moore, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man, and Durwood Antley and Jerry Antley, brothers of the bride, were in attendance as groomsmen-ushers. Tapers were lighted by Durwood Antley and Jerry Antley.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Church reception room. As she received guests Mrs. Antley was wearing a mint green sheath with matching schiffli embroidered flowers designed with scoop neckline, with white accessories. Her corsage was of white pompons designed with a pearl heart in the center. Mrs. Hammett wore a coffee brown sheath fashioned with a scoop neckline, and brown and black accessories. Her corsage was of white pompons designed with a pearl heart in the center, also.

The guest book was placed on a white covered table with a large white candle encircled by lace fern and white pompons, while the bride's table, draped in white, featured a tiered wedding cake flanked by bouquets of yellow gladioli and white pompons. The guest book was presided over by Miss Madelyn Antley, cake was served by Miss Gloria Biggs, and punch was poured by Mrs. Betty Ward. Serving as tea girls were Miss Betty Nolan and Miss Kathy Nolan.

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harbour, Jr., and Jerry, Mrs. Billy Simmons and Susan, all of Bossier City, Reverend and Mrs. Connie Ward of Delhi, Mrs. Lucille Murray and Jackie, Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Antley, J. G. Hammett, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Jennings, and Mr. and Mrs. George Greer, Marilyn and Susan, all of West Monroe, Miss Connie Averitte of Monroe, George Abbott of Jonesboro, and Mr. and Mrs. John Day of Houston, Texas.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas, the bride was wearing a beige tailored suit with buttoned cardigan jacket featuring a rounded neckline, with pink accessories, and a corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The bride graduated from Downsville High School and attended Ouachita Valley Vocational School. The groom graduated from West Monroe High School, and is presently a junior at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

The couple will reside in Ruston, upon returning from their trip.

Miss Massey Betrothed To Stephen W. Brown

November 17 is the date chosen for their wedding by Miss Ernestine Lucretia Massey of Shreveport and Stephen William Brown, West Monroe, whose engagement is announced today by her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Ernest W. Massey, Shreveport. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lloyd Brown of West Monroe.

Vows will be exchanged in the Highland Baptist Church in Shreveport.

Convert Runs In Nylons

Those giddy stockings with beads and bangles sewn up, down, and around the legs aren't as impractical as they seemed at first glance during the Italian and French couture shows.

An enterprising New York advertising woman has stopped throwing her runny stockings away. Instead she's mending the runs, covering the seam line with sequins and pearls, as if she had planned for them to be there in the first place. She'll wear them with a short-in-front ball gown, as they were exhibited at the European shows.

Faculty members of the Fine Arts division at Northeast State college, with their wives and husbands, were invited to a punch party Sunday afternoon in the home of CHUNKY and HARRY LEMERT. Hours of the party were four until six.

LOU LEMERT greeted her parents' arriving guests at the door. Pink flowers decorated the reception rooms for the affair. In the living room, pink asters filled an etched vase on the piano.

The dining table, which was covered with an organdy cloth appliqued with linen, was centered with pink chrysanthemums in a silver bowl. Two identical cut glass punch bowls held South American coffee ice cream punch and pink fruit punch at opposite ends of the table. MARY ELLEN WALKER, FLORENCE ALLBRITTON, SUE HANNA and BETTY GRAY served punch. Other goodies included French pastries, chicken salad sandwiches, and cheese almonds. DAISY GRAY, EVELYN NICHOLSON, EDNA VOGEL, GLORIA BINGHAM, and MONTY SMITH also assisted the hosts.

Travellers are coming and going at every season of the year. Off to take advantage of beautiful Fall weather in Germany are HELEN and LEE EDWARDS, who leave tomorrow. They will be gone about two weeks, touring all the major cities of Germany.

Home again after a summer abroad are ALLEN TROUSDALE and TOMMY CALDWELL, who got back just in time for school. Allen will return to Tulane school of architecture, Tommy to LSU law school. They had three months abroad, making stops in London, Paris, Rome, Athens, Munich, Copenhagen, and East Berlin.

Also back from three months in Europe is TOM SIMONTON, who attended Goethe German Language Institute in Iserlohn, Germany for six weeks. The remaining time was spent in touring by motor scotter, taking in the Black Forest, Rhine Valley, Austria, as well as European capitals and seashores.

A new comer to Monroe this summer, GAY TARVER, who moved here with husband JIM from Shreveport, was honored at a small home party last Friday afternoon. KATHLEEN LANDERS was hostess at her home at 1716 Spencer. Fall colors were carried out in appointments, with a tall arrangement of yellow chrysanmums in a copper bowl ornamenting the dining table. Tall yellow candles flanked the centerpiece. Yellow punch and coffee were served, with cookies in seasonal shades. AMY BECTON, INEZ GILLILAND, LUCILLE POTTER, and KATIE HOLLOWAY assisted. About twenty - five guests were invited to call between three and five.

The JACK PEATS returned home Tuesday after a week vacation. Jack was in Chicago on business when Alice flew to join him there. They made a leisurely trip back, with stops in St. Louis and Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Visitors here for two days this week were VIRGINIA WARNER'S mother, MARY NELSON of Vivian; and her aunt, SARAH NICHOLSON of Bunkie. On Wednesday, Virginia entertained with a bridge - luncheon at home honoring the guests. The menu included a tamale - corn casserole, tossed green salad, and hot rolls. For dessert, creamy custard with grated orange peel and slivered almonds. There were fifteen guests for lunch, with three tables of players taking part in bridge games later. Prizes were won by PAT MADDEN, high; and MARIE COOKSTON, second.

To celebrate son MICHAEL'S fourth birthday BARBARA and JACK EASTERLING invited twenty little friends to a cowboy party on Thursday, with rides on live ponies along the bayou bank of their Island Drive home the highlight of the festivities. A cowboy shaped birthday cake, punch, and ice cream were served following the rides, on a red bandana covered table, with matching red napkins.

One of the loveliest homes to be completed in this area in many months is that of JUNE and EDDY HOLMES, who are now living with their three children and Eddy's mother on Deborah Drive.

Colonial brick is used for construction, with the two - story central section flanked by single - story wings. In the right wing, as one approaches, is found the guest suite, with its two private entrances. On the left are garage and utility wing. The gracious facade is distinguished by brick pillars topped by white columns on the second story porch. Curving wrought iron staircases lead to the upper level. One enters on the ground floor to find a charming hall floored in verti black antique marble squares. Living room is to the right; dining room to the left; and door to the family room ahead, under the stairs. Here also one sees the first of several crystal chandeliers which grace the house. A pair of San Simeon urns stand at each side of the door.

To the right, off white is used for walls and carpeting in the living room. Draperies are of palest grey silk, with cornices formed by an extension of the deep wooden molding around the ceiling. Furniture is of the style of Louis XV and XVI, of fruitwood in honey patina finish. Crystal sconces at each side of the breakfront match the chandelier.

Across the hall, dining room walls have a gold - painted wainscotting. Above, gold wallpaper is marked with white to suggest panels. Heavy gold silk draperies hang over glass curtains of white with gold tracery. Furniture is of fruitwood - finished burl walnut in the style of the French Empire. The French Empire dining room table, of fruitwood - finished burl walnut, is encircled with black leather chairs.

The kitchen, with its floor of crab orchard stone and walls of cypress paneling, opens into the utility wing. Here are pantry, swimmers' bath, children's water fountain, hunter's gun room. Characters out of Dickens are portrayed on the wallpaper used in the kitchen above maple cabinets.

Sliding panels of cypress and woven cane open kitchen and breakfast area into the family room with its fireplace, book cases, and child - proof furniture in brown and beiges. Sliding glass panels overlook the covered porch and bayou bank beyond. Draperies of beige drawn linen and white underdrapes are hung on separate rods.

Glazed woodwork and an Italian chandelier set the tone for the guest suite, decorated in neo-classic style. A pair of gold charis flank a gold pedastal marble top table placed before tall windows facing the water. Draperies are of a formal print in gold on white, with dust ruffles of the same fabric. Scalloped cornices and coverlets pick up the gold color.

Upstairs, the sitting area with its Williamsburg chandelier, is furnished with wing chairs, sofa, children's television set. A small upstairs kitchen with stove and icebox, snack - size, opens from the sitting area. Washing machine and dryer are also in this room. Another door opens to reveal stairs to the playroom tucked under the eaves at the third floor level. Sons JOHN and JIM share a room decorated with mounted ducks and hunting prints. Walls are green, above wainscotting papered with old patent medicine labels. The print is repeated in the draperies. Furniture is maple, with toy benches forming foot panels of twin beds.

MARY LEE HOLMES, Eddy's mother, has a blue room, with solid blue walls, draperies and dust ruffle of a print in shades of blue on white, and blue coverlet. Daughter CHARLOTTE'S room is also blue, with furniture of Victorian wicker painted a shade picked from the blue-on-white draperies. Charming cross - stitch coverlets were made for Charlotte by her grandmother CLARISSA SHERROUSE.

In the master bedroom, gold and brown are effectively used with furniture in a fruitwood finish. Gold octagon - shaped commodes serve as tables at each side of the king - size bed. A Renaissance painting, oil on leather, hangs above the bed. Draperies are brown, over textured glass curtains. In the dressing room, with its walk - in hanging area, carefully engineered storage, and triple mirror, a French cupid holding a candle hangs above the brown marble counter.

Our poem today, another by MAY SMITH WHITE, describes "Whitehall," landmark south of town on the Columbia road:

PLANTATION HOME

Here oaks have stood as sentinels through the years,
Guarding the past with deep protecting power—
The youth who walk beneath them hold no fears,
But share the richness of each golden hour.
In coming here I honored, too, the past . . .
For time has spanned five generations now.
And as the shadows fell we entered last
The age - old house that welcomes all somehow!
At first a silence came for some brief time,
But soon gay laughter rang throughout wide halls,
For youth will live these years, now grown sublime,
Expressing joyousness that time recalls.
When others come to know and Keep this ground
May they find faith, also, like these have found.

MR. AND MRS. GERALD HAMMETT

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Couple In Point

A double ring ceremony on Thursday evening, September 6, united in marriage Miss Linda Antley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Antley, of Point, and Gerald Hammett, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Hammett, of West Monroe, in the Providence Baptist Church, in Point.

Vows were exchanged before a background of softly burning tapers in tiered rows of wrought iron candelabra, flanked by yellow gladioli and stock, and garlanded with ivy. Nuptial music was provided by Rev. Ted Lann, organist, with vocal selections by Mrs. Jean Bryan.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Amos Antley. She wore a gown of embroidered net over tulle and taffeta, which featured a molded bodice floor length skirt of embroidered net over taffeta. The fingertip veil was of tulle fashioned in two tiers and fell from a capulet embroidered with tiny seed pearls. The bride's bouquet was fashioned of white split carnations and lace with long streamers of bridal pearls tied in bridal knots, over a white Bible. She also wore a string of pearls, a gift of the groom.

WEDDING PARTY

Mrs. JoAnn Moore, sister of the groom, served as matron of honor, and were a street length gown of yellow silk organza over taffeta, featuring a scalloped neckline. Her headdress was a yellow flowered hat with eyelash veil, and she wore matching yellow slippers and carried a bouquet of white pompons with long streamers. Mrs. Moore wore a string of pearls identical to that of the bride.

Miss Judy Tucker and Miss Lynn Tucker, cousins of the bride, served as bridesmaid and junior bridesmaid, respectively. They wore street length gowns, slippers, and headdresses identical to that of the matron of honor, and carried bouquets of white pompons with long streamers.

Robert Earl Moore, brother-in-law of the groom, served as best man, and Durwood Antley and Jerry Antley, brothers of the bride, were in attendance as groomsmen-ushers. Tapers were lighted by Durwood Antley and Jerry Antley.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Church reception room. As she received guests Mrs. Antley was wearing a mint green sheath with matching schiffli embroidered flowers designed with scoop neckline, with white accessories. Her corsage was of white pompons designed with a pearl heart in the center. Mrs. Hammett wore a coffee brown sheath fashioned with a scoop neckline, and brown and black accessories. Her corsage was of white pompons designed with a pearl heart in the center, also.

The guest book was placed on a white covered table with a large white candle encircled by lace fern and white pompons, while the bride's table, draped in white, featured a tiered wedding cake flanked by bouquets of yellow gladioli and white pompons. The guest book was presided over by Miss Madelyn Antley, cake was served by Miss Gloria Biggs, and punch was poured by Mrs. Betty Ward. Serving as tea girls were Miss Betty Nolan and Miss Kathy Nolan.

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harbour, Jr., and Jerry, Mrs. Billy Simmons and Susan, all of Bossier City, Reverend and Mrs. Connie Ward of Delhi, Mrs. Lucille Murray and Jackie, Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Antley, J. G. Hammett, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Jennings, and Mr. and Mrs. George Greer, Marilyn and Susan, all of West Monroe, Miss Connie Averitte of Monroe, George Abbott of Jonesboro, and Mr. and Mrs. John Day of Houston, Texas.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas, the bride was wearing a beige tailored suit with buttoned cardigan jacket featuring a rounded neckline, with pink accessories, and a corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The bride graduated from Downsville High School and attended Ouachita Valley Vocational School. The groom graduated from West Monroe High School, and is presently a junior at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

The couple will reside in Ruston, upon returning from their trip.

MRS. RODNEY M. JOHNSON, JR.

Johnson-Hendricks Vows Repeated In Arkansas

The marriage vows of Miss Lillian Annette Hendricks and Rodney M. Johnson, Jr., were heard Saturday evening, September 8, at 7:00 p.m. in The First Baptist Church in Huttig, Arkansas. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hendricks of Huttig, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney M. Johnson, also of Huttig.

Candelabra holding lighted taper illuminated the altar area, where baskets of white gladioli and greenery with wedding bells formed an arch for the double ring ceremony. Rev. Bruce Murphy officiated during the exchange of vows, and pre-nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Kathryn Day, organist, and Mrs. Max Funderburk, soloist. Their selections were, "Through the Years," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess style gown which extended into a chapel train of pure silk moonglo trimmed with re-embroidered lace etched in seed pearls with a scalloped neckline and sleeves ending in points at the wrists. She wore a fingertip veil of silk illusion attached to a pearl and lace crown, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid with satin streamers.

Mrs. S. V. Clark, sister of the groom, served as matron of honor, and wore a full-skirted dress of orchid organza over taffeta with matching accessories, and carried a bouquet of orchid pompons. Tapers were lighted by Miss Vickie Ann Clark, niece of the groom, and Tommy Hendricks, brother of the bride.

James Ludwig served as best man, and ushers were Robin Johnson and James Nixon.

Mrs. Hendricks was wearing an ice blue lace dress over taffeta with matching feather pill box hat, black accessories and an orchid corsage. The groom's mother was attired in a pink lace dress over taffeta with matching hat and shoes and an orchid corsage.

RECEPTION

The social room of the church was the setting for the reception immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with cascades of bouffant white organdy, overland with embroidered organza caught at intervals with pink and white nosegays connected by pink satin ribbon. The centerpiece of pink carnations and white pompons was flanked by white tapers burning in two silver candelabra. Punch was served from a silver punch bowl by Mrs. Evelyn James at one end of the table, while Mrs. R. W. Johnson served guests the three tiered white wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom from the opposite end of the table. The guests registered at a small table on which were the brides' bouquet and a pink and white maline heart. Rice bags were passed to the guest by little Rod Clark, nephew of the groom. The bride's book was kept by Miss Gloria Tully, and Miss Janace Ely, Miss Beverly Cain, Miss Judy Vestal and Miss Judy Day served as tea girls.

Out-of-town guests attending the ceremony were H. A. Mouk and H. A. Mouk, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Bates, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bradley, Mrs. Zetta Zeigler, Mrs. Maudie Fant, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Wilson, Mrs. Max Funderburk, Lyn and Kim Funderburk, Dr. and Mrs. S. V. Clark and Vickie and Wilbur Head and Scotty, Mr. and Mrs. K. J. McCoy, Mrs. Don Couthers, Mrs. Marvin Wright, Miss Debbie Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Jones, Mrs. W. T. King, Mrs. W. M. McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jones, Mrs. Evelyn James, Mrs. R. W. Johnson, James Ludwig, Mr. and Mrs. Hurley Axum, Miss Janace Ely and Miss Beverly Cain, all of El Dorado, Arkansas; Mrs. Grady Ham and Paul and Ronald Ham, of Monticello, Arkansas, Mrs. Hughey Ham and Mrs. A. T. Black of Farmerville, Mr. and Mrs. William Tully, Gloria, Gary and Billy Tully, all of Little Rock, Arkansas; Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Ponder and Sandra and Barbara Ponder, of Bonita, J. D. Nutt and Miss Twyla Nutt of Spearsville, Mr. and Mrs. Grady McMath, Mrs. Sid Nash and Pete Nash of Strong, Arkansas, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cotton of Magnolia, Arkansas, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby White of Houma, and Mrs. Jackie Morgan of Crossett, Arkansas.

The bride, a graduate of Huttig High School, also attended Louisiana Business College. The groom graduated from Huttig High School, and is a senior at Northeast Louisiana State College, where he is a member of the National Military Honorary Societies, Scabbard and Blade, the Persining Rifles team, and Pi Sigma Epsilon.

Following the reception the couple left for a trip through Southern Louisiana. Mrs. Johnson traveled in a blue silk suit with matching accessories, and a corsage formed from the orchid from her bridal bouquet. Upon completion of their trip Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will be at home in Monroe.

MR. AND MRS. EVERETT EUGENE AARON

Church Ceremony Unites Miss Cornelius, Mr. Aaron

Miss Margaret Ann Cornelius, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Cornelius of Sterlington, became the bride of Everett Eugene Aaron, also of Sterlington, in a double ring ceremony performed in the Sterlington Baptist Church at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday, September 15. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lee Aaron are parents of the groom.

The Rev. Ray Raddin officiated at the exchange of vows, spoken before an arbor of greenery and bells, flanked by baskets of white gladioli. Pre-nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Hazel Short, at the organ. She accompanied Mike DeShong, who sang, "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

As she entered the church on the arm of her father, the bride was wearing a traditional wedding gown of Chantilly lace and tulle. The lace bodice had a Queen Anne neckline outlined in seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The scalloped lace overskirt was caught up in panier drapes by rosettes of the lace, all overlaid on multi-layers of tulle. Her finger-tip illusion veil cascaded from a bridal crown of sparkling rhinestones, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations with streamers and a purple orchid, placed on a white Bible.

Miss Mary Beth English attended Miss Cornelius as maid of honor, and wore an orchid brocade taffeta gown with a scalloped neckline and full skirt. Her headdress was of matching material with an orchid veil and small pearls. White accessories and a bouquet of white gladioli and orchids completed her attire.

Bridesmaids, whose dresses and accessories were identical to that of the honor attendant, were Miss Sue Bond, of West Monroe, Miss Brenda Mason, West Monroe, Miss Pamela Conner, Monroe, Miss Donna Jo Gauldin, of Perryville, Miss Barbara Hemphill of Sterlington, and Miss Patsy Aaron, sister of the groom, of Sterlington.

Mr. Aaron was attended by Buddy White of Sterlington, as best man, and Harry Stevens, Larry Senn, and Don Jenny, all of Sterlington.

The mother of the bride wore a turquoise ottoman faille gown fashioned with Sabrina neckline, cap sleeves, and a bell skirt. Her accessories were matching, and she wore a white feather hat and a white corsage. Mrs. Aaron chose a bright blue gown with a full skirt, and a matching blue hat, and her accessories and corsage were in white.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Sterlington Baptist Church Dining Room. The tiered wedding cake reposed on a white covered table, on which the centerpiece was formed of the bouquets of the honor attendants. Light purple flowers encircled the punch bowl, at which Miss Carolyn Collinsworth, of Monroe, and Miss Louise Hennen, of Sterlington alternated. Mrs. Morman served cake, and tea girls were Sherry Lynn Bond, of West Monroe, and Martha Ann Reddin and Louise Aaron, of Sterlington. Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Swindle, Mrs. Chandler Gauldin, Mrs. Salley Reddin, and Mrs. Fae English. Baskets of white gladioli were placed at vantage points throughout the reception room. Miss Janice Mason of West Monroe presided over bride's book.

Out-of-town guests were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. F. Collinsworth, of Sibley, and other relatives, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Mason, of Swartz, Mrs. Lex Fair, of Ringgold, and Mrs. Arie Smithey, of Heflin. The groom's grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Lewis, of West Monroe, was also an honored guest.

The bride attended Ouachita Parish High School, and graduated from Sterlington High School in 1962. The groom graduated from Linville High School.

For traveling, the bride chose a green dress with satin brocade shoes and purse, and an orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Aaron will be at home at 111 Stone Street, in Monroe.

Cottons Take To Stormy Weather

Cotton rainwear for the college girl—weather coat designed for and career set makes "singing country" or elegant evening wear "in the rain" easy, reports the National Cotton Council. Versatile cotton fabrics highlighted. The classic trench coat brightens a cloudy day in a cheerful key of colors or splashy prints. Dem-fit coats that flare from a natural waistline and button to hem are lively as a polka in brilliantly colored corduroy and water repellent cotton plaid.

For campus, country wear beige poplin and suedecloth are popular in reversible hooded carcoats that fall non-stop from shoulder to hem. In three-quarter or full length the greatcoat is fashionable when made of oversized quilted poplin when smartly trimmed with braid.

Shades of the old West show up in weather-happy denim frontier jackets, hooded and saddle stitched in white. The Western influence is seen in a full length navy denim ranch-hat that boasts the added attraction of a pocket lining and cuff trimmed.

Fall Dresses Illustrate Shapeliness

"How to be pretty" is the fashion lesson effectively illustrated by fall's new dresses. Soft, feminine and shapely, in a wealth of fabrics and colors, they prove the point of prettiness through a wide variety of becoming, easy-to-wear silhouettes.

Taking shape are dresses with high bustlines, fitted bodices and softly moving hemlines; princess lines; tailored, classic casuals; full-skirted romantic styles; easy little skimmers; deep-waisted dresses with blousy tops; fitted and feminine sheaths.

FEATURE OVERBLOUSE

Directions for shape include, too, the dress with concave front, lightly fitted, and free-flowing back bodice. Skirt interest comes from panels, matchbox seams, gentle flares, tiers, pleats. Gathered fronts and fronts with trouser seams or pleats are notable.

Two-piece and two-piece look dresses feature the overblouse, cropped to show a fitted waistline or skimming on down to the hipline.

Complete look of the dress and jacket, dress and coat costume continues in high favor.

The dress that takes a jacket often takes, also a sumptuous fur collar and cuffs for said jacket. Contrasting bodices, solid or print, appear in many jacket dresses. Fitted and dressmaker jackets look new.

THEY'RE MUFFLED

Indian influence is seen in rajah shapes, sari-printed dresses for evening. Slim columns and dome shapes, long or short, enter after dark. "Muffled up" fashion effect is carried out in evening dresses with matching stoles.

Long sleeves mounted at shoulders and interesting seaming contribute to a lean, pared-down line. Dolman sleeves help to create still another dress silhouette, and the sleeveless look remains very much in the fashion picture, especially for after-five and jacket dresses.

Collars continue to be often noteworthy for their absence, though little- and-notched styles now claim a greater portion of fashion attention. Furred, scarf-tied and bowed are other new necklines.

Complimenting simpler shapes fabrics frequently show surface interest — mohairs and brushed wools, for example. Crisper textures are liked for the casual, tailored styles, while knits, crepes and other supple fabrics develop the easy line. Wide color range includes fall-favored browns, grays.

MRS. RODNEY M. JOHNSON, JR.

Johnson-Hendricks Vows Repeated In Arkansas

The marriage vows of Miss Lillian Annette Hendricks and Rodney M. Johnson, Jr., were heard Saturday evening, September 8, at 7:00 p.m. in The First Baptist Church in Huttig, Arkansas. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hendricks of Huttig, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney M. Johnson, also of Huttig.

Candelabra holding lighted taper illuminated the altar area, where baskets of white gladioli and greenery with wedding bells formed an arch for the double ring ceremony. Rev. Bruce Murphy officiated during the exchange of vows, and pre - nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Kathryn Day, organist, and Mrs. Max Funderburk, soloist. Their selections were "Through the Years," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess style gown which extended into a chapel train of pure silk moonglo trimmed with re - embroidered lace etched in seed pearls with a scalloped neckline and sleeves ending in points at the wrists. MRS. RICHARD GLENN STINGER

Vows Unite Miss Ballard, Mr. Stringer

Against a setting of white gladioli Miss Barbara Cecile Ballard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ballard, of 406 Beasley in Monroe, became the bride of Richard Glenn Stringer, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Stringer, of Metaire. Rev. Vester Headrick performed the double ring ceremony in the Lake Shore Baptist Church in Monroe at 3:00 p.m. on September 9.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Ballard, wore a white silk organza gown lined in white silk with a scoop neckline of appliqued roses. The sleeves ended in points over the wrists, and the waist came to a deep point in back. Appliqued roses highlighted the skirt of the gown, which ended in a chapel train. The headdress was formed of silk and silk organza roses with seed pearls, attached to an illusion veil. The bride's bouquet was composed of stephanotis and a white orchid placed on a white Bible, with streamers tied in lovers knots. Her shoes were of white satin, and at her neck she wore a pendant of pearls.

Mrs. Stanhope, organist, accompanied Miss Jo Ann Hirrod, of Petal, Mississippi, in pre-nuptial selections, which included, "We'll Walk With God," and "The Wedding Prayer."

Miss Linda Stringer, sister of the groom, served as maid of honor, and wore a pale blue silk organza street length dress, with underskirt of blue silk. The bodice was fitted, and a blue crown of flowers with blue veil formed her headdress. Her bouquet was of white carnations with blue and rose streamers. Paul Stewart attended Mr. Stringer as best man, and ushers were Billy Lovell, Wilbur Kinkade, and Bob Gillespy.

Mrs. Ballard chose to wear a rose lace sheath with rose satin cummerbund, and rose feathered hat, and rose accessories. Her corsage was of lavender orchids. Mrs. Stringer was attired in beige organza with beige lace bodice, a beige feathered hat, and beige accessories. Her corsage was of bronze orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church reception room. The table was covered with a blue cloth trimmed with net and satin, and the centerpieces was formed of pink and white mums. Mrs. S. D. Walker served cake, assisted by Mrs. William Lovell, while Miss Gayle Jones and Miss Doris Tilly alternated at the punch bowl. Presiding over the bride's book was Mrs. Paul Stewart.

Guests were presented blue net rice bags by Master Tom James Ballard, III, brother of the bride.

Out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Stringer, of Metairie, parents of the groom, Miss Linda Stringer, of Metairie, F. R. Alderman, grandfather of the bride, of Stringer, Mississippi, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Kinkade of Metairie, Mrs. B. F. MR. AND MRS. JOE ALLEN YOUNG

Carolyn Boyd, Joe A. Young Vows Are Read

Vows uniting Miss Carolyn Jane Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conway Body of 809 Mississippi Street in Monroe, and Joe Allen Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Young, of 713 Lakeshore Drive in Monroe, were solemnized Monday, September 10, in the United Pentacostal Church in West Monroe. Rev. E. W. Caughron performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m.

Baskets of white gladioli and an arch of greenery and white bells formed a background for the nuptials. Mrs. Wayne Fordham accompanied Arlan R. Hattaway, cousin of the bride, in "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer" preceeding the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Boyd, the bride wore a traditional gown in white satin and lace with a fitted bodice and long sleeves which formed points at her wrists. The scalloped neckline was encrusted with tiny seed pearls and the bouffant skirt was overlaid with chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls and she carried a garland bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid and satin streamers.

Miss Martha Jean Thompson, maid of honor, wore a pastel blue brocade mataza crepe in a waltz length with bateau neckline, fitted bodice, three-quarter length sleeves and a bell skirt. Her headdress was a white pill box with attached veil, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations with white streamers.

Deborah Ann Young, sister of the groom, was in attendance as flower girl, and wore a dress identical to the maid of honor, with a white flowered headdress. The bride's brother, Doyle Wayne Boyd, served as best man, and a younger brother, Ricky Lee Boyd, as ring bearer. Ushers were Kenneth Hickey and Lankin Graham.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Boyd chose a pink lace gown with matching accesesories and a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Young wore an aqua silk organza with matching accessories and a white carnation corsage.

RECEPTION

A reception was held in the social room of the church following the ceremony. A white lace cloth over pink graced the table, which was centered with an arrangement of pink and white roses flanked by white tapers. On one end of the table was the wedding cake and on the other end an elegant punch bowl. The cake was served by Mrs. B. O. Thompson, assisted by Mrs. Grace Casby. Serving the punch was Miss Priscilla Paston, assisted by Miss Faye Paston. Presiding over the guest book was Miss Loretta Young.

Out - of - town guests in attendance were Mrs. R. M. Young of Dayton, Texas, Mrs. W. B. Bracewell, of Madisonville, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bracewell, and Mr. James A. Bracewell, also of Madisonville.

The bride, attired in an off white fall suit with mink trim, mink hat, off white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet for her wedding trip, is graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, and attended Northeast State College. Mr. Young also graduated from Ouachita Parish High School, and attended Northeast where he was a member of the Pershing Rifles.

Upon returning from their trip the couple will be at home in Opelousas, where Mr. Young is associated with a contracting firm.

Four Big Looks Emerge In Fall Fashion Picture

Four big looks emerge for the fall and winter fashion picture: The Natural (free form, waist-skipping dresses) . . . The Spare (tailored jackets, coats, shift dresses) . . . The Mata Hari (muffled necklines, luxurious fur borders) . . . The Casual (easy-fitting pullovers, two - piece over-blouses, pea jackets over dresses).

In summarizing fashion trends for the coming fall and winter season, the fashion editors of Women's War Daily note that the dress silhouette is taking off in new directions — widened shoulders, bloused bodices, voluminous sleeves, soft bias skirts (usually done in crepe).

Rajah princess shaped coats, jackets, dresses for both day and evening add near - eastern brand of shaping to the fall fashion mold. Coats under this heading are gently shaped all around and develop a light flare at the hemline. Cardigan or mandarin neckline, a giant jewel closing and carefully widened three-quarter sleeves are details to note.

1962 will be one of the biggest seasons for fur (Persian and leopard newest), used for borders, collars, inside linings. Coat costumes are newer than dress-jacket costumes, many of these bulky, man - tailored coats worn over two - piece overblouse dresses.

Floor - length evening dresses take over for fall. It will be a big year for wonderful fabrics (Matelasses, brocades, brocatelles) in very feminine, clingy dresses, with wools and crepes two of the newest fabrics for evening. Opera coats in satins and brocades, often fur lined or collared, also are new.

MRS. RICHARD GLENN STINGER

Vows Unite Miss Ballard, Mr. Stringer

Against a setting of white gladioli Miss Barbara Cecile Ballard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ballard, of 406 Beasley in Monroe, became the bride of Richard Glenn Stringer, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Stringer, of Metaire. Rev. Vester Headrick performed the double ring ceremony in the Lake Shore Baptist Church in Monroe at 3:00 p.m. on September 9.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Ballard, wore a white silk organza gown lined in white silk with a scoop neckline of appliqued roses. The sleeves ended in points over the wrists, and the waist came to a deep point in back. Appliqued roses highlighted the skirt of the gown, which ended in a chapel train. The headdress was formed of silk and silk organza roses with seed pearls, attached to an illusion veil. The bride's bouquet was composed of stephanotis and a white orchid placed on a white Bible, with streamers tied in lovers knots. Her shoes were of white satin, and at her neck she wore a pendant of pearls.

Mrs. Stanhope, organist, accompanied Miss Jo Ann Hirrod, of Petal, Mississippi, in pre-nuptial selections, which included, "We'll Walk With God," and "The Wedding Prayer."

Miss Linda Stringer, sister of the groom, served as maid of honor, and wore a pale blue silk organza street length dress, with underskirt of blue silk. The bodice was fitted, and a blue crown of flowers with blue veil formed her headdress. Her bouquet was of white carnations with blue and rose streamers. Paul Stewart attended Mr. Stringer as best man, and ushers were Billy Lovell, Wilbur Kinkade, and Bob Gillespy.

Mrs. Ballard chose to wear a rose lace sheath with rose satin cummerbund, and rose feathered hat, and rose accessories. Her corsage was of lavender orchids. Mrs. Stringer was attired in beige organza with beige lace bodice, a beige feathered hat, and beige accessories. Her corsage was of bronze orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church reception room. The table was covered with a blue cloth trimmed with net and satin, and the centerpieces was formed of pink and white mums. Mrs. S. D. Walker served cake, assisted by Mrs. William Lovell, while Miss Gayle Jones and Miss Doris Tilly alternated at the punch bowl. Presiding over the bride's book was Mrs. Paul Stewart.

Guests were presented blue net rice bags by Master Tom James Ballard, III, brother of the bride.

Out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Stringer, of Metairie, parents of the groom, Miss Linda Stringer, of Metairie, F. R. Alderman, grandfather of the bride, of Stringer, Mississippi, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Kinkade of Metairie, Mrs. B. F. Tanner, John Tanner, and Mr. and Mrs. William Lovell of Jackson, Mississippi, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stewart, of Starksville, Mississippi, Mrs. Tom Stewart, of Metairie, Miss Jo Ann Herrod, Miss Doris Tilly, and Bob Gillespy, of New Orleans, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Hudson and sons, Bobby and Carl Terry, of Vicksburg, Mississippi.

The bride, a graduate of East Jefferson High School in Metairie, where she was a member of Delta Beta Sigma Social Sorority, also attended Mather School Of Nursing at Southern Baptist Hospital in New Orleans. Mr. Stringer graduate from East Jefferson High School in Metairie, and has attended L. S. U., Southeastern in Hammond, and will enter Northeastern in Monroe this fall.

Upon departing for a wedding trip to Vicksburg, Mississippi, Mrs. Stringer was wearing a toasted colored silk suit with a beige flowered blouse, lizard and beige patent shoes, and a beige veil hat and gloves. The couple will be at home in Monroe.

Casualness, Ease Mark Sportswear

Sportswear this year, says Women's Wear Daily, has a look best described as "pure" sportswear, freely combining beautifully made separates, plain sweaters, with that casualness and ease that is thought of the world over as "American."

The peg for the look is a turtle-necked jersey, borrowed from skiers who wear this cotton knit style under sweaters, parkas, shirts. Variations on this theme have invaded the sweater market. All look especially good under the perennial ubiquitous "riding" jacket.

Riding clothes, in general, have made the biggest impression on fashion thinking. From hacking jacket to hunt coat to high boots and to frontier pants, from English style to Western dude ranch, the mark on fall sportswear is undeniable. Stock shorts, ratcatchers, ascot, and scarf ties fill out a classic picture.

Skirts, often with matchbox detailing, are receiving more attention than they have in years. Women's Wear Daily's fashion editors find that graded pleats, side flares, all are important, along with a revival of that old favorite, the accordian pleated skirt. But most significant of all in an ultra - tailored season is the return of the dirndl. Full shaped and worn with a fitted top, and sometimes a wide belt, it heralds a return to prettiness.

Hipsters continue into fall in both pants and skirts. Stretch woolens look important for hip - hung pants, often utilizing horizontal stretch for comfort. With these long back - in shirts and sweaters. The hip - slung skirt look, strong for fall often in flannel with colorful, detachable suspenders which also can be worn on pants.

New Members Introduced By D.A.R. At Fall Meeting

Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its first meeting for the new year Saturday, September 15, at the Highland Park Country Club. Mrs. Herman M. McGuire, regent, presided, introduced guests, and welcomed Miss Lenee Lacey and Mrs. Ed Walker Stinson as new members.

The State and chapter year books, carrying the National Program theme, "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which Is Good", were distributed by the treasurer, Mrs. Kate McGuire.

Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Helen Le Fevre, history teacher from West Monroe High School, who chose the topic "We The People"—A Study of our Constitution today, in observance of Constitution Week, September 17 - 23. She pointed out, as individuals we should preserve all the things our Constitution stands for. The people and only the people alone have a right to change the Constitution.

Mrs. J. E. Dupuy, Jr., national defense chairman for Constitution Week and Mrs. James L. McGuire, co-chairman gave an outline of the chapter's activities during the observance. Mrs. Louise I. Craig, read the President General's message and urged members to participate in the observance during the week.

Announcement was made that the Third District meeting of the D. A. R. will be held on Thursday, September 27 in Bastrop, with the meeting at the Louisiana Hotel. Registration start at 9:30 a.m. with General William Carroll Chapter of Oak Grove serving as hostess chapter. Reservations must be made by Tuesday, September 25. Mrs. McGuire informed the chapter that at least 20 percent of the chapter's officers and chairmen must attend in order for the chapter to meet the state honor roll requirements.

The historian, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds asked for signatures of First Ladies, in order to complete the national project the original signature of Margaret Taylor is needed.

Mrs. J. Metris Bell, chairman of the Arsenal committee pointed out that since the Arsenal has been restored, it is in need of old relics to be placed in the Museum. It is in need of a Civil War belt buckle, and anyone knowing the whereabouts of one were asked to please contact Mrs. Bell.

The regent's table held an old fashioned arrangement of bachelor buttons and old maids in an heirloom Haviland water pitcher.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the members were invited into the private dining room of the club for a salad course. Each table was centered with old fashioned arrangements of bachelor buttons, golden glow, and old maids, arranged in antique containers. Bookmarks with the Preamble of the Constitution of the United States of America were given as favors in observance of Constitution Week.

Miss Katherine Averett served as chairman hostess, and cohostesses were Mrs. Warren McGee, Miss Mary Louise Ellis, Mrs. Francis Ortis, Mrs. J. E. Dupuy, Jr., and Mrs. E. G. Davidson. Guests included Mrs. Helen LeFevre, Mrs. Fred Riser, Mrs. J. E. Dupuy, Sr., and Miss Lucille McLeod.

Members present were: Mrs. Archie L. Dickerson, Mrs. Roy E. Lee, Mrs. Herman M. McGuire, Mrs. Kate Stewart, Mrs. Edward Koserog, Mrs. Louis I. Craig, Miss Lenee Lacey, Mrs. Ruth Hundley, Mrs. J. Frank Jones, Mrs. J. Otto Miller, Mrs. J. Metris Bell, Mrs. H. Clifton Mize, Mrs. Lester Corley, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, Mrs. Carter Cozine, Mrs. Joseph B. Landreaux, Mrs. Jesse L. Norris, Miss Katie McGee, Mrs. Fred Brownlee, Mrs. C. G. Wall, Jr., and Mrs. James L. McGuire.

Sorority Hears Guest Speaker

Feminine Shoe Fashions Focus On New Texture

Feminine footwear fashions focus on luxurious new leather textures to enhance deep autumn colors and sleek shoe shapes. Shoes remain slim in silhouette, tough somewhat shortened at the front end, and lighter in appearance and weight, reports Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America.

Popular styles — boots, pumps and strap shoes— depend on interesting finishes of smooth, suede, patent and reptile leather for fashion emphasis. In tailored shoes, soft suede and finely grained leather step out strongly. Reptile and patent are used in combination and as trim on tailored pumps and walking ties. Brushed leather and large grains are style leaders for flats and casuals.

Boots, which for several years have been growing in popularity, are easily the season's most interesting footwear fashion news. They run the gamut from high fashion boots, in sleekly smooth, soft suede, gleaming patent and handsome reptile leathers, to casual country boots.

Ankle - skimming boot shoes, mid - calf and knee - high boots stand on thin shaped heels from mid to very tall heights. In casual boots, heels tend to be low and stacked.

Lower boots are lined in light, smooth leathers, while the higher-reaching boots may have smooth leather or wool shearling linings.

In pumps and strap shoes, fashion news is made by a shallower, "less shoe" look. Open, lighter look also continues into fall, provided by low vamp straps, low curving side lines, side scallops and an occasional closed - toe sling back.

Casualness, Ease Mark Sportswear

Sportswear this year, says Women's Wear Daily, has a look best described as "pure" sportswear, freely combining beautifully made separates, plain sweaters, with that casualness and ease that is thought of the world over as "American."

The peg for the look is a turtle - necked jersey, borrowed from skiers who wear this cotton knit style under sweaters, parkas, shirts. Variations on this theme have invaded the sweater market. All look especially good under the perennial ubiquitous "riding" jacket.

Riding clothes, in general, have made the biggest impression on fashion thinking. From hacking jacket to hunt coat to high boots and to frontier pants, from English style to Western dude ranch, the mark on fall sportswear is undeniable. Stock shorts, ratcatchers, ascot, and scarf ties fill out a classic picture.

Skirts, often with matchbox detailing, are receiving more attention than they have in years. Women's Wear Daily's fashion editors find that graded pleats, side flares, all are important, along with a revival of that old favorite, the accordian pleated skirt. But most significant of all in an ultra - tailored season is the return of the dirndl. Full shaped and worn with a fitted top, and sometimes a wide belt, it heralds a return to prettiness.

Hipsters continue into fall in both pants and skirts. Stretch woolens look important for hip-slung pants, often utilizing horizontal stretch for comfort. With these: long tuck - in shirts and sweaters. The hip - slung skirt looks strong for fall often in flannel with colorful, detachable suspenders which also can be worn on pants.

FORTHCOMING MARRIAGE of Miss Peggy Bayles, daughter of Mrs. Gertie Bayles, Farmerville and the late Jeff Bayles to Charles Jennings, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jennings of Farmerville, is announced by her mother. The wedding will take place October 5 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beasley Kennedy.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cross of Natchez, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Lorraine to Nathan D. Calhoun Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Calhoun, also of Natchez. Both are graduates of Natchez high school and are presently employed in that city.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Miss Glenda Ruth Nugent and Wilfred Paul Duplessis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Paul Duplessis of Gonzales, is made known today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen L. Nugent, of Dry Prong. The wedding will be an event of October 6, and will be solemnized at 11:00 in the morning in the St. Anthony Catholic Church in Darrow.

New Members Introduced By D.A.R. At Fall Meeting

Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its first meeting for the new year Saturday, September 15, at the Highland Park Country Club. Mrs. Herman M. McGuire, regent, presided, introduced guests, and welcomed Miss Lenee Lacey and Mrs. Ed Walker Stinson as new members.

The State and chapter year books, carrying the National Program theme, "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which Is Good", were distributed by the treasurer, Mrs. Kate McGuire.

Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Helen Le Fevre, history teacher from West Monroe High School, who chose the topic "We The People"—A Study of our Constitution today, in observance of Constitution Week, September 17 - 23. She pointed out, as individuals we should preserve all the things our Constitution stands for. The people and only the people alone have a right to change the Constitution.

Mrs. J. E. Dupuy, Jr., national defense chairman for Constitution Week and Mrs. James L. McGuire, co-chairman gave an outline of the chapter's activities during the observance. Mrs. Louise I. Craig, read the President General's message and urged members to participate in the observance during the week.

Announcement was made that the Third District meeting of the D. A. R. will be held on Thursday, September 27 in Bastrop, with the meeting at the Louisiana Hotel. Registration start at 9:30 a.m. with General William Carroll Chapter of Oak Grove serving as hostess chapter. Reservations must be made by Tuesday, September 25. Mrs. McGuire informed the chapter that at least 20 percent of the chapter's officers and chairmen must attend in order for the chapter to meet the state honor roll requirements.

The historian, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds asked for signatures of First Ladies, in order to complete the national project the original signature of Margaret Taylor is needed.

Mrs. J. Metris Bell, chairman of the Arsenal committee pointed out that since the Arsenal has been restored, it is in need of old relics to be placed in the Museum. It is in need of a Civil War belt buckle, and anyone knowing the whereabouts of one were asked to please contact Mrs. Bell.

The regent's table held an old fashioned arrangement of bachelor buttons and old maids in an heirloom Haviland water pitcher.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the members were invited into the private dining room of the club for a salad course. Each table was centered with old fashioned arrangements of bachelor buttons, golden glow, and old maids, arranged in antique containers. Bookmarks with the Preamble of the Constitution of the United States of America were given as favors in observance of Constitution Week.

Miss Katherine Averett served as chairman hostess, and cohostesses were Mrs. Warren McGee, Miss Mary Louise Ellis, Mrs. Francis Ortis, Mrs. J. E. Dupuy, Jr., and Mrs. E. G. Davidson. Guests included Mrs. Helen LeFevre, Mrs. Fred Riser, Mrs. J. E. Dupuy, Sr., and Miss Lucille McLeod.

Members present were: Mrs. Archie L. Dickerson, Mrs. Roy E. Lee, Mrs. Herman M. McGuire, Mrs. Kate Stewart, Mrs. Edward Koserog, Mrs. Louis I. Craig, Miss Lenee Lacey, Mrs. Ruth Hundley, Mrs. J. Frank Jones, Mrs. J. Otto Miller, Mrs. J. Mettris Bell, Mrs. H. Clifton Mize, Mrs. Lester Corley, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, Mrs. Carter Cozine, Mrs. Joseph B. Landreaux, Mrs. Jesse L. Norris, Miss Katie McGee, Mrs. Fred Brownlee, Mrs. C. G. Wall, Jr., and Mrs. James L. McGuire.

Feminine Shoe Fashions Focus On New Texture

Feminine footwear fashions focus on luxurious new leather textures to enhance deep autumn colors and sleek shoe shapes. Shoes remain slim in silhouette, tough somewhat shortened at the front end, and lighter in appearance and weight, reports Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America.

Popular styles — boots, pumps and strap shoes— depend on interesting finishes of smooth, suede, patent and reptile leather for fashion emphasis. In tailored shoes, soft suede and finely grained leather step out strongly. Reptile and patent are used in combination and as trim on tailored pumps and walking ties. Brushed leather and large grains are style leaders for flats and casuals.

Boots, which for several years have been growing in popularity, are easily the season's most interesting footwear fashion news. They run the gamut from high fashion boots, in sleekly smooth, soft suede, gleaming patent and handsome reptile leathers, to casual country boots.

Ankle - skimming boot shoes, mid - calf and knee - high boots stand on thin shaped heels from mid to very tall heights. In casual boots, heels tend to be low and stacked.

Lower boots are lined in light, smooth leathers, while the higher-reaching boots may have smooth leather or wool shearling linings.

In pumps and strap shoes, fashion news is made by a shallower, "less shoe" look. Open, lighter look also continues into fall, provided by low vamp straps, low curving side lines, side scallops and an occasional closed - toe sling back.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Neal of Ferriday, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jerelene, to Johnny Leonard Gautheir, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Gauthier of Hessmer, Louisiana.

Attending the September 10th lecture at the Virginia Hotel were Mrs. Mignon Bynum, Mrs. F. L. Elmendorf, Miss Martha Garrison, Miss Lois Harris, Mrs. Marie Dell Horuff, Miss Berneice McCrary, Mrs. R. W. McPherson, Miss Jane Miller, Miss Drucilla Motley, Miss Barbara Rhone, Miss Inez Roberson, Mrs. Lucille Seay, and Mrs. Marguerite Malone.

MRS. JOHN EDWIN MCNEIL, JR.

Miss Williams, Mr. McNeil United In Friday Rites

The United Penecostal Church in West Monroe was the scene of a double ring ceremony, Friday, September 21, at 7:30 p.m. which united in marriage Miss Charlene Gay Williams and John Edwin McNeil, Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred N. Williams of 402 Slack Street in West Monroe, and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McNeil of 1618 North 6th Street, also in West Monroe.

Vows were exchanged before a background of yellow and mint green Fuji chrysanthemums in floor baskets highlighted by myriads of burning tapers. Rev. J. W. McClung, assisted by Rev. E. W. Caughron, performed the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Ruby McClung, organist, and Mrs. Bonnie Fordam, pianist, presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Sonny Franks, who sang, "Always," and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Williams, and wore a gown of chantilly lace over white satin with a scalloped neckline. The sleeves formed points over the wrists, and the full skirt, trimmed with ruffles of tulle and lace, cascaded from the waist into a chapel length train. A queen's crown of lace and seed pearls held in place her fingertip veil of French illusion, and she carried a shower arrangement of stephanotis centered with a white orchid with a red throat.

WEDDING PARTY

Miss Margaret McClung, of West Monroe, served as the maid of honor, and was wearing a yellow brocade gown with full skirt and a fitted bodice which featured a round neckline and puffed sleeves. She wore short white gloves, white accessories, with a matching bandeau from which net formed a circular veil. Her bouquet was a mint green Fuji chrysanthemum. Mrs. Jerline White of Monroe served as matron of honor, and wore a mint green brocade taffeta gown with full skirt and fitted bodice with a round neckline and puffed sleeves. Her bouquet was a yellow Fuji chrysanthemum, and her bandeau was similar to the maid of honor's.

Miss Lenora Gotwin and Miss Amaryllis Silman, both of West Monroe, and Miss Fredna McNeil and Miss DeNease White, of Monroe, were bridesmaids, and wore gowns similar to the maid and matron of honor, with bouquets of yellow and mint green chrysanthemums. Miss Sue Crawley of Monroe, junior bridesmaid, was gowned identically, and her bouquet was a green Fuji chrysanthemum.

Travis McNeil of Monroe, attended his brother as best man, and ushers were David Walker, Denny Crawley, John Shaw, Stanley Chapman, and Weldon McClung. Danny Gene Silman, of West Monroe, the ring bearer, carried a white satin pillow on which the two rings reposed.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Williams was gowned in pink lace with white accessories, and wore a corsage of white chrysanthemums. Mrs. McNeil chose to wear a brown crepe dress with black accessories, and a corsage of white. Following the ceremony they received guests in the Olin Kraft Banquet Cafeteria, where a reception table, covreed with a yellow and mint green cloth overlaid with a white crocheted cloth, was a focal point. Centering the table was a traditional arrangement of yellow, green, and white Fuji chrysanthemums. A crystal punch bowl was placed at one end of the table with a tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Vineyard served punch, and Mrs. A. G. Martin served the wedding cake.

The guest book was placed on a table overlaid with a brocade cloth in yellow, and centered with chrysanthemums. Flanking the book were lighted tapers with wedding bells attached. Miss Marlene Smith presided over the guest book, and serving as tea girls were Miss Connie Cronk and Miss Kathy Rockow.

The bride graduated from West Monroe High School, and attended Business College. Mr. McNeil is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, and is affiliated with a Dental Laboratory in Monroe.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Guy Martin, of Columbus Georgia, Miss Elloise Aldy, of Jonesboro, Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Strittman and family, of Alto, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Spencer and family, of Clay.

For the wedding trip to Pensacola, Florida, the bride was wearing a suit with straight jacket, blue accessories, and a white orchid corsage. Upon returning they will reside in West Monroe.

DETERGENTS

Here's just one more indication of how important so-called detergents have become in recent years. The members of the Association of American Soap & Glycerine Producers, Inc. recently voted to change its name to The Soap and Detergent Association.

This sounds like pretty conclusive proof that detergents, as well as soaps, are here to stay — and that nobody can get along without both types of products when it comes to keeping people, clothing, homes, and surroundings clean.

COMMON STY

When plagued by a common sty, avoid touching or rubbing the eyes. A noted physician advises washing hands often with soap and water because the germs which cause this eye infection spread rapidly.

SOUR CREAM

Many delicious recipes call for sour milk or sour cream. You can make them from evaporated milk, according to home economists. For sour milk, use ½ cup evaporated milk, ½ cup water and add a tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar. For sour cream, use undiluted evaporated milk as it pours from the can. Add a tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar and stir well.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Variety Seen In Displays

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Having Dr. John Wright, from Louisiana Tech, back with us was a genuine pleasure this past week. His program was a very unusual one that I know you all enjoyed.

He used a variety of wicker baskets, all types, for his fall arrangements. Some were round, some square, some deep ones, and, a small hanging basket was placed on the table instead of hanging.

The materials used were garden flowers and foliage from the gardens in Ruston. The colors told us that Fall is here. A tinge of Autumn was inserted into each lovely arrangement — five in all. Some of these flowers were celosia, all types and colors. The tans and yellows were used with golden privet, the copper and orange tones of the chenille plant, and, castor bean foliage. Magnolia seed pods, just turning rosy - pink, were used very affectively in one of the large low basket containers with an abundance of materials. The white bachelor button was used as a filler. Most of the materials used could be saved and dried for further use.

QUOTES

Dr. John Wright will tell us about chrysanthemums and illustrate their use in arranging on his next program Oct. 17. The following "Quotes on Chrysanthemums Development," was written by Dr. Wright who quotes from the 1962 Chrysanthemum Manual published by Gloeckner's of New York City.

AS WE SEE IT

"During the past 20 years chrysanthemums culture has changed from rule - of - thumb growing to scientifically controlled production. In the process, one organization stands out because of the many innovations they have explored, pioneered and made available for practical use by commercial growers. We refer, of course, to our source of chrysanthemum cuttings.

"No other commercial establishment has equalled their breeding and research efforts, the results of which are used daily by growers around the world. Furthermore, in addition to their own comprehensive research program they have encouraged additional research at state and federal experiment stations, generously providing materials and knowledge for these projects. But what of the future?

"Our answer is that we do not believe that all the scientific innovations in chrysanthemum growing have been uncovered; probably only a start has been made. At the time it is apparent that in their continuous effort to solve problems of production and establish a dependable uniformity of product they have done something else. They have accumulated a fund of knowledge and ability within their organization which is probably unequalled in the horticultural field.

POTENTIAL DEPTH

"We like to refer to this fund as "Depth of Potential," and this is a major reason for our firm belief and confidence in this source of cuttings.

"Right now this "Depth of Potential" is expressed in things that we have come to take for granted, such as: (1) cuttings from disease - free, cultured mother blocks; (2) continuous clonal examination and reselection to insure truness to name and maximum production; (3) breeding and testing programs to expand the variety picture and accumulate specific cultural information; (4) formulation of policies to encourage growers and breeders along lines that will insure future development of new varieties; (5) continuous maintenance of a salable inventory of all commercially worthwhile varieties; (6) testing and establishment of cultural practices for year - round flowering.

CONFIDENCE

"Through the years our mutual confidence in this program has enabled us to take a leading role in the advancement of chrysanthemum culture. It is a matter of record that we have pioneered in our sector of the field, carrying the message through servicing growers and dissemination ideas as well as information. We look forward to future advances and accomplishments."

For your use we have two copies of Gloeckner's Chrysanthemum Manual 1962, given to the Garden Center by Dr. Wright. These are invaluable as a reference information on chrysanthemums.

This week our next program will be brought to us by Mrs. Ben Coulter, from Winnsboro. We'll be looking forward to this program. Mrs. Coulter has served as state president of Louisiana Federated Garden Clubs at one time; also, she is noted for her ability to arrange flowers. So, be watching.

Don't forget — Flower Show School No. 3 - Sept. 27, 28, 29 at Ruston, upstairs in the Student Center at Louisiana Tech. Come early, register at 8 a.m. Thursday. The fee for the whole school is $7. One day is $2.50. Course without the examination is $5. Horticulture will be taught by Dr. James Foret. Flower Arranging and flower show practice will be taught by Mrs. Robert Ehrhardt.

Green Stem, Pink Fruit

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The most beautiful little shrub in our woods at this time of the year is a delicate euonymous called "strawberry bush" in the books. From green stems hang the "shocking pink" fruits, and out of the five sections of the fruits hang five orange seeds: a daring combination, indeed.

An old herb woman from the mountains once told me the most apt name for this favorite shrub of mine. She said it was "My-hearts-a-bustin'-with - love." It surely is one of the loveliest of all euonymouses. You will find it in the books as Euonymous Americanus. Away from home in England, it refuses to bear many fruits, probably because it misses our hot weather in summer. Though it was taken to England about 1683, European gardeners will have to come to America to see it in fruit.

INCREASES

This small shrub grows in patches in the woods and increases from under ground runners. It will not damage a patch of it if you dig a plant out and take it home with you. We have mentioned before how splendid a thing it is in fruit at the time the red spider lilies are in bloom. Woodsy places in part shade suit both of them.

Although the great hedges of Japanese euonymous were killed years ago by San Jose scale, gardeners who are accustomed to spraying roses or any of their shrubbery can keep this species scale-free with an occasional spraying. Japanese euonymous is a magnificent thing when in fruit in the Autumn. Not many gardeners of today have ever seen one in fruit.

The smaller and lower growing Euonymous Patens is beautiful in the fall with bounteous crops of pink and orange fruits. The foliage is not too hardy in low temperatures, however. When the thermometer drops much below 25 degrees the leaves turn brown and hang on for the rest of the winter.

GROUND COVER

Creeping euonymous makes a beautfiul ground cover. It is less subject to scale than the bush types, but is has to be watched and sprayed if scale does get into it.

There are many, many varieties of this species (E. radicans). They vary greatly in their winter color, too. One of the most brilliant in winter is the variety "coloratus" or so listed in American catalogues. In winter, this plant makes a brilliant purple ground cover that exceedingly handsome at the feet of confers of any kind.

Musical Based On Yiddish Folk Tales, In Works

NEW YORK (AP) — A musical based on the Yiddish folk tales of Sholom Aleichem is in the works for Broadway.

Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, the composer - lyricist team that wrote "Fiorello!," has tackled an adaptation tentatively entitled "Tevye."

A group of Aleichems short stories were used for an off-Broadway dramatic hit, "The World of Cholom Aleichem" in 1953. The material to be used this time, say Bock and Harnick, is entirely different.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

"I'm hoping this suggestion will be helpful as well as economical to many who love slim - jims as I do. This idea will save buying anywhere from ½ to ¾ yards more material when using the wider width materials or those with a nap.

"Cut gussets in the crotch of the pants. When using velvets, plaids, etc, be sure to match the plaids and cut the gusset with the same nap, and ALLOW FOR SEAMS ON BOTH THE GUSSETS AND THE PANTS." Mrs. James E. Boggs, Tulsa, Oklahoma has been awarded a Tailor Trix pressing board for this winning suggestion of the week.

CUT PATTERN

"Dear Eunice:

"I was attracted to a beautiful simple dress that was made on a diagonal cut, using two colors. A third color was used in the form of a bias band covering the seam of the dress where the two colors joined. I have searched the pattern books and can't find a pattern like this. Would this be too difficult for me to try to do and would you please help me with any cutting instructions?"

Mrs. C. G. W.

Dear Mrs. C. G. W.:

I would begin with a perfectly plain basic type pattern which can be found in all pattern books. First, lay the pattern on a large folded piece of newspaper as you would with your fabric, and cut a new paper pattern which will be the full width of your dress instead of just half the width.

Using your yardstick, carefully mark a line where you wish the diagonal line to appear. If you want a diagonal line in the back, be sure the seams will end at the same point of your skirt. Mark your paper pattern with the words RIGHT SIDE, so you will know that the pattern and the fabric must both be cut on the "right side." Your fabric will NOT be cut double.

Cut your new paper pattern on the diagonal line and place it on your fabric, leaving a seam allowance on EACH of the diagonal sections.

The third color, if desired, is achieved by making a bias tubing and pressing it flat, then hand - tacking it to your dress just over the seamline. Grosgrain ribbon could be used instead of a bias tubing.

This can certainly be a novel and unusual dress and will draw gobs of attention to your sewing. Somehow or other most people would never imagine you had made a garment yourself if you vary from the pattern and add your own little creative ideas because they don't think we are smart enough for that, but that's the fun of sewing.

Please help me so I won't botch them up."

Mrs. J. A. B.

Dear Mrs. J. A. B.:

Probably the best way to shorten these skirts would be to eliminate the pleats altogether and make a slit opening the width of the hem. In order to shorten a skirt from the top, you would have to replace the Zipper, waistband, and re - cut the skirt to fit the side seams. In other words, you would be re-making the skirt the hard way.

Fall Time To Plant

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you want hollyhock, delphinum, shasta daisy, candytuft, canterbury bell, fox glove and oriental poppy in your landscape, be sure to plant them this month or in October.

You, Mrs. Gardener, will find they will fare much better planted in the fall rather than in the spring.

Some of the annuals that can be planted this month include: larkspur, phlox, cornflower and Texas bluebonnet.

Neil Odenwald, our assistant horticulturist specialist, is back from a year's duty with our armed forces and we are delighted to have him give us the following information on screening for privacy in the landscape. He says that screening can give a third dimension to your landscape.

You, Mrs. Homemaker, have so many interesting materials to choose from. It may be block, stone, brick, wood, plastic or living plants. These materials may be used to screen small intimate areas or large yards.

Before determining the material to use, analyze the needs of the family. How much space is needed for the outdoor activities of the family and invited guests? Which views are pleasant and which are objectionable? Only use screening material in those areas where it is necessary. Neil suggests using a combination of living and non-living materials for screenng.

FAIR

It's "fair time" again. Remember you, Mrs. Homemaker, can help make our Ouachita Valley Fair a bigger and better event by entering your prize cake, pie, preserves, clothing or pot plant. If you are planning to enter something at the fair October 8-13, be sure to come by the Agricultural Building to get your premium list of all the different articles that may be entered. Our office hours are 8 A.M.-4:30 P.M. at 704 Cypress, W. Monroe. We are sorry, but they cannot be mailed to you.

FALL ACCESSORIES

Scarves are very good this fall. Everything from a small neat ascot to a big triangular shawl.

Hats are tall, rolled brims in varying widths or close fitting. Berets will be most popular.

The era of matching hat, bag, shoes, etc., is gone.

Jewelry will be less elaborate. This will be a year of bead and pin effect. More pins in a variety of shapes, longer chanel type beads and necklaces, some will be shown hanging down the back. Earrings are less important in the fashion scene this fall.

FOR BRIDES

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has something special for brides. It is a packet of USDA publications that will help new homemakers in buying, preparing, and protecting foods, and in the care of fabrics.

Contained in an attractive folder entitled, "Packet for the Bride," the assortment of publications ranges from recipe booklets and tips on how to buy foods by USDA grades to hints on home laundering. Single copies of "Packet" will be sent free to brides who request it from the office of information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

COUNCIL MEETING

Remember the Home Demonstration Council meeting Friday, September 28 at 10 A.M. at the Agricultural Building in West Monroe. Miss Rupert Perry, Extension state agent (home economics), will be our guest speaker. Your president, Mrs. L. J. Bower has some important plans for your consideration, so come and help make your council a stronger organization.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Variety Seen In Displays

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Having Dr. John Wright, from Louisiana Tech, back with us was a genuine pleasure this past week. His program was a very unusual one that I know you all enjoyed.

He used a variety of wicker baskets, all types, for his fall arrangements. Some were round, some square, some deep ones, and, a small hanging basket was placed on the table instead of hanging.

The materials used were garden flowers and foliage from the gardens in Ruston. The colors told us that Fall is here. A tinge of Autumn was inserted into each lovely arrangement — five in all. Some of these flowers were celosia, all types and colors. The tans and yellows were used with golden privet, the copper and orange tones of the chenille plant, and, castor bean foliage. Magnolia seed pods, just turning rosy - pink, were used very affectively in one of the large low basket containers with an abundance of materials. The white bachelor button was used as a filler. Most of the materials used could be saved and dried for further use.

QUOTES

Dr. John Wright will tell us about chrysanthemums and illustrate their use in arranging on his next program Oct. 17. The following "Quotes on Chrysanthemums Development," was written by Dr. Wright who quotes from the 1962 Chrysanthemum Manual published by Gloeckner's of New York City.

AS WE SEE IT

"During the past 20 years chrysanthemums culture has changed from rule - of - thumb growing to scientifically controlled production. In the process, one organization stands out because of the many innovations they have explored, pioneered and made available for practical use by commercial growers. We refer, of course, to our source of chrysanthemum cuttings.

"No other commercial establishment has equalled their breeding and research efforts, the results of which are used daily by growers around the world. Furthermore, in addition to their own comprehensive research program they have encouraged additional research at state and federal experiment stations, generously providing materials and knowledge for these projects. But what of the future?

"Our answer is that we do not believe that all the scientific innovations in chrysanthemum growing have been uncovered; probably only a start has been made. At the time it is apparent that in their continuous effort to solve problems of production and establish a dependable uniformity of product they have done something else. They have accumulated a fund of knowledge and ability within their organization which is probably unequalled in the horticultural field.

POTENTIAL DEPTH

"We like to refer to this fund as "Depth of Potential," and this is a major reason for our firm belief and confidence in this source of cuttings.

"Right now this "Depth of Potential" is expressed in things that we have come to take for granted, such as: (1) cuttings from disease - free, cultured mother blocks; (2) continous clonal examination and reselection to insure truness to name and maximum production; (3) breeding and testing programs to expand the variety picture and accumulate specific cultural information; (4) formulation of policies to encourage growers and breeders along lines that will insure future development of new varieties; (5) continuous maintenance of a salable inventory of all commercially worthwhile varieties; (6) testing and establishment of cultural practices for year - round flowering.

CONFIDENCE

"Through the years our mutual confidence in this program has enabled us to take a leading role in the advancement of chrysanthemum culture. It is a matter of record that we have pioneered in our sector of the field, carrying the message through servicing growers and dissemination ideas as well as information. We look forward to future advances and accomplishments."

For your use we have two copies of Gloeckner's Chrysanthemum Manual 1962, given to the Garden Center by Dr. Wright. These are invaluable as a reference information on chrysanthemums.

This week our next program will be brought to us by Mrs. Ben Coulter, from Winnsboro. We'll be looking forward to this program. Mrs. Coulter has served as state president of Louisiana Federated Garden Clubs at one time; also, she is noted for her ability to arrange flowers. So, be watching.

CARPET FACTS

Only a small percentage of the customers that are choosing a new carpet visit just one store before they buy. Usually they visit several. It may be price, it may be quality, it may be selection or even service. We at Clayton Gibson Carpet House can offer it all, price, quality, selection and service. To bear out this statement, only a few customers fail to return to select their carpet from us. All we ask is for you to visit us one time and compare Price for Price, Quality for Quality, Selection for Selection, and Service for Service with the Carpet retailer you presently patronize.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Ever get discouraged with photography? Does it seem, at times, to require too much effort?

Then think of Irwin and Lorraine Herzberg and some of their fellow camera club members and perhaps you'll gain renewed inspiration.

Irwin Herzberg, 28, is a paraplegic who has been a camera fan for 15 years. He shoots his pictures while lying on his stomach on his rolling stretcher. His bride of six months, Lorraine, a victim of muscular dystrophy, shoots from her wheelchair. They develop their own negatives and make their own enlargements.

Each has had 18 years of hospital life to look back on and the knowledge that they are there to stay. But they face the future calmly, thankful that photography, which helped bring them together, is an absorbing hobby which will fill many otherwise empty hours.

I first met them several years ago in the recreation room of Goldwater Memorial Hospital on New York City's Welfare Island. They, and about a dozen other disabled fans, were attending a meeting of the Goldwater Camera Club.

One young lady's camera rested atop a special platform on her wheelchair so that its viewfinder was at the right height for her eyes. The fingers of her immobilized hands could press a long cable release to snap her pictures. The young fellow alongside also had only fingertip power to press the camera button. Someone else had to advance the film for them.

That someone was usually Mrs. Sylvia Solomon who for the past 10 years had mothered and guided this group as a volunteer representative of the Volunteer Service Photographers Inc.

Irwin Herzberg, at the time, was an editor and photographer for the hospital newspaper. He took pictures that evening with a Polaroid camera so that he could make an immediate selection of the best photo. Within minutes after the meeting ended, that photo was trimmed and mounted in a space left for it in the otherwise completed newspaper. The newspaper went to press that night. It was quite an achievement.

I've been back to the hospital several times since then and visited the Herzbergs recently in their charming little room in the homestead wing of the hospital. Naturally the subject turned to photography.

"I won a box camera on a card chance when I was 13 years old," Irwin recalled, "and it started me on the hobby. I took pictures around the hospital until I graduated to my father's folding Kodak. Now I own a good 35mm and a Polaroid camera and use a 2¼ x 3¼ Graflex camera which the VSP turned over to our camera club.

"Lorraine's interest in photography started about a year or two ago and now she uses an inexpensive 2¼ x 2¼ twin - lens reflex camera. Her primary leaning was towards art and she started to take pictures that would help express her artistic feelings. They had mood. They were different from the type of pictures I looked for.

"I take pictures for a definite purpose. Like for use in the hospital newspaper. Or portraits for the patients to send to their relatives and friends. Or photos for hospital administration uses and for pamphlets. Recently I've been taking pictures for a minister for teaching purposes.

"But I think anyone can find some phase of photography which will suit his particular interests and bring him great satisfaction."

As I said, next time you get discouraged with photography, think of Irwin Herzberg on his rolling stretcher and start shooting again.

AT JIM THEATRE

Operetta Series Plans Complete

Sale of tickets for the Golden Operetta Series, which will be presented at the Jim Theatre during October and the early part of November, are progressing 'satisfactorily', Joe Gianforte, theatre manager, said Saturday.

The series, the first of this particular type to be presented in northeast Louisiana, is being sponsored by the Gulf States Theatres chain through the Jim Theatre locally.

The pictures, termed light musical entertainment for the entire family, will be presented each Wednesday, beginning October 3, and continuing through November 7. Performances will be shown at 2 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. on each of the six days.

TICKETS

Tickets will be $1 for each performance, if bought at the door, or $5 for the entire series. They may be purchased at the theatre box office until the first show.

"The parade of Golden Operettas," Gianforte said, "is a lineup of the all-time champions of musical motion picture entertainment, made in Hollywood, each with a cast of top-notch stars and based on familiar stories appealing to Americans of all ages."

The operettas, play date, stars and a brief synopsis, are:

"ROSE MARIE"

"Rose Marie," set for Wednesday, October 3, is by Rudolph Friml and stars Howard Keel and Ann Blyth. It is the story of a wild young beauty of the great North woods, tamed by a handsome Royal Canadian Northwest Mountie.

"The Great Waltz," by Johann Strauss, Jr., on October 10, stars Louise Reiner and Fernand Gravet. It is the story of love in old Vienna, told in song. The film is famed for its song "Tales of the Vienna Woods."

"The Merry Widow," by Franz Lehar, stars Jeanette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier. It is the story of gaiety in Paris, with the principal tune "The Merry Widow Waltz."

On October 24, "The Chocolate Soldier," starring Rise Stevens and Nelson Eddy, will be shown. This operetta by Oscar Strauss, is the musical story of a married stage couple, a flirtatious wife and a jealous husband.

"Girl of the Golden West," starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddie, will be shown on October 31. The operetta was written by Sigmund Romberg.

The final selection, "Sweethearts," will be shown on November 7 and stars Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson. It is the product of Victor Herbert.

Opera Tickets Now On Sale At Paramount

Season tickets for the Grand Opera Festival, which will be presented at the Paramount Theatre later this month and in October, are now on sale at the theatre box office. The tickets will be sold until the first performance on Sept. 27.

After that time individual performance tickets, at a higher rate, will be sold.

Ted Hatfied, city manager for the Paramount - Gulf Theatres which operates the Paramount, said the season tickets are on sale at the theatre box office, or may be ordered by mail.

Individual tickets will be considerably more should the person attend all operas.

OPENING

The opening of the opera series will have a coffee hour from 7 to 8 p.m. in the theatre lobby. Hostesses in formal attire will be students of the Ouachita Parish High School vocal music department.

The complete schedule of the operas is:

Thursday, Sept. 27, "Don Giovanni," the Mozart opera in Technicolor featuring the Vienna State Opera Chorus ballet with music by the Philharmonic orchestra.

Thursday, October 18, "Rigoletto" the Guiseppe Verdi opera with Tito Gobbi, Anna Maria Canali and the Rome Opera House Orchestra.

Thursday, October 25, "The Royal Ballet," a technicolor production of Dame Margot Fonteyn in selections from "Firebird," "Ondine," and "Swan Lake."

Thursday, Nov. 8, "Figaro, The Barber of Seville," Rossini's comic opera in color starring Tito Gobbi and Irene Gremna, with a special commentary by Milton Cross.

Husband, Wife Team Signed By Theatre Vivant

NEW YORK (AP) — Julian Beck and Judith Malina, the husband - wife operators of the Living Theater, have been signed to produce a play in Paris for a Gallic experimental group, Theatre Vivant.

The pair intend to stage "Faustina," a drama originally presented by them here in 1952.

DAVID NIVEN is held at gun point by his wacky enemy Sordi in the Technicolor comedy "Best of Enemies," opening today at the Paramount Theatre.

Broadway's First 6 P.M. Curtain Is Being Initiated

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway's first 6 p.m. curtain is being introduced by producer Alexander H. Cohen.

A twilight matinee once a week has been set for "Beyond the Fringe," an English revue. A combination ticket will be sold, including admission to the performance and dinner at any of four restaurants.

Cohen, who expects the innovation to attract people who prefer to dine after seeing a show, has been battling the traditional 8:40 curtain time for several years. "Beyond the Fringe" will ring up on regular performances, as have previous Cohen productions, at 9 o'clock.

Robin Raymond In Second Big Broadway Role

NEW YORK (AP) — At age 13, Robin Raymond made her Broadway debut in "See My Lawyer," starring Milton Berle in 1939.

Now Miss Raymond is making her second Main Stem appearance, in the comedy "A Matter of Position."

Cast Rehearses Without Lunch

NEW YORK (AP) — The cast of "The Affair" rehearsed for the Broadway drama without any midday pause for lunch.

"It may seem a bit off cue," said director John Fernald, "but I have found that it works. Casts don't really work after lunch."

To head off possible protests within the troupe, he added: "This is the way Bernard Shaw worked."

Plumage Goes To Milady's Head In Fall Millinery

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Feathers through the ages have been part of man's and woman's, headdress. This fall, the plumage goes to a woman's head at a rate unmatched in many seasons.

New York milliners in their new collections featured plumed hats, especially for late day wear. Paris also rediscovered the flattery of feathers, either to form the whole hat or to trim satin or velvet.

All of which set off a research project by the Millinery Institute of America to determine how luring fashions, is interpreted in coats with slightly raised waistlines and softly rounded hiplines, often belted and swathed with fur or a scarf at neckline.

Emphatically feminine in detail, fall coats feature longer, skimnier set - in sleeves, double breasted and concealed front closings. Many styles have full or front belts at natural or raised waistlines.

feathers have bedecked heads through the centuries. Apparently the men started the whole feather robbery — ancient Egyptian royalty wore headdress of simulated vulture wings, in gold.

Use of feathers as a hat ornament probably was introduced into Europe by the Moors who occupied Spain for eight centuries, the institute found. Being an Arab people, they followed the dress customs of Turkey and Persia, and set beautiful egret plumes and the feathers of other exotic birds into the front folds of their turbans.

Early in the 14th Century, the feather appeared for the first time as an ornament on European headgear, but only for men.

They were so costly, says the institute, that they became a status symbol. By the time Columbus was born, in the second half of the 15th Century, the fashion of plumed hats for men had assumed the proportions of a craze.

In the 15th Century, the rage for ostrich feathers entered the military arena and streamed in profusion from the top of helmets. A famous plume belonged to Henry VIII of England; it consisted of eight plumes four and one half feet long taken from an Indian bird.

Until the time of the first Queen Elizabeth, women left the plumes to the men but by the beginnings of the 1600's, the ladies began to add small ostrich tips and egrets to their velvet berets and togues.

In the 18th Century, there was a complete reversal and men's hats became plainer, while the women's hats and headdresses went wild with ostrich plumes, egret and cock feathers.

There came in the famous wide-brimmed "Gainsborough" hat of velvet or taffeta with ostrich plumes ringing the crown and sweeping over the brim.

Coat Fashions Follow Curves

Every made head will turn when the new fall coats walk by — they are that flattering to feminine figures! Under the spell of shape, fashion carves and curves a variety of body-conscious coats with built - in beauty. Coats move closer and closer to the body, fitting or gently tracing the figure. Full coats are kept under control for a newer, shapelier look.

Not confined to a single silhouette, fall coat variety includes the redingote, a well - shaped fitted coat with skirt flare; the barrel - shaped coat with indented front sometimes emphasized by a pull - through belt; the slimmer 'spare' look of match-box seamed chesterfields; narrow coats with belted backs, notched collars and belted trenchcoats.

An Eastern influence is seen in the rajah coat, gently shaped with hemline flare, cardigan or mandarin neckline, a giant jewel closing and widened three quarter sleeves.

Homemakers Battle For 'Inner Space'

While the astronauts are challenging outer space, the homemaker is challenging "inner space" as she seeks new ways to achieve more efficient arrangements in the rooms of her home.

Mary Ann Wills, decorating consultant, notes that several current trends are making proper room arrangement more important than ever:

1. Families are larger today than they were 10 or 20 years ago. Three, four, or even five children per family are no longer a rarity, compared to the standard of two children in the past. More people per house means less room per person.

2. As real estate and building costs increase, new homes continue to get smaller. Living and dining areas continue to be combined in an effort to get more use out of a smaller space.

3. A strong trend is developing in apartment living as many suburbanites, their children grown and married, return to the city. Apartments are not known for spaciousness, unless the renter can afford luxury rates.

"All of which means that the homemaker must learn how to squeeze more function and utility out of the limited space available," Miss Wills said, adding:

"The space must also look efficient. It is not enough to achieve good space arrangement in a physical sense if the room looks crowded and cramped."

Here are Miss Wills' suggestions for making the most of a space problem:

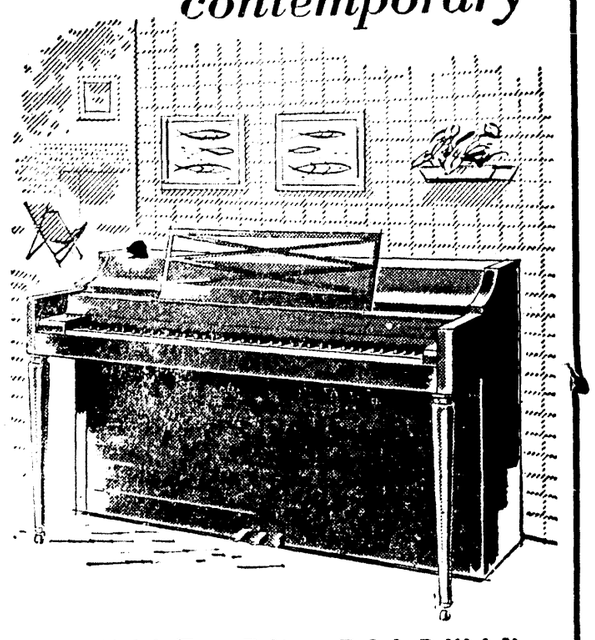

1. Choose furniture of the right scale. Make a scale drawing of your rooms and use this drawing in selecting furniture. Stay away from hand - me - down furniture that may have looked fine in Grandmother's Victorian farm house but is just too bulky for your new place.

2. Consider dual - purpose furniture, such as sofas and chairs which make up into beds, dining buffets which expand into tables, and similar convertible pieces.

3. Use room dividers and screens to break up rooms into functional areas. A peacock-and-wisteria divider done in lattice-work fashion can easily separate a dining area from a living area. It can also form an entrance way into a living room. Many uses can be found for dividers.

4. Arrange the furniture itself in functional groups. It is wasteful simply to place furniture against the wall. Furniture can be arranged in circular, L- or U-shaped patterns for more interest and efficiency.

JFK Sends Praise Note To Berliners

BERLIN (UPI) — President Kennedy praised West Berliners Saturday for their courage and perseverance in their struggle to remain free. At the same time the United States defied Soviet criticism and sent new troop convoys along the lifeline highway to Berlin.

Kennedy, in a message to the population of this isolated city, said the example set by Berliners had stirred the admiration of people throughout the world, and especially of Americans.

The President's message was relayed to Berliners by Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the late President, in a speech opening West Berlin's annual industrial fair.

"When I spoke with the President before I left the United States," Roosevelt said, "he told me of his admiration for the courage and perseverance which have enabled you to maintain your dignity as free men through a long period of tension."

"He feels that your example admiration of the people throughout the world, particularly in the United States."

While Roosevelt spoke the United States sent armed American soldiers through East Germany for the fourth day in a row in defiance of Soviet charges that it was heating up tension in Berlin.

Four U.S. convoys Saturday traveled the superhighway to and from Berlin carrying 647 soldiers in 109 military vehicles.

The Army said the convoys met no interference when they cleared through Soviet checkpoints at both ends of the 110-mile highway crossing Communist East Germany.

The troop movement was part of a week-long operation under which a Berlin-based army infantry battle group of 1,500 men was being exchange for a U.S. battle group from West Germany. It was designed to underscore U.S determination to keep the Berlin access routes open.

The official Soviet Tass news agency had charged Friday night the United States was keeping up tension in Berlin by sending the troops along the superhighway linking Berlin and the West.

Reds Erect Bamboo Version Of Berlin Wall

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —A bamboo version of the Berlin Wall has been built by North Vietnamese Communists to keep refugees from escaping south, Saigon authorities said Saturday.

The fence, nearly a mile long, runs between two guard posts on the north bank of the Ben Hai River, the sources said.

The Ben Hai is the official demarcation line between North and South Viet Nam. It runs from Laos eastward about 40 miles across the narrow neck of central Viet Nam and empties into the South China Sea at a point almost on the 17th Parallel.

NEVER BEEN HERE

Woman Adopts Monroe As Her Own Hometown

By ED HOLLIDAY
World Staff Writer

Although she's never been here, Monroe has become the adopted town of a tiny brunette housewife of San Pablo, Calif.

Three main ingredients sparked Mrs. Lorraine Van Buren's appreciation of Monroe, a town she's never seen —some 2,731 miles from the California town in which she lives.

Two small sons who disappeared from her home in 1953: Nine years of frustration and a mother's worry: A warm, strong friendship with Mrs. Camille Poindexter of Texas Avenue in Monroe whom she met while Mrs. Poindexter was visiting her daughter in California.

Now Mrs. Van Buren's nine years of nightmare seem almost ended with a finish that would rival a fairy - tale.

Through faith and undying hope Mrs. Van Buren persistently kept searching for her sons. Finally during the latter part of August her efforts succeeded. She learned the boys were with her former husband who had spirited them away to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Soon another of Mrs. Van Buren's wishes will be granted. Mrs. Poindexter who has been in Ft. Lauderdale helping her gain custody of her son now 12-years-old will drive Mrs. Van Buren to Monroe when custody is granted.

Mrs. Poindexter first met Mrs. Van Buren in 1955. She was visiting her daughter Mrs. Nancy Parnell of Monroe whose husband Eddy was in the Armed Forces.

The Monroe woman's daughter who was living in the California town about 40 miles north of San Francisco introduced her to Mrs. Van Buren.

The distraught mother told Mrs. Poindexter of her two missing sons Craig was 10 and Brent 3 when her divorced husband James Schultz disappeared with the boys while they were with him on a 10 - day visit.

MRS. CAMILLE POINDEXTER

MRS. LORRAINE VAN BUREN

The couple were divorced in 1951. Mrs. Van Buren told Florida newsmen because of Schultz' unpredictable temper. Schultz, a junior high school science teacher, had lost several jobs because of his temper, she said. Mrs. Van Buren had married him in 1941.

REMARRIED

After remarrying in 1953, Mrs Van Buren was given custody of the two sons along with her daughter, Lisa, now 10. She and her present husband, a used car dealer, have a fourth child Kim who is 8. Lisa has been legally adopted by the couple.

When meeting Mrs. Van Buren in California Mrs. Poindexter learned of the fruitless efforts of the mother's search. The difficulty she had in making people believe her story. The countless false leads, and hopes. The sometimes sleepless nights. The anxiety. The tense, nervous strain. The money she and her husband had spent in trying to locate the boys. The carefully kept files and documents to aid in the quest. Soon Mrs. Poindexter became deeply concerned with the mother's plight.

While talking with her, Mrs. Poindexter said tears sometimes rolled unnoticed down the mother's cheeks. She had shed them so often, she sometimes was unaware she was crying, Mrs. Poindexter said.

After Mrs. Poindexter returned to Monroe, the two women wrote each other frequently. Mrs. Van Buren also wrote Mrs. Poindexter's daughter Nancy. Soon others in Monroe including Mrs. Poindexter's sister Mrs. Ed Thomas of 211 Grayling Lane were taken with the mother problem.

CAME TO KNOW

It was during this exchange of letters that Mrs. Van Buren came to know Monroe more thoroughly. In a letter to Nancy, she wrote: "Nancy this you can believe. More than anything else in this world —apart from the boys — I would like to be in Monroe.

"I've never even been close to it, but I almost feel like its my hometown . . . you're the most giving people I have ever known. It would be like going home," she said.

"When you feel as strongly as I do about Monroe and your family — you've just got to belong. Inviting me to Monroe is like giving a starving man food," she continued.

Mrs. Van Buren appeared on the television show, "Queen For A Day," in 1955. Her appeal won her the top spot on the show that day. A private detective agency was hired for her. When their efforts were fruitful, the show would pay her plane fare to get her sons and return with them.

But the years dragged on. In one letter Mrs. Van Buren wrote: "Failure and legal red tape and indifference have me on my knees." Deeply religious Mrs. Van Buren mentioned many times in turning to God and relying upon Him to aid her, even though everything else might seem to have failed.

Last Christmas Mrs. Poindexter returned to California to visit with her friend. Beneath Mrs. Van Buren's Christmas tree the Monroe woman saw presents addressed to the missing sons.

Mrs. Van Buren explained she always placed presents beneath the tree for her boys. "They might come home this Christmas and what if there are no presents for them. They'd be disappointed."

DEVOTION

Touched by the mother's unwavering devotion for the sons she had not seen in nine years, Mrs. Poindexter returned to Monroe and redoubled her efforts to aid Mrs. Van Buren in locating her boys.

Letters to Mayor Jack Howard of Monroe and Representative Otto Passman were written. Both men assured the two women they would do all within their power to aid in the search.

Mrs. Van Buren who received a letter from Rep. Passman was overwhelmed at the congressman interest in her problems. She had tried to see her own congressman in California several times, she said, but could never gain his attention. She was floored, she said, that the Louisiana Representative should take the trouble to write her of his intentions to help her.

But Mrs. Poindexter didn't limit her letters to officials and to Mrs. Van Bruen. She also wrote the sister of Mrs. Van Buren's former husband who knew where he and the two boys were living, saying: "Have compassion for this mother who is going through hell."

On Mother's Day of this year, Mrs. Poindexter sent a telegram to Schulz' sister saying: "While you're in church today, say a prayer for a mother who has been persecuted for 10 years."

Apparently the letters and telegrams ranked. A few days later Schultz' sister told Mrs. Van Buren, to "Get that friend of yours in Louisiana off my back."

As time dragged by Mrs. Van Buren began to feel the strain. On June 19 she wrote: "My 10th year of waiting has started. All these years have taken their toll from me and I feel like it is all I can take. Emotion and grief, that is what the doctors say is my cancer."

During the latter part of August the sister of Mrs. Van Buren's former husband unintentionally mentioned her brother's whereabout.

Overjoyed, Mrs. Van Buren could hardly wait to begin the trip to Ft. Lauderdale. But there were doubts. In one letter she wrote: "Such a big part of myself has been with my sons and knowing to them I am a stranger. . . fills me with terror." How strange to realize my 10-year - old, my first born has grown into a man. And little Brent whom I remember in a cowboy hat and pistol and holster so warm and cuddly even in wet diapers is a young man now."

There was also waiting. Schulz was charged with violating a special California law, "child stealing." The California law officials and Dade County officials had to work out papers.

Meanwhile the anxious mother was afraid to go to Florida, fearing her husband would see her and flee.

After about a week - and - a half passed Mrs. Van Buren wrote Mrs. Poindexter saying: "The story of my past 10 years has been waiting. Always waiting. I have leaned heavily upon you (Mrs. Poindexter) and depended on your strength of character.

"After all the bitterness and disappointment he brought you close to me maybe just to prove that good does triumph over evil and used you and your compassion just to prove it to me."

Mrs. Van Buren had no interest in prosecuting her former husband. Only to get her boys returned was her intention she said in one letter.

But the time taken to undo legalistic snarls and red tape was necessary for the successful completion of her plans.

In one letter she said the San Francisco district attorney had made some progress but still she couldn't leave: "I feel like a hungry tiger and the district attorney has given me a bowl of milk," she wrote.

Still more time was consumed. Mrs. Van Buren remained in California. On Aug. 31, Mrs. Poindexter went to Ft. Lauderdale to act a laison for the mother in California.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Van Buren sat patiently in California, soothed with the relief that the hunt was ended. She wrote Mrs. Poindexter in Florida: "Maybe now that the searching is ended I can find rest and peace of mind again. Be just a woman again. A mother to my children and a wife to Van.

"I've led so many lives, kept so many secrets and played detective for so long. You know better than anyone all the parts I've had to play.

"Best of all, you will be there when I arrive. You really meant it when you said I wouldn't be alone any longer.

"I am choked with joy and cold with fear," she wrote at the thought of again being united with her sons.

In ending the letter showing appreciation for Mrs. Poindexter's efforts she closed: "All I can say is a silly thank you. Thank you for being my friend. Someday, someway God willing I can prove my gratitude."

Meanwhile in Ft. Lauderdale, Mrs. Poindexter was joined by her sister Mrs. Ed Thomas of Monroe on Sept. 11. The two Monroe women set out together to pave the way for the California woman. They spoke to authorities clarifying the situation for them. They located housing and contacted an attorney.

The operation was carried out as softly as possible for fear of spooking Mrs. Van Buren's former husband into flight again.

Once, a telegram was misread saying the legal processes had been completed. The news was relayed to the Ft. Lauderdale newspaper. After a few of the newspapers had hit the newstands. the error was caught, the legal processes had not been completed.

The newspapers obligingly killed the story, and only a few of the newspapers had been circulated.

FIDGETY

In California, Mrs. Van Buren became more fidgety with hand-wringing nervousness. She packed her clothes in expectancy of the trip. She unpacked them, pressed the clothes and repacked them. Twice daily she washed her family's clothes so they would all be clean.

She talked with her two daughters and was relieved they had no jealousy for the boys. Only the same desire to see them that she had, Mrs. Van Buren wrote.

While waiting, she wrote she only went out to buy groceries from 12 to 1 p.m. She knew that was the time the district attorney went to lunch and she wouldn't miss a call from him.

Finally the awaited call from the district attorney's office came through. Mrs. Van Buren could come to Florida. She notified the Queen For A Day television show and asked them if what they had said seven years before was still effective.

One of the men said he would have to contact other members connected with the show. It would take a few days. Mrs. Van Buren couldn't wait. She paid her own fare and boarded the plane for Ft. Lauderdale. She arrived Sept. 14.

Her oldest son was now 19 and had been married a week before she arrived. He's a fine boy she said, after meeting him. He had one year of college and is now working to earn enough money to return. "He's married a lovely girl," Mrs. Van Buren said.

Mrs. Van Buren's main interest now lies with 12-year-old Brent. She doesn't wish to uproot him from his home if he doesn't wish to leave. But she feels he needs a mother and would like to come with her.

At present, Mrs. Van Buren is in a Florida court trying to regain custody of her child. Soon, with a little bit of luck, Mrs. Van Buren will be en route to Monroe with her friend Mrs. Poindexter.

DISCOVER GUN CACHE

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—Eight Kikuyu tribesmen have been arrested in the Rift Valley following discovery of a cache of 11 home-made guns and 25 rounds of ammunition in a forest hide-out, police said Saturday. Police said the tribesmen were suspected members of the "land freedom army," an extrmist organization.

AFTER LONG STRUGGLE

Tribesmen In India To Get Own State

NEW DELHI (UPI) — It is certain now that India's gun-toting, Bible-quoting Naga tribesmen will soon have an autonomous state of their own on India's troubled northeast frontier.

But whether a half-way measure like statehood will satisfy all of the Christianized tribesmen after an eight-year struggle for independence remains to be seen.

Enabling legislation has already been passed by the Indian Parliament. Only President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan's signature, and the setting of a date for statehood, remain before an autonomous Nagaland becomes a reality.

But some 1,500 Naga "hostiles" are still on the warpath, and their wispy-bearded exile leader, Angami Zapu Phizo, has already turned down the statehood proposal from his headquarters in London.

It is hoped here, however, that more moderate Naga leaders will be able to use increased self-government as a lure for getting Phizo's followers out of their guerrilla hideouts in the rugged Naga hills.

India's present 15 states rank in size and population with some major European nations. Nagaland will be the midget of the family.

The region is smaller than Wales, has fewer people than Cleveland, Ohio, and differs from the rest of India in the uncompromising Baptist faith brought in long ago by American missionaries.

Despite their country's size, Naga rebels have tied down as many as two divisions of the Indian army, as well as thousands of Assam riflemen, armed police units and village guards.

The expense of this operation in lives and rupees makes statehood seem like a cheap price for New Delhi to pay for peace.

The price seems cheaper still, because India won't really grant complete states' rights to the Nagas until the rebellion has been thoroughly stamped out and "normalcy" achieved.

Until then, the appointed governor of Nagaland state will have special powers to enforce law and order and control finances.

He will also have extra authority for the first 10 years in the Tuewsang hills region — one of Nagaland's three administrative districts and an area where head-hunting raids are still fresh in the memories of spear-throwing tribesmen.

But the new autonomy may still be too limited for Phizo's warriors to accept after their years of hard fighting.

A total of 1,500 Nagas, 350 Indian soldiers and 100 government officials have died in the bitter, little-publicized civil war.

This is a conservative estimate, and Phizo claims that the death toll is closer to 75,000. Whatever the figure may be, it is likely to go higher unless the new state wins the confidence of the hostiles.

Barnett's Stand Is Endorsed By Veterans Of Area

RUSTON (Special) — The Parnell - Burt Post 3615, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has unanimously endorsed Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett's stand in the current struggle to prevent integration of the University of Mississippi.

A telegram sent to the governor by J. B. Watts, commander, stated:

"At a special called meeting, the members of Parnell - Burt Post 3615 Veterans of Foreign Wars at Ruston, Louisiana unanimously voted endorsement and support of your courageous stand for freedom and state sovereignty.

"We heartily congratulate you and the state of Mississippi."

Adcock Slated As Speaker At Builders Meet

SHREVEPORT (Special) — State Sen. Jamar W. Adcock of Monroe will be one of the featured speakers at the annual convention of Homebuilders Association of Louisiana here Oct. 18-20.

Appearing on a finance panel with Adcock will be J. W. (Bill) Underwood of Jackson, Miss., John J. Puissequr of New Orleans, C. M. Peters, Shreveport attorney and A. K. Northrop, president of the Louisiana Mortgage Bankers Association of New Orleans.

Adcock, long active in the building industry and related fields, formed his own mortgage loan company in 1957. He is presently serving as a director on the board at Central Savings Bank and Trust Co. In Monroe. He also is active in civic work.

Convention headquarters will be Holiday Inn North. Out of town registration begins Oct. 18.

Tech Fraternity Wins 5th Place For Activities

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's chapter of Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary accounting fraternity, has been awarded fifth place for its activities during the past year.

The citation is signed by Herbert E. Miller of Michigan State University, who is grand president of the organization of 62 chapters in the United States.

Dr. J. T. Johnson, accounting professor at Tech, received the certificate while attending a meeting of national vice presidents of the fraternity held at Michigan State University recently.

Student officers of the Tech chapter are Tommy Bice of Haynesville, president; George Garrett of Shreveport, vice president; Sandra Groseclose of Shreveport, secretary, and Reagan Frasier of Minden, treasurer. Dr. Johnson is faculty adviser.

LaSalle Parish Fair's Parade Slated Tuesday

JENA (Special) — Festivities for the 1962 LaSalle Parish Fair here will open with a parade through the principal streets of Jena 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The line of floats representing various themes and activities will be interspersed by modeling girls riding in boats pulled on trailers. Both boys and girls will compete for the best decorated bicycle, which will be judged during the parade.

Also entered will be pets and riding clubs and others.

Exhibits at the fair will be highlighted by booths prepared by FFA and 4-H clubs from parish schools, home demonstration club and industrial entries by local concerns.

Scheduled are style shows, music, variety acts, carnival, livestock show and farm exhibits.

QUEEN MOTHER INJURED

BIRKHALL, England (UPI) — Queen Mother Elizabeth was resting Saturday after breaking a small bone in her left foot in a fall at her residence here. The queen mother, 62, had broken a bone in the same foot in June, 1961.

MRS. LORRAINE VAN BUREN of San Pablo, Calif., (right) has been searching for her sons nine years since they were taken by her former husband, James Schultz. She finally found Schultz teaching school in Broward county, Florida, under an assumed name. Circuit judge Ted Cabot ruled Mrs. Van Buren custody of Brent, now age 12, shown with his father at left. Brent said to his mother, after the judges decision, "I'm not going anywhere with you, you witch." (AP Wirephoto)

NEVER BEEN HERE

Woman Adopts Monroe As Her Own Hometown

By ED HOLLIDAY
World Staff Writer

Although she's never been here, Monroe has become the adopted town of a tiny brunette housewife of San Pablo, Calif.

Three main ingredients sparked Mrs. Lorraine Van Buren's appreciation of Monroe, a town she's never seen —some 2,731 miles from the California town in which she lives.

Two small sons who disappeared from her home in 1953: Nine years of frustration and a mother's worry: A warm, strong friendship with Mrs. Camille Poindexter of Texas Avenue in Monroe whom she met while Mrs. Poindexter was visiting her daughter in California.

Now Mrs. Van Buren's nine years of nightmare seem almost ended with a finish that would rival a fairy - tale.

Through faith and undying hope Mrs. Van Buren presistently kept searching for her sons. Finally during the latter part of August her efforts succeeded. She learned the boys were with her former husband who had spirited them away to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Soon another of Mrs. Van Buren's wishes will be granted. Mrs. Poindexter who has been in Ft. Lauderdale helping her gain custody of her son now 12-years-old will drive Mrs. Van Buren to Monroe when custody is granted.

Mrs. Poindexter first met Mrs. Van Buren in 1955. She was visiting her daughter Mrs. Nancy Parnell of Monroe whose husband Eddy was in the Armed Forces.

The Monroe woman's daughter who was living in the California town about 40 miles north of San Francisco introduced her to Mrs. Van Buren.

The distraught mother told Mrs. Poindexter of her two missing sons. Craig was 10 and Brent 3 when her divorced husband James Schultz disappeared with the boys while they were with him on a 10 - day visit.

MRS. CAMILLE POINDEXTER

MRS. LORRAINE VAN BUREN

The couple were divorced in 1951. Mrs. Van Buren told Florida newsmen because of Schultz' unpredictable temper. Schultz, a junior high school science teacher, had lost several jobs because of his temper, she said. Mrs. Van Buren had married him in 1941.

REMARRIED

After remarrying in 1953, Mrs Van Buren was given custody of the two sons along with her daughter, Lisa, now 10. She and her present husband, a used car dealer, have a fourth child Kim who is 8. Lisa has been legally adopted by the couple.

When meeting Mrs. Van Buren in California Mrs. Poindexter learned of the fruitless efforts of the mother's search. The difficulty she had in making people believe her story. The countless false leads, and hopes. The sometimes sleepless nights. The anxiety. The tense, nervous strain. The money she and her husband had spent in trying to locate the boys. The carefully kept files and documents to aid in the quest. Soon Mrs. Poindexter became deeply concerned with the mother's plight.

While talking with her, Mrs. Poindexter said tears sometimes rolled unnoticed down the mother's cheeks. She had shed them so often, she sometimes was unaware she was crying, Mrs. Poindexter said.

After Mrs. Poindexter returned to Monroe, the two women wrote each other frequently. Mrs. Van Buren also wrote Mrs. Poindexter's daughter Nancy. Soon others in Monroe including Mrs. Poindexter's sister Mrs. Ed Thomas of 211 Grayling Lane were taken with the mother problem.

CAME TO KNOW

It was during this exchange of letters that Mrs. Van Buren came to know Monroe more thoroughly. In a letter to Nancy, she wrote: "Nancy this you can believe. More than anything else in this world —apart from the boys — I would like to be in Monroe.

"I've never even been close to it, but I almost feel like its my hometown . . . you're the most giving people I have ever known. It would be like going home," she said.

"When you feel as strongly as I do about Monroe and your family — you've just got to belong. Inviting me to Monroe is like giving a starving man food," she continued.

Mrs. Van Buren appeared on the television show, "Queen For A Day," in 1955. Her appeal won her the top spot on the show that day. A private detective agency was hired for her. When their efforts were fruitful, the show would pay her plane fare to get her sons and return with them.

But the years dragged on. In one letter Mrs. Van Buren wrote: "Failure and legal red tape and indifference have me on my knees." Deeply religious Mrs. Van Buren mentioned many times in turning to God and relying upon Him to aid her, even though everything else might seem to have failed.

Last Christmas Mrs. Poindexter returned to California to visit with her friend. Beneath Mrs. Van Buren's Christmas tree the Monroe woman saw presents addressed to the missing sons.

Mrs. Van Buren explained she always placed presents beneath the tree for her boys. "They might come home this Christmas and what if there are no presents for them. They'd be disappointed."

DEVOTION

Touched by the mother's unwavering devotion for the sons she had not seen in nine years, Mrs. Poindexter returned to Monroe and redoubled her efforts to aid Mrs. Van Buren in locating her boys.

Letters to Mayor Jack Howard of Monroe and Representative Otto Passman were written. Both men assured the two women they would do all within their power to aid in the search.

Mrs. Van Buren who received a letter from Rep. Passman was overwhelmed at the congressman interest in her problems. She had tried to see her own congressman in California several times, she said, but could never gain his attention. She was floored, she said, that the Louisiana Representative should take the trouble to write her of his intentions to help her.

But Mrs. Poindexter didn't limit her letters to officials and to Mrs. Van Bruen. She also wrote the sister of Mrs. Van Buren's former husband who knew where he and the two boys were living, saying: "Have compassion for this mother who is going through hell."

On Mother's Day of this year, Mrs. Poindexter sent a telegram to Schulz' sister saying: "While you're in church today, say a prayer for a mother who has been persecuted for 10 years."

Apparently the letters and telegrams ranked. A few days later Schultz' sister told Mrs. Van Buren, to "Get that friend of yours in Louisiana off my back."

As time dragged by Mrs. Van Buren began to feel the strain. On June 19 she wrote: "My 10th year of waiting has started. All these years have taken their toll from me and I feel like it is all I can take. Emotion and grief, that is what the doctors say is my cancer."

During the latter part of August the sister of Mrs. Van Buren's former husband unintentionally mentioned her brother's whereabout.

Overjoyed, Mrs. Van Buren could hardly wait to begin the trip to Ft. Lauderdale. But there were doubts. In one letter she wrote: "Such a big part of myself has been with my sons and knowing to them I am a stranger. . . fills me with terror." How strange to realize my 10-year - old, my first born has grown into a man. And little Brent whom I remember in a cowboy hat and pistol and holster so warm and cuddly even in wet diapers is a young man now."

There was also waiting. Schulz was charged with violating a special California law, "child stealing." The California law officials and Dade County officials had to work out papers.

Meanwhile the anxious mother was afraid to go to Florida, fearing her husband would see her and flee.

After about a week - and - a half passed Mrs. Van Buren wrote Mrs. Poindexter saying: "The story of my past 10 years has been waiting. Always waiting. I have leaned heavily upon you (Mrs. Poindexter) and depended on your strength of character.

"After all the bitterness and disappointment he brought you close to me maybe just to prove that good does triumph over evil and used you and your compassion just to prove it to me."

Mrs. Van Buren had no interest in prosecuting her former husband. Only to get her boys returned was her intention she said in one letter.

But the time taken to undo legalistic snarls and red tape was necessary for the successful completion of her plans.

In one letter she said the San Francisco district attorney had made some progress but still she couldn't leave: "I feel like a hungry tiger and the district attorney has given me a bowl of milk," she wrote.

Still more time was consumed. Mrs. Van Buren remained in California. On Aug. 31, Mrs. Poindexter went to Ft. Lauderdale to act a laison for the mother in California.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Van Buren sat patiently in California, soothed with the relief that the hunt was ended. She wrote Mrs. Poindexter in Florida: "Maybe now that the searching is ended I can find rest and peace of mind again. Be just a woman again. A mother to my children and a wife to Van.

"I've led so many lives, kept so many secrets and played detective for so long. You know better than anyone all the parts I've had to play.

"Best of all, you will be there when I arrive. You really meant it when you said I wouldn't be alone any longer.

"I am choked with joy and cold with fear," she wrote at the thought of again being united with her sons.

In ending the letter showing appreciation for Mrs. Poindexter's efforts she closed: "All I can say is a silly thank you. Thank you for being my friend. Someday, someway God willing I can prove my gratitude."

Meanwhile in Ft. Lauderdale, Mrs. Poindexter was joined by her sister Mrs. Ed Thomas of Monroe on Sept. 11. The two Monroe women set out together to pave the way for the California woman. They spoke to authorities clarifying the situation for them. They located housing and contacted an attorney.

The operation was carried out as softly as possible for fear of spooking Mrs. Van Buren's former husband into flight again.

Once, a telegram was misread saying the legal processes had been completed. The news was relayed to the Ft. Lauder- was relayed to the Ft. Lauderdale newspaper. After a few of the newspapers had hit the newstands. the error was caught, the legal processes had not been completed.

The newspapers obligingly killed the story, and only a few of the newspapers had been circulated.

FIDGETY

In California, Mrs. Van Buren became more fidgety with handwringing nervousness. She packed her clothes in expectancy of the trip. She unpacked them, pressed the clothes and repacked them. Twice daily she washed her family's clothes so they would all be clean.

She talked with her two daughters and was relieved they had no jealousy for the boys. Only the same desire to see them that she had, Mrs. Van Buren wrote.

While waiting, she wrote she only went out to buy groceries from 12 to 1 p.m. She knew that was the time the district attorney went to lunch and she wouldn't miss a call from him.

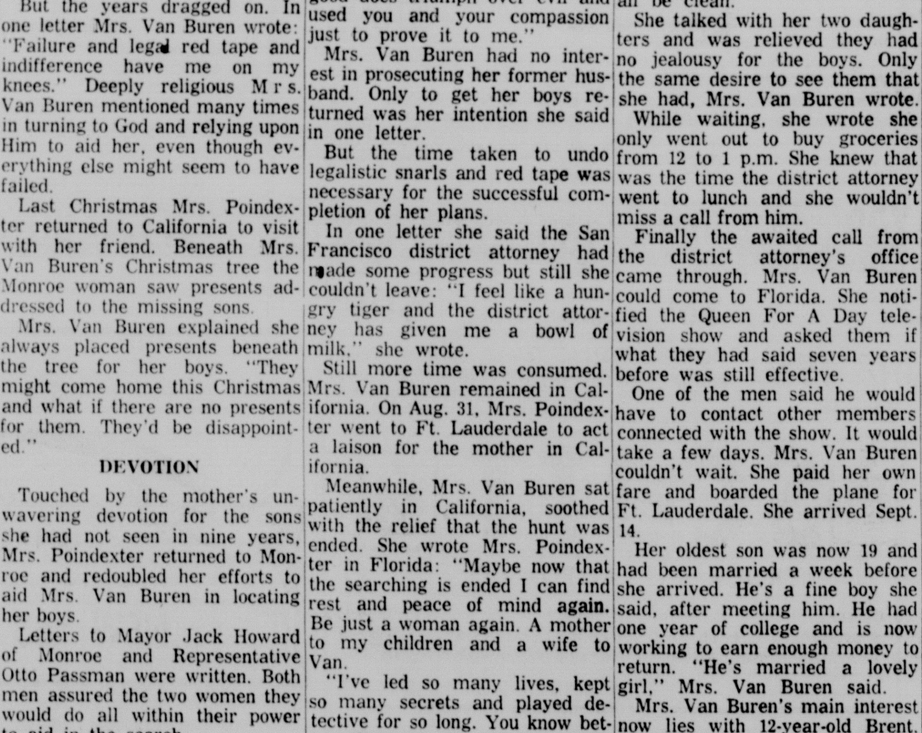

Finally the awaited call from the district attorney's office came through. Mrs. Van Buren could come to Florida. She notified the Queen For A Day television show and asked them if what they had said seven years before was still effective.

One of the men said he would have to contact other members connected with the show. It would take a few days. Mrs. Van Buren couldn't wait. She paid her own fare and boarded the plane for Ft. Lauderdale. She arrived Sept. 14.

Her oldest son was now 19 and had been married a week before she arrived. He's a fine boy she said, after meeting him. He had one year of college and is now working to earn enough money to return. "He's married a lovely girl," Mrs. Van Buren said.

Mrs. Van Buren's main interest now lies with 12-year-old Brent. She doesn't wish to uproot him from his home if he doesn't wish to leave. But she feels he needs a mother and would like to come with her.

At present, Mrs. Van Buren is in a Florida court trying to regain custody of her child. Soon, with a little bit of luck, Mrs. Van Buren will be en route to Monroe with her friend Mrs. Poindexter.

MRS. LORRAINE VAN BUREN of San Pablo, Calif., (right) has been searching for her sons nine years since they were taken by her former husband, James Schultz. She finally found Schultz teaching school in Broward county, Florida, under an assumed name. Circuit judge Ted Cabot ruled Mrs. Van Buren custody of Brent, now age 12, shown with his father at left. Brent said to his mother, after the judges decision, "I'm not going anywhere with you, you witch." (AP Wirephoto)

DISCOVER GUN CACHE

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—Eight Kikuyu tribesmen have been arrested in the Rift Valley following discovery of a cache of 11 homemade guns and 25 rounds of ammunition in a forest hide-out, police said Saturday. Police said the tribesmen were suspected members of the "land freedom army," an extrmist organization.

AFTER LONG STRUGGLE

Tribesmen In India To Get Own State

NEW DELHI (UPI) — It is certain now that India's gun-toting, Bible-quoting Naga tribesmen will soon have an autonomous state of their own on India's troubled northeast frontier.

But whether a half-way measure like statehood will satisfy all of the Christianized tribesmen after an eight-year struggle for independence remains to be seen.

Enabling legislation has already been passed by the Indian Parliament. Only President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan's signature, and the setting of a date for statehood, remain before an autonomous Nagaland becomes a reality.

But some 1,500 Naga "hostiles" are still on the warpath, and their wispy-bearded exile leader, Angami Zapu Phizo, has already turned down the statehood proposal from his headquarters in London.

It is hoped here, however, that more moderate Naga leaders will be able to use increased self-government as a lure for getting Phizo's followers out of their guerrilla hideouts in the rugged Naga hills.

India's present 15 states rank in size and population with some major European nations. Nagaland will be the midget of the family.

The region is smaller than Wales, has fewer people than Cleveland, Ohio, and differs from the rest of India in the uncompromising Baptist faith brought in long ago by American missionaries.

Despite their country's size, Naga rebels have tied down as many as two divisions of the Indian army, as well as thousands of Assam riflemen, armed police units and village guards.

The expense of this operation in lives and rupees makes statehood seem like a cheap price for New Delhi to pay for peace.

The price seems cheaper still, because India won't really grant complete states' rights to the Nagas until the rebellion has been thoroughly stamped out and "normalcy" achieved.

Until then, the appointed governor of Nagaland state will have special powers to enforce law and order and control finances.

He will also have extra authority for the first 10 years in the Tuewsang hills region — one of Nagaland's three administrative districts and an area where headhunting raids are still fresh in the memories of spear-throwing tribesmen.

But the new autonomy may still be too limited for Phizo's warriors to accept after their years of hard fighting.

A total of 1,500 Nagas, 350 Indian soldiers and 100 government officials have died in the bitter, little-publicized civil war.

This is a conservative estimate, and Phizo claims that the death toll is closer to 75,000. Whatever the figure may be, it is likely to go higher unless the new state wins the confidence of the hostiles.

Adcock Slated As Speaker At Builders Meet

SHREVEPORT (Special) — State Sen. Jamar W. Adcock of Monroe will be one of the featured speakers at the annual convention of Homebuilders Association of Louisiana here Oct. 18-20.

Appearing on a finance panel with Adcock will be J. W. (Bill) Underwood of Jackson, Miss., John J. Puissequr of New Orleans, C. M. Peters, Shreveport attorney and A. K. Northrop, president of the Louisiana Mortgage Bankers Association of New Orleans.

Adcock, long active in the building industry and related fields, formed his own mortgage loan company in 1957. He is presently serving as a director on the board at Central Savings Bank and Trust Co. In Monroe. He also is active in civic work.

Convention headquarters will be Holiday Inn North. Out of town registration begins Oct. 18.

Tech Fraternity Wins 5th Place For Activities

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's chapter of Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary accounting fraternity, has been awarded fifth place for its activities during the past year.

The citation is signed by Herbert E. Miller of Michigan State University, who is grand president of the organization of 62 chapters in the United States.

Dr. J. T. Johnson, accounting professor at Tech, received the certificate while attending a meeting of national vice presidents of the fraternity held at Michigan State University recently.

Student officers of the Tech chapter are Tommy Bice of Haynesville, president; George Garrett of Shreveport, vice president; Sandra Groseclose of Shreveport, secretary, and Reagan Frasier of Minden, treasurer. Dr. Johnson is faculty adviser.

LaSalle Parish Fair's Parade Slated Tuesday

JENA (Special) — Festivities for the 1962 LaSalle Parish Fair here will open with a parade through the principal streets of Jena 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The line of floats representing various themes and activities will be interspersed by modeling girls riding in boats pulled on trailers. Both boys and girls will compete for the best decorated bicycle, which will be judged during the parade.

Also entered will be pets and riding clubs and others.

Exhibits at the fair will be highlighted by booths prepared by FFA and 4-H clubs from parish schools, home demonstration club and industrial entries by local concerns.

Scheduled are style shows, music, variety acts, carnival, livestock show and farm exhibits.

QUEEN MOTHER INJURED

Barnett's Stand Is Endorsed By Veterans Of Area

RUSTON (Special) — The Parnell - Burt Post 3615, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has unanimously endorsed Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett's stand in the current struggle to prevent integration of the University of Mississippi.

A telegram sent to the governor by J. B. Watts, commander, stated:

"At a special called meeting, the members of Parnell - Burt Post 3615 Veterans of Foreign Wars at Ruston, Louisiana unanimously voted endorsement and support of your courageous stand for freedom and state sovereignty.

"We heartily congratulate you and the state of Mississippi."

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Want Ad Reunites Brothers

Lester Waldman an Argentine businessman lost contact with his brother for 38 years. Believing his brother, Herman, to be alive he placed an ad in a New York newspaper. The ad was brought to the attention of Herman Waldman living in Louisville. He contacted his brother and a happy reunion took place in a Louisville railroad station.

U.S. Still Can Resurrect Monroe Doctrine Swiftly

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some highly placed people have been talking during the Cuban crisis as though the Monroe Doctrine is dead. But any burial is premature.

There was a very strong implication in President Kennedy's recent warning to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro against exporting his Soviet brand of communism through force or threat of force—a direct implication that the doctrine could be resurrected swiftly.

In the wake of this, the Senate overwhelmingly approved a proposed resolution restating the doctrine and calling on Congress to back the President's Cuban policy. Similar House action was certain.

The President told Castro—and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev—that the United States would take "whatever action is necessary" to keep Castro from using his Russian military buildup to spread communism in this hemisphere.

That was a big tent, big enough to cover the Monroe Doctrine, if Kennedy decided it should be invoked.

The doctrine has lost some of its muscle from disuse and from diplomatic events in the new world. But the United States never has formally abandoned it even though its status may be fuzzy.

Fact is, it was never a law but merely a policy laid down in 1823 by President James Monroe and subscribed to by Congress.

Under it, the United States proclaimed that it would consider any penetration of foreign influence in this hemisphere a threat to the security of the United States. And it would resist such penetration with force, if necessary.

This provided an umbrella of protection for the then unstable Latin American republics which were plagued by revolution and easy prey to foreign meddling.

Old World nations accepted and recognized the doctrine, in deference to the growing power of the United States. But there were some Latin American nations which resented the U.S. "big brother" attitude and particularly the idea that in some way it gave the United States the right to intervene in their affairs.

For, along with the doctrine, there developed a parallel of U.S. policy — intervention in Latin America to protect U.S. interests. This involved military landings in Cuba in 1906, in Haiti in 1915, in the Dominican Republic in 1916, in Panama in 1918, and in Nicaragua in 1926, and once in Mexico.

This policy was replaced by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Good Neighbor" program in the 1930's and formally disowned when the Organization of American States (OAS) was created. Under the OAS, all American nations, including the United States, pledged to refrain from interfering in the internal affairs of their neighbors.

The OAS, in effect, also took over, in the name of all the republics, the job of enforcing the Monroe Doctrine. That wasn't said in so many words but it was the intent. It pledged the Americas to act to prevent foreign penetration of any member nation. In addition, the subsequent Pact of Rio was aimed specifically at Communist infiltration.

That, historically, would seem to have been the end of the Monroe Doctrine. But it was the finish only if the Pact of Rio worked. In 1960 the U.S. State Department said the doctrine was not dead and that it was now bolstered by the pledge of common OAS action.

Whether this really strengthened the doctrine is a point of argument. The OAS has been found wanting on some occasions. There has been vacillation and compromise on combatting communism, and a definite shortage of effective action.

Last year President Kennedy warned that non-intervention under the OAS must not be used as a cover for inaction against communism. He cautioned the republics that if they defaulted on their pledge to act, the United States might have to go it alone.

That would not be an easy decision, and it is certain that the first U.S. move against Castro will be through the OAS. But if that organization falls down on the job, Kennedy in turn could fall back on the Monroe Doctrine.

MAP LOCATES the town of Banes, underlined, in Cuba, near where U.S. officials said Russian technicians have set up a new missile site. The missile base could threaten the U.S. Naval base at Guantanamo, underlined, on the other side of the island. Site also could menace important U.S. Navy shipping lanes, officials said. Guantanamo is about 60 miles southeast of the Banes area. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Mobile Nuclear Reactor Yields Electric Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced Saturday that a small, mobile nuclear reactor under development for the army has produced electricity for the first time.

The successful test of the ML-1 reactor was conducted at the AEC's testing station in Idaho Friday.

The announcement called the reactor the "world's first direct and closed cycle gas cooled nuclear power system." It was hailed as another major step in a joint program of the AEC and Army Corps of Engineers to develop nuclear power plants to meet defense requirements.

The reactor heats gas which is used to drive a turbine.

Councils Ask Support For Barnett Fight

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The National Association of Citizens Councils urged people throughout the country to support Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett in his fight against integration.

At a meeting here Sautrday to plan strategy for countering desegregation, council members asked people to contact their governors and other public officials to urge them to take steps in support of the Mississippi governor.

Forty delegates from eight states attended the closed meeting.

The national council's president, Roy V. Harris, publisher of a weekly Georgia newspaper, told members and guests of the Montgomery Citizens Council Friday night that southern people need men who will tell the nation that segregation is "not a prejudiced but a problem we have to deal with."

He complimented Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett and Gov.-nominate George Wallace of Alabama, while saying that Georgia has had men who "breathed fire and brimstone" in their home state but who in Washington contracted "Potomac Fever."

Georgia, he said, "lost this battle in politics, and we will never win one until we win it in politics."

Harris said Citizens Councils have done a good job in resisting integration.

COLD WAR HEROES

Higher Military Awards Sought

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army is being strongly urged to grant higher military decorations to men who withstand Communist torture after being taken prisoners.

The decorations could include the coveted Medal of Honor if Congress approves a newly submitted Defense Department request for authority to grant the nation's highest military award for heroism in peacetime.

The drive for greater recognition stems partly from the fact that survivors of Maj. Walter H. Moon received only the Bronze Star Medal in his behalf, although his courage as a Communist prisoner in Laos was described officially as "an incredible story of heroism."

Similar awards were made to Maj. Lawrence R. Bailey and Sgt Orville Ballenger when they were flown home recently from Laos after resisting all attempts to break their will while prisoners. Bailey was kept a full year in solitary confinement in pitch-black darkness.

Under the heading "Have U.S. armed forces forgotten how to honor great heroism?" the Army-Navy-Air Force Journal and Register pointed out that the Bronze Star is "for meritorious service," below the Distinguished Service Medal in the same category.

"There is good reason for many wonder why Maj. Moon's deeds should not have received higher commemoration," the Service Journal said.

Moon, 38, of Rudy, Ark., was killed in a second escape attempt after enduring four months of torture at the hands of the Communist Pathet Lao. Like Ballenger, he was serving as an adviser to the royal Laotian army when captured in April, 1961.

The official account said "efforts to break him mentally and physically were constant. Iterrrogation followed interrogation. Beatings, kicks from guards, bindings of his arms and constant threats in addition to the physical torture failed to break his will to resist."

Moon made a first attempt to escape a month after his capture. As he was being lead outside by guards, with his arms bound to his sides, he tried to get away. He was shot in the head and left side, but recovered despite receiving only crude medical aid.

Three months later, also while being led out by two guards, he grabbed the rifle of one of them. He was struck on the head, and then shot and killed as he lay on the ground, the official account said.

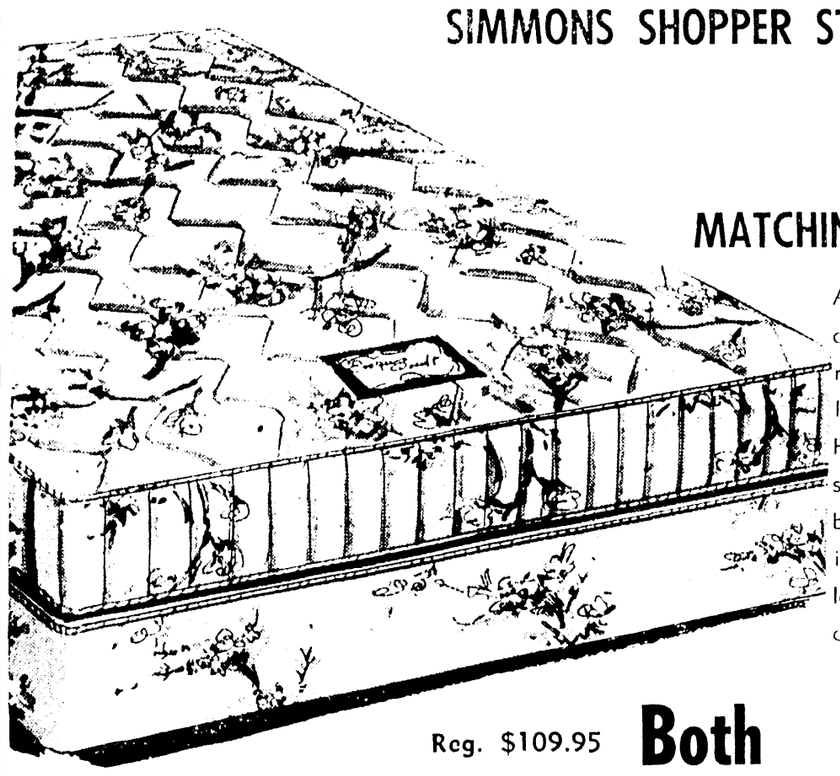

SOVIET VISITOR

BELGRADE (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Breznev, with a seven-member official party, will visit Yugoslavia for 10 days from Sept. 24 to Oct. 4, government spokesman Drago Kunc announced at his weekly news conference Friday.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN
Says Bed is Important!

Dr. Steincrohn in his much followed, nationally syndicated column, has much to say about the type mattress you sleep on. Here is part of his column that ran in Wednesday's Monroe Morning World: Whether we like it or not, we are destined to spend at least one-third of our lives in bed. Yet, in many homes, the bed is the least respected article of furniture. Unreasoningly, we live a great part of our lives in unnecessary discomfort.
If the mattresses are of ancient vintage but "still comfortable," don't believe it. So's a 20-year-old car. It will serve its basic purpose, yes. But what I am talking about is up-to-date comfort and not just serviceability.
There's a difference between ordinary sleep and a real good night's sleep. Therefore, go out shopping for new mattresses. Most people are more comfortable with hard mattresses that do not give too much. Some, with bad backs, find even more comfort if the mattress is reinforced by a board between it and the springs.

U.S. Still Can Resurrect Monroe Doctrine Swiftly

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some highly placed people have been talking during the Cuban crisis as though the Monroe Doctrine is dead. But any burial is premature.

There was a very strong implication in President Kennedy's recent warning to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro against exporting his Soviet brand of communism through force or threat of force—a direct implication that the doctrine could be resurrected swiftly.

In the wake of this, the Senate overwhelmingly approved a proposed resolution restating the doctrine and calling on Congress to back the President's Cuban policy. Similar House action was certain.

The President told Castro—and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev—that the United States would take "whatever action is necessary" to keep Castro from using his Russian military buildup to spread communism in this hemisphere.

That was a big tent; big enough to cover the Monroe Doctrine, if Kennedy decided it should be invoked.

The doctrine has lost some of its muscle from disuse and from diplomatic events in the new world. But the United States never has formally abandoned it even though its status may be fuzzy.

Fact is, it was never a law but merely a policy laid down in 1823 by President James Monroe and subscribed to by Congress.

Under it, the United States proclaimed that it would consider any penetration of foreign influence in this hemisphere a threat to the security of the United States. And it would resist such penetration with force, if necessary.

This provided an umbrella of protection for the then unstable Latin American republics, which were plagued by revolution and easy prey to foreign meddling.

Old World nations accepted and recognized the doctrine, in deference to the growing power of the United States. But there were some Latin American nations which resented the U.S. "big brother" attitude and particularly the idea that in some way it gave the United States the right to intervene in their affairs.

For, along with the doctrine, there developed a parallel of U.S. policy — intervention in Latin America to protect U.S. interests. This involved military landings in Cuba in 1906, in Haiti in 1915, in the Dominican Republic in 1916, in Panama in 1918, and in Nicaragua in 1926, and once in Mexico.

This policy was replaced by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "Good Neighbor" program in the 1930's and formally disowned when the Organization of American States (OAS) was created. Under the OAS, all American nations, including the United States, pledged to refrain from interfering in the internal affairs of their neighbors.

The OAS, in effect, also took over, in the name of all the republics, the job of enforcing the Monroe Doctrine. That wasn't said in so many words but it was the intent. It pledged the Americas to act to prevent foreign penetration of any member nation. In addition, the subsequent Pact of Rio was aimed specifically at Communist infiltration.

That, historically, would seem to have been the end of the Monroe Doctrine. But it was the finish only if the Pact of Rio worked. In 1960 the U.S. State Department said the doctrine was not dead and that it was now bolstered by the pledge of common OAS action.

Whether this really strengthened the doctrine is a point of argument. The OAS has been found wanting on some occasions. There has beeen vacillation and compromise on combatting communism, and a definite shortage of effective action.

Last year President Kennedy warned that non-intervention under the OAS must not be used as a cover for inaction against communism. He cautioned the republics that if they defaulted on their pledge to act, the United States might have to go it alone.

That would not be an easy decision, and it is certain that the first U.S. move against Castro will be through the OAS. But if that organization falls down on the job, Kennedy in turn could fall back on the Monroe Doctrine.

Mobile Nuclear Reactor Yields Electric Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced Saturday that a small, mobile nuclear reactor under development for the army has produced electricity for the first time.

The successful test of the ML-1 reactor was conducted at the AEC's testing station in Idaho Friday.

The announcement called the reactor the "world's first direct and closed cycle gas cooled nuclear power system." It was hailed as another major step in a joint program of the AEC and Army Corps of Engineers to develop nuclear power plants to meet defense requirements.

The reactor heats gas which is used to drive a turbine.

Councils Ask Support For Barnett Fight

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The National Association of Citizens Councils urged people throughout the country to support Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett in his fight against integration.

At a meeting here Sautrday to plan strategy for countering desegregation, council members asked people to contact their governors and other public officials to urge them to take steps in support of the Mississippi governor.

Forty delegates from eight states attended the closed meeting.

The national council's president, Roy V. Harris, publisher of a weekly Georgia newspaper, told members and guests of the Montgomery Citizens Council Friday night that southern people need men who will tell the nation that segregation is "not a prejudiced but a problem we have to deal with."

He complimented Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett and Gov.-nominate George Wallace of Alabama, while saying that Georgia has had men who "breathed fire and brimstone" in their home state but who in Washington contracted "Potomac Fever."

Georgia, he said, "lost this battle in politics, and we will never win one until we win it in politics."

Harris said Citizens Councils have done a good job in resisting integration.

COLD WAR HEROES

Higher Military Awards Sought

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army is being strongly urged to grant higher military decorations to men who withstand Communist torture after being taken prisoners.

The decorations could include the coveted Medal of Honor if Congress approves a newly submitted Defense Department request for authority to grant the nation's highest military award for heroism in peacetime.

The drive for greater recognition stems partly from the fact that survivors of Maj. Walter H. Moon received only the Bronze Star Medal in his behalf, although his courage as a Communist prisoner in Laos was described officially as "an incredible story of heroism."

Similar awards were made to Maj. Lawrence R. Bailey and Sgt Orville Ballenger when they were flown home recently from Laos after resisting all attempts to break their will while prisoners. Bailey was kept a full year in solitary confinement in pitch-black darkness.

Under the heading "Have U.S. armed forces forgotten how to honor great heroism?" the Army-Navy-Air Force Journal and Register pointed out that the Bronze Star is "for meritorious service," below the Distinguished Service Medal in the same category.

"There is good reason for many members of the armed forces to wonder why Maj. Moon's deeds should not have received higher commemoration," the Service Journal said.

Moon, 38, of Rudy, Ark., was killed in a second escape attempt after enduring four months of torture at the hands of the Communist Pathet Lao. Like Ballenger, he was serving as an adviser to the royal Laotian army when captured in April, 1961.

The official account said "efforts to break him mentally and physically were constant. Iterrrogation followed interrogation. Beatings, kicks from guards, bindings of his arms and constant threats in addition to the physical torture failed to break his will to resist."

Moon made a first attempt to escape a month after his capture. As he was being lead outside by guards, with his arms bound to his sides, he tried to get away. He was shot in the head and left side, but recovered despite receiving only crude medical aid.

Three months later, also while being led out by two guards, he grabbed the rifle of one of them. He was struck on the head, and then shot and killed as he lay on the ground, the official account said.

SOVIET VISITOR

BELGRADE (UPI) — Soviet President Leonid Breznev, with a seven-member official party, will visit Yugoslavia for 10 days from Sept. 24 to Oct. 4, government spokesman Drago Kunc announced at his weekly news conference Friday.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN
Says Bed is Important!

Dr. Steincrohn in his much followed, nationally syndicated column, has much to say about the type mattress you sleep on. Here is part of his column that ran in Wednesday's Monroe Morning World: Whether we like it or not, we are destined to spend at least one-third of our lives in bed. Yet, in many homes, the bed is the least respected article of furniture. Unreasoningly, we live a great part of our lives in unnecessary discomfort.
If the mattresses are of ancient vintage but "still comfortable," don't believe it. So's a 20-year-old car. It will serve its basic purpose, yes. But what I am talking about is up-to-date comfort and not just serviceability.
There's a difference between ordinary sleep and a real good night's sleep. Therefore, go out shopping for new mattresses. Most people are more comfortable with hard mattresses that do not give too much. Some, with bad backs, find even more comfort if the mattress is reinforced by a board between it and the springs.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a little baby and unfortunately do not have a washing machine. Therefore I have lots of diapers and laundry, requiring many trips to the washeteria (launderette).

I keep the soap and water softener in the car all the time; this saves lugging it to and from the car every time I go to the washeteria.

As for little babies, everyone has her own idea how to raise them. But I would like to pass along an idea from the nurses in our hospital.

They use what they call sugar-nipples to calm a baby and keep him quiet during an examination. It is a regular nipple with a piece of sterile cotton saturated in sugar water inside the nipple.

I got the idea of dipping the baby's pacifier into syrup when he gets himself into a frenzy. I find the syrup pacifier takes his mind off the immediate situation and gives his body a chance to rest.

It also works when the baby awakens in the middle of the night.

—Housewife

SPRINKLER CONS

DEAR HELOISE:

The gals may like the old-fashioned sprinklers and spray bottles to dampen clothes when ironing, but I find a damp sponge is far better.

I keep a pan of warm water on the end of my ironing board and just dip and squeeze the sponge, then wipe my cloth when needed. Have you ever thought how much time is wasted by picking up that bottle and finding the proper place to push and spray? Besides, I find a sponge doesn't overwet the material as a bottle sometimes does Mrs. J. P. W.

NEAT AND TIDY

DEAR HELOISE:

I save all of my baby-food jars and lids and keep several of them handy by the washing machine. When I find loose buttons, nuts, bolts, etc. I put them into little separate jars. This makes it easy to return to the proper place later.

These jars are also very useful at the sewing machine to separate buttons, snaps and pins. The lids prevent spilling.

—Shirley Roberts

CUTTING REMARKS

DEAR GALS:

Don't laugh at this: Know those old paring and bread knives that were handed down in the family and rust so badly from time to time?

Remove the rust by dipping some steel wool in plain kerosene and just scour lightly. This removes rust from tools also. It actually works.

—Heloise

CANDLE WRAP-UP

DEAR HELOISE:

Instead of using foil to wrap around the base of a candle to make it "fit the hole" in the candelabra . . . I have found a paper napkin is far better.

Just tear off a piece of the paper napkin and wet it, wrap around the end of the candle and push it in the candelabra. The wet napkin doesn't show. It also sticks to the candle itself.

—Old Bachelor Grimes

STAIN STUNT

DEAR HELOISE:

We had twins a few years ago and I found that if I brushed the stains on their little garments with a solution of household cleanser that contained bleach and some hot water, and let sit, the stains would disappear.

This solution is just the greatest on a grape juice stain. I do not guarantee this procedure to work on a very old stain, but it might.

—Pat Dawson

HEY, MOMS!

I tried it on a very old stain I had (grease, not cod-liver oil) and left the paste in the garment for about an hour, and when I rinsed with hot water, my old stain was removed. Worth a try.

Remember that this should be tested, as the mixture DOES contain bleach, and if used on a colored fabric . . . just might leave a white circle.

—Heloise

FOUR HAIRCUTS

DEAR HELOISE:

I have four little girls . . . and I cut their hair. But let me tell you how I keep their bangs straight.

I just dampen the bangs with a comb dipped in water and then . . . remove a sheet of note paper with lines from their notebook folder.

By dampening the note paper slightly, it will "relax" over the forehead. Any mother can put the sheet of paper on the top of the child's head and use a "line" of the notepaper to use as a guide to cut her daughter's bangs. The wetter the paper, the better job I get!

—Devoted

KEEP IT CLEAN

DEAR HELOISE:

Keep a child's water color brush near your sewing machine to remove lint from the delicate parts. Anyone who sews knows what a problem lint can be.

DEAR HELOISE:

My plated toaster lost its luster. I dipped the cloth in plain household vinegar and rubbed the surface, and now it shines like new again. (Polish with dry cloth).

Reader

LACK A RACK?

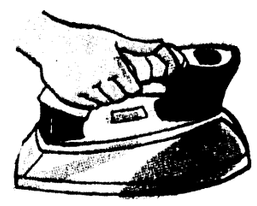

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who don't have a cooling rack, for icing cookies and cakes—there's no need to buy one.

Just remove the broiler from your oven before heating the stove and lay a thin cloth over it. Set your cake to cool on this after baking.

—Baker Blue

HANDLE WITH CARE

DEAR HELOISE:

With a family of nine, I find that I have oodles of ironing to do and the handle of the iron often makes my hand sore. I have even had blisters.

My husband suggested covering the handle of my iron with a piece of an old silk dress. We cut a long piece about two inches wide and wrapped it around the handle, sewing the end piece.

This has eliminated blisters, and makes the handle soft and easy to pick up. Instead of my hand sticking to the plastic handle, it now gives a little . . . with each swipe of the iron.

Thanx to MRS. GEO. WRIGHT, 61 SANFORD ST., ROCHESTER, N.Y.

Little Orphan Annie

THE COLONEL IS STILL IN A STATE OF SHOCK FROM LEARNING THAT THE "YOKEL" TYPE LOCAL JUSTICE OF THE PEACE ONCE WAS ONE OF THE WORLD'S TOP PRO GAMBLERS.

WHAT? THAT RUBE J.P.? HIM A BIG-TIME CARD AN' DICE OPERATOR?

ONE OF THE TOP SIX OR SEVEN! RENO AND VEGAS TO MONTE CARLO! BUT HASN'T TOUCHED A CARD NOW, SINCE HE SETTLED HERE TWENTY YEARS BACK!

CONVERT, EH? THEY'RE TH' WORST! WHAT'S IT TO HIM, IF WE RUN A FEW CHEAP GAMES?

WE WENT ALL THROUGH THAT! FROM NOW ON WE'RE FEATURING CIRCUS ACTS, WITH PEE WEE AND TH' CHIMP!

WE'LL PUT IN MORE RIDES! GOT A GREAT ORIENTAL FORTUNETELLER COMING! CLOSING DOWN ALL THE GAMES OF CHANCE AS OF NOW!

HULLY MACKEREL! THAT J. P. SURE MUSTA GAVE HIM TH' MESSAGE!

WHADD'YUH MEAN, SHUTTIN' DOWN MY WHEEL O' FORTUNE? WHERE'S THAT LEAVE ME?

YOU'RE TAKING TICKETS! AND NO SHARP GIMMICKS TO SHORTCHANGE THE RUBES!

FROM HERE ON THIS IS GOING TO BE AN HONEST OPERATION! YOU ALL HEAR ME?

WOW! I SURE WONDER WHAT THAT J.P. TOLD HIM.

PSS-ST! WHO ARE THOSE CHARACTERS, JUST CAME ONTO TH' LOT?

NEVER SAW 'EM BEFORE, BUT I DON'T FANCY THEIR LOOKS!

AH, GENTLEMEN! I OWN THIS SHOW; SOMETHING I CAN DO FOR YOU?

COULD BE!

YEAH!

Y'GOT A BOY CALLED TORNADO TOM!

TORNADO? YES, INDEED! HUNDRED DOLLARS TO ANY FIGHTER WHO CAN LAST WITH HIM THREE ROUNDS!

WE GOT A BIG FARMER WE THINK CAN TAKE HIM!

BUT WE THINK SO A LOT MORE'N A CHEAP HUNNERT BUCKS!

HM-M-M---! I SEE! WELL, BOYS, POSSIBLY SOMETHING CAN BE ARRANGED! IN FACT, I'M SURE IT CAN! TELL YOU WHAT. I'LL MEET YOU BOYS TOMORROW AT.....

LATER, IN TORNADO TOM'S TENT!

SURE! I SAW THE BIG GUY! GUESS I CAN TAKE HIM, IF Y' WANT ME TO. Y'KNOW I ALWAYS DO WHATEVER YOU SAY!

I SAW HIM CLOSE UP; HE'S A TENTH-RATE BUM! YOU'LL BEAT HIM EASY!

THOUGHT YOU WERE SO SUDDEN CHOCK FULL O' VIRTUE ALL GAMBLIN' WAS OFF 'ROUND HERE!

WHO'S "GAMBLING"? THIS IS A SURE THING! THOSE CHUMPS ARE LOADED! WE'LL WIN A BUNDLE SO BIG IT'LL TAKE FIVE GUYS T'CARRY IT TO TH' BANK!

HATLO'S HISTORY

IF IT DIDN'T HAPPEN, IT SHOULDA...THE LITTLE NEWSBOY WHO QUESTIONED JOE JACKSON AFTER THE BLACK SOX HEARING... CHICAGO, 1919....

JOE.. SNIF... SAY IT AIN'T SO, JOE!

I'M AFRAID IT IS, KID... SIGH...

THIS'LL KILL BASEBALL.. NOTHIN' CAN SAVE IT NOW!

IF I WAS HIS LAWYER, I'DA HAD HIM TAKE THE FIFTH AMENDMENT!

WHY DO THEY CALL HIM "SHOELESS JOE"?

SOB!

YOU CAN'T BLAME THE POOR BALLPLAYERS! BLAME THEIR ENVIRONMENT!

I WOULDN'T KNOW, LADY!
